OCEAN AIRBOAT IN TWO FLIGHTS

Lieut. Porte Calls the America the Best Flier He Ever Was In.

CURTISS JUBILANT, ALSO

Craft Surpasses Its Builder's Expectations in Tests On and Over Lake Keuka.

NILES IN AMAZING CLIMB

With Biplane's Wings Almost Perpendicular, He Circles Up 2,000 Feet at Governors Island.

Glenn H. Curtiss and Lieut. Porte made two brief tests yesterday of Rodman Wanamaker's airboat America, with which Lieut. Porte will attempt to fly next month from Newfoundland to England via the Azores and Spain, and expressed themselves as delighted with the flyer and its performances.

Lieut. Porte remarked enthusiastically that it was the finest flying craft he was ever in, while Mr. Curtiss said the boat surpassed his expectations and that he was confident it would do the work required of it after a few minor changes had been made.

While the first flights of the America were being made over Lake Keuka, at Hammondsport, N. Y., Charles S. Niles, at Governors Island, gave an exhibition of flying with a Blériot monoplane that amazed the members of the Fourth of July Aviation Committee and several army officers who witnessed his exploits. After looping the loop, describing the letter S, doing the wing-over-wing drop, and flying head down for 3,500 feet, he rose in great circles to a height of more than 2,000 feet with the wings of the machine almost perpendicular—something, he said, which had never been done before.

AIRBOAT AMERICA'S TESTS.

Transatlantic Flyer Makes Swift Dashes in First Tryout.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y., June 23.—Rodman Wanamaker's airboat America left the water of Lake Keuka this afternoon and made two short trial flights over the southern end of the lake. On both occasions when the airboat left the lake front before the Curtiss garage it cruised for about twenty minutes, half the time in the water and half the time in the air.

In the second flight it rose for a minute to a height of sixty feet, but the pilots, Glenn H. Curtiss and Lieut. Porte, kept it skimming most of the time just above the surface. Lieut. Porte was enthusiastic about the America. "It's the finest flying craft I ever sat in—steady as a rock," he said. "It was perfect except for a tendency to shoot upward that made it hard to hold it down somewhere near the surface. I am more confident than ever after trying it out."

Glenn H. Curtiss, the builder, who sailed the airboat on its first trip, said it had surpassed his expectations.

"No man can say," he said, "that the flight will be successful. The ocean has never been crossed. I can say that I believe this boat is built to meet every condition of a transatlantic fight that can be foreseen. I am more than satisfied with the America. I am convinced that it can do its work. The trial flight has shown us that a few minor changes are necessary, but that the America is, as it stands, nearly as perfect as it can be made. Many more trials will be made, however, before we turn it over to the owner as a finished product."

Crowd Watches the Start.

It was a few minutes after 3 o'clock when the America was wheeled from the aviation field into the lake for a second launching. The crowd of about 400 which had lived on excitement since early in the morning was becoming impatient and weary. One cause of delay was the cutting of portholes on each side of the cabin behind the windows, so that the air pilot, from his seat, could see the condition of the airboat's wings. Several workmen climbed about the boat, screwing up wires and testing bolts after dawn until the middle of the afternoon. No virtuoso could have bestowed more pains on a Stradivarius.

The plan had been that Lieut. Porte was to make the first trial trip alone, but Mr. Curtiss and George Hallett remained aboard when the order was given to start the America for the water.

Half a dozen men rolled it on its launching cradle a few feet to the lake, and then struggled with it in shallow water. George Robinson and James La Monte, a burly man, who ferries passengers on his back from the shore through fifteen or twenty feet of lake to the airboats every day, waded out about sixty feet, shoving the America ahead of them, until it floated free of the launching cradle. A volley of applause came from the crowd lining the shore. Several canoes and rowboats darted out from the shore and several little boys in bathing suits floundered through the shallow water in the wake of the America.

Curtiss shouted to La Monte and Robinson that their tow was no longer needed, and they swam to the launch Rover, whose frolicsome crew, to the delight of the crowd, tumbled them overboard once before letting them climb in.

Lieut. Porte, who had been standing in the cockpit looking back toward shore, took off the 25-cent broad-brimmed straw hat which has become popular in Hammondsport since the air pilot adopted it, replaced it with a leather muffler and headgear, and took his seat before the levers and the steering yoke in the cabin.

Assistant Pilot Hallett, who is of slight build, began to crank the starboard en-

DURAZZO REPORTED TAKEN.

Paris News Unconfirmed, but Vienna Hears of Albanian Rebel Victory.

PARIS, June 23.—According to a report received here tonight the Albanian insurgents today captured Durazzo by storm.

LONDON, June 23.—No confirmation is obtainable here of the report in circulation in Paris that Durazzo has been captured by the Albanian rebels, but according to dispatches from Vienna the rebels have taken Elbassan, sixty-four miles southeast of Scutari, and are threatening the towns of Avlona, Berat, and Fieri.

Prince William, if the Paris report of the capture of Durazzo turns out to be correct, will have been ruler of Albania for about fifteen weeks.

The young German Princeling who assumed the formidable task of controlling the warlike inhabitants of Albania landed at Durazzo on March 7. He took with him Dutch guards, and to the lack of tact of some of their officers has been ascribed many of his misfortunes. His great antagonist, however, was Essad Pasha, who had dreamed of the throne himself. He remained Minister of War, but Prince William found it impossible to reach an agreement with him. He began to intrigue against the new monarch, and resigned his portfolio and was permitted by the Prince to go into exile.

Then began trouble with the Albanians, and especially with the Mohammedan section. On May 23 the Prince actually took refuge aboard the Austrian cruiser on guard in the harbor at Durazzo, and although he returned to his palace it was only to find himself engaged in actual warfare. Recently reports have stated that the Prince's personal pluck had won for him the admiration of his people, but it has been generally recognized that if he did manage to establish himself it would be only by overcoming almost insuperable obstacles.

BUYS PALL MALL MAGAZINE.

Hearst Company Acquires Publication that W. W. Astor Started.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 23.—A Hearst company today bought The Pall Mall Magazine.

The magazine will now cease to exist separately, as after the August issue it will be amalgamated with Nash's Magazine.

The Pall Mall Magazine at one time held a notable position in the British magazine field, as it was the first to publish illustrations in number and finish comparable to those of American periodicals of the same class. It was established by William Waldorf Astor in 1893, and concerning its foundation a good story is told. Mr. Astor had bought The Pall Mall Gazette, an evening newspaper, and changed it in a day from a Radical to a Unionist organ, but he found that his power over it was not unlimited. He had chosen as its editor Henry Cust, and the latter refused to bow to the will of his employer.

One day Mr. Astor, so the story goes, suggested a series of articles on matters which did not at all appeal to Mr. Cust as fit for a daily newspaper.

"If you want to publish stories like that," he is reported to have said to Mr. Astor, "you had better start a magazine."

Mr. Astor took his advice and The Pall Mall Magazine was the result. For long Mr. Astor took the keenest interest in it, especially in the illustrations, and with Lord Frederick Hamilton, M. P., Sir Douglas Straight, who died only a few weeks ago, and T. Dorr-Keighley he produced a magazine which at once sprang to the forefront of its class.

In 1912, however, Mr. Astor sold it without giving any reason for so doing. It had, indeed, only a circulation of 40,000, although 60,000 copies were habitually printed, and it is said that all Mr. Astor received for it was $5,000. It came into the possession of Iliffe & Sons, who were the publishers of The Autocar and other similar periodicals.

Mr. Hearst made his incursion into British journalism three or four years ago, obtaining possession of Nash's Magazine and The London Budget.

MATTY UMPIRES AND TALKS.

Voted a Failure at the First, a Success at the Second.

Christy Mathewson, the star pitcher of the Giants, proved himself a poor umpire yesterday. Upon the invitation of Charles D. Hilles, President of the New York Juvenile Asylum, "Matty" visited the children's village in Echo Hills, back of Dobbs Ferry. Here he was welcomed by 550 boys, who crowded around and received him with flattering favor.

A ball game was in progress and "Matty" was invited to umpire. He took his place behind the pitcher and made several close decisions which did not meet with approval. After the game the big pitcher talked to the boys about pitching and among other things said:

"I have tried to teach several big league pitchers how to throw the fade-away," said Matty, "and not one of them has succeeded. The difficulty is that too much attention is required. The fade-away is a difficult ball to control.

"Now let me give you a little advice about pitching. Don't be too anxious to throw a curve ball. Some of the best curve pitchers I have ever known were never able to 'make' the big leagues. The reason was that they could never attain control. I might lecture to you boys about control being the big thing in life, but just now we are talking about pitching, and in that control is everything. Most young pitchers attempt a round arm delivery, because it permits them to put 'more on the ball.' I would advise you to keep to a straight over-hand delivery. Watch the plate and make sure that the ball goes over."

Mathewson invited the boys to visit the Polo Grounds on any afternoon that the Superintendent, Guy Morgan, will grant them a holiday. The lads will charter a special train and attend a game some time next month. As Mathewson left the village in his automobile, the boys' band of thirty-six pieces gave him a musical send-off.

HARVEST EMPTIES TOWN.

Heat Drives Imported Hands Away, So Business Men Turn Out.

HOXIE, Kan., June 23.—Hoxie is almost a deserted village. The men went to the wheat fields today after a delegation of farmers had come into town lamenting that harvest hands imported from the East had quit because of the heat.

"We need help quick, and you fellows must help us," declared the leader of the delegation to a meeting of business men. Half an hour later the town barbers placed signs on their doors reading: "Shaves and Haircuts on Saturday." The doors of the court house were locked and every county official donned old clothes; merchants turned their stores over to women clerks; lawyers forgot their fees and the editor placed his wife in charge of the "shop." Loss of the harvest would paralyze the town's business.

BABYLON GAVE BIBLE STORY TO THE JEWS

Pre-Semitic Account of Flood and Apple Found in Nippur Tablets Now at Philadelphia.

TRANSLATED AT OXFORD

Dr. Langdon Finds It Makes Noah Not Only Survivor of the Flood, but Eater of the Apple.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, June 24.—The Times announces that a discovery of the utmost importance in Biblical archaeology has just been made by Dr. Langdon, Professor of Assyriology at Jesus College, Oxford, who has found among the early Babylonian tablets disinterred at Nippur a pre-Semitic account of the Deluge. It is described as "clearly the original of that preserved in the Book of Genesis."

The same tablet contains a reference to the Fall of Man, brought about by his eating a certain fruit. This is the first reference to the Fall found in Babylonian literature.

The tablet came from an early library at Nippur, and is now, with a number of others, in the museum of the University of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia. Last October Dr. Langdon visited the museum and copied the inscriptions on about fifty tablets of the Nippur collection.

One of these tablets is engraved with a Hymn to Nimtud, who in the Babylonian legend is the creatress of man. The hymn contains the Babylonian version of the Flood, and, in contrast with the famous "Chaldean account of the Deluge" discovered by George Smith in 1872, agrees with the Biblical account in naming a patriarch, who saved the world from a catastrophe by reason of his piety.

It further agrees with the Biblical narrative in making him a gardener or agriculturist and in the duration of nine months assigned to the flood. The name of the patriarch is given as Tagtog—the Semitic "Nuhu."

It is related that after the flood Noah became "like the gods," which is interpreted to mean that he received the gift of extraordinary longevity.

This version says that Cannes (Babylonian for the God Enki, the water god) taught Noah the secrets of things revealed to him and the wisdom possessed by the gods. With this revelation the tablet breaks off.

It is notable that this "revelation of wisdom" is related by Berossus, a Babylonian historian, who wrote in the time of Nebuchadnezzar.

After a break in the inscription there occurs a remarkable story of the Fall of Man, his punishment being the loss of effectual life, or of longevity, because he ate of the Tree of Life. The story includes the contention between the Creatress of man, Ninharseg, or Nimtud, and her husband, Enlil. The beginning of the story of the Fall is broken off.

It is noted that, as distinct from the Biblical narrative, it is Noah, not Adam, who is tempted and falls.

HORSE IN THE RESERVOIR.

City Officials and Police Consume Hours in Rescue Work.

The Jersey City police reserves were called out yesterday afternoon, when a horse and dump-cart, driven by Thomas Manning, and owned by Tully Brothers, contractors, fell into the City Reservoir, at Jefferson and Central Avenues. The cart slipped over the edge, and being filled with stone, sank to the bottom, carrying the horse with it.

Manning jumped and landed in the water, which is fifteen feet deep, but was soon rescued. There was much running to and fro and shouting, and a large crowd gathered, so the reserves were sent for to preserve order.

Edward Kohl, Superintendent of the reservoir; Commissioner Henry B. Byrne, and Charles Van Keuren, City Engineer, were sent for and began to plan to get the wagon and horse out. George Killoran and Alois Herald, reservoir employes, cut off the water supply, and after two hours the water had fallen exactly four inches. Then the Rescue Board got from Robert Dugge, a painter, tackle, ropes, grappling irons and other apparatus. After fishing for half an hour with the irons, they caught one of the wheels of the cart, and with the help of ten volunteers pulled it to the surafce.

Adolph Pabst climbed up the elevated structure that passes along the side of the reservoir, fixed several blocks and tackles, and the rescuers, with a mighty heave and the assistance of the added purchase, snaked the horse out of the water. The dead animal was pulled over the wall and fell into the street. The water of the reservoir is filtered before it reaches householders.

HOT WAVE SWEEPS SOUTH.

Mercury at 100 in Georgia, 98 in Louisville, 92 in Washington.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Torrid winds from the south and southwest sent the thermometers climbing all over the central, southern, and western parts of the country. Coming suddenly after last week's cool weather, today's high temperatures were doubly oppressive. Official thermometers registered from 90 to 98 degrees east of the Rocky Mountains, except in the lake region and in New England.

The Central and Southern States suffered most. Louisville had a temperature of 98, Kansas City 94, St. Louis 96, Chicago 88, Pueblo 96, while throughout Georgia the mercury generally reached the 100 mark.

Washington, with 92 degrees, was about the warmest city in the East. New York and Boston, with temperatures of 76 and 80, were comparatively cool.

GOTHLAND WRECKED: PASSENGERS SAVED

Red Star Liner, Under Charter to Canadian Line, Ashore in a Fog Off the Scillies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PENZANCE, June 23.—Still another wreck of a large liner in the fog which has been prevailing on the English Coast for several days caused much anxiety and excitement in this neighborhood this evening.

Late in the afternoon news came from Bishop's Rock Lighthouse, off Land's End, that the Berligian Red Star liner Gothland, of 7,600 tons, bound from Montreal to Rotterdam, had struck on the ugly Gunner Rocks, near the Scilly Isles, in the dense mist.

From the neighborhood of the Lizard the steamers Ascanius and Montezuma went to the liner's assistance. Almost simultaneously a message from the Scilly Islands reported that the mail steamer Lyonesse was towing the St. Agnes and St. Mary's lifeboats to the scene.

After that there was a long and anxious silence, till, shortly after 10 P. M., came the reassuring news that there was likely to be no loss of life.

At 9:30, as the fog lifted somewhat, the rescuing steamer Lyonesse had sighted the Gothland, fast on the rocks, with a bad list to starboard and apparently partly filled with water. The Lyonesse got as near to the Gothland as the nature of the rough coast would allow, and lifeboats quickly took off all the passengers.

Meanwhile other steamers were standing off shore as near the Gothland as was safe. She is reported to be so badly damaged that the sea will flow in and out of her hull as the tide rises and falls, and will apparently become a total wreck.

The Lyonesse and two lifeboats took off the eighty-four passengers, but forty of the officers and crew insisted on standing by the vessel. The members of the lifeboat crew say that they begged them to come away, but they would not do so.

The ship is in a most dangerous position on the Flemming Ledge of the Crim, one of the most dangerous of the western rocks of the Scilly Islands.

One of the lifeboat men said: "We were alongside with our boat filled with people, and one of the ship's boats was also filled and hanging in the davits just overhead of us when the hooks broke away. The boat fell into the water and the bottom of the boat was smashed in. All those in it were thrown, a struggling mass, into the sea. One woman had an infant, eight months old, in her arms at the time, but we were able to rescue both of them and transfer them to the Lyonesse."

The officers of the ship say they had constant fog for five days.

A stewardess is in a critical condition. There are one or two broken limbs, but there have been no deaths.

HUGH TOWN, Scilly Islands, June 23.—The Gothland was laden with grain. She is badly damaged, and all attempts to launch boats proved hazardous owing to the heavy seas that swept over the reef on which she struck.

The first boat fell from the davits into the sea and was smashed. The occupants of the boat were thrown into the water, but, fortunately, a St. Mary's lifeboat was near by and rescued all of them, although a stewardess was nearly drowned.

A second boat was swung out, but with no better success. Eventually all the passengers, numbering 130, and 86 of the crew were safely transferred to the Lyonesse and landed at Hugh Town, St. Mary's Island, the capital of the Scilly Islands group.

Several of those rescued were injured, one man having an arm broken and another suffering from serious scalds.

The Gothland has 27 feet of water in No. 1 and No. 2 holds. The Captain, officers, and some of the crew remain aboard and a St. Mary's lifeboat is standing by.

The Gothland belongs to the Red Star Line, but is under charter to the Canadian Line. She left Montreal on June 12.

KOENIGIN LUISE DAMAGED.

Hamburg-American Liner in Collision—Passengers Landed.

HAMBURG, June 23.—The Hamburg-American tourist steamer Königin Luise and the German passenger steamer Cobra were in collision today in the course of the regatta at Cuxhaven.

Both vessels were damaged. The passengers were landed safely.

The stem of the Königin Luise was stove in and her forepeak is leaking.

The Cobra, which is a small steamer of 412 tons, belonging to the Hamburg-American Line, was badly damaged amidship.

Both vessels had on board a large number of persons, who had gone out to watch the regatta, and a catastrophe was narrowly averted. The shock of the collision was so severe that several of the passengers on the Cobra were thrown on to the deck of the Königin Luise.

GOVERNMENT BOAT AGROUND

Rowell Strikes on Gull Island, Off New London—Crew Safe.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 23.—While towing targets for night target practice for the forts on Fisher's and Plum Islands, the Government steamer Charles W. Rowell went ashore on Gull Island in The Race in Long Island Sound late tonight, but she is in no danger, according to wireless reports received here.

The Government steamer General J. M. Brannan is standing by. There is no one aboard the Rowell except her crew.

GLYNN AND HEARST SPEED TO CHICAGO

Making Trip Together on 20th Century Limited—Purpose Probably Political.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 23.—Chatting with William Randolph Hearst on board the Twentieth Century Limited, Gov. Martin H. Glynn sped westward today toward Chicago. The Governor boarded the train, which stopped especially for his accommodation, at Staatsburg, near Poughkeepsie, where he had taken luncheon with a personal friend, Edward Dinsmore. Vincent Astor was also a guest at the Dinsmore home.

The Governor was accompanied on his Chicago trip by his Military Secretary, Capt. Reynolds K. Townsend, and it was stated at the Executive Chamber that he would return to his office on Friday. No information was given as to the object of the Governor's trip, but it was supposed to be political, possibly in connection with the Governorship campaign in this State in the Autumn. The Governor's secretary, Frank A. Tierney, was in New York today attending the meetings of the Factory Investigating Commission, of which he also is Secretary, and in consequence it was not possible to get any trustworthy information as to the purpose of the trip at the Executive offices, which practically were deserted.

It is known, however, that the Governor's decision to make the trip was sudden. Mr. Glynn was to have attended the dinner of the Poughkeepsie Automobile Club tonight, but canceled his engagement by telephone. He told Peter H. Troy, the President of the club, that he must go to Chicago, but made no explanation as to the necessity for the trip.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 23.—William Randolph Hearst and Gov. Glynn of New York are expected to arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning. They will be the guests of Mayor Carter H. Harrison. The visit of Gov. Glynn is ostensibly for the purpose of inspecting Chicago's public buildings, but there is no doubt but that it has some political purpose. It may be in some way in connection with the threatened revolt of Chicago Democrats against Hearst, whose followers are said to be lining up against all Illinois Democratic Congressmen who are seeking re-election on the ground that these Democrats have been voting with the Wilson Administration.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 23.—Gov. Glynn said he broke his engagement to address the Poughkeepsie Automobile Club tonight on account of an unexpected summons to Chicago. He dined this afternoon with William D. Dinsmore at Staatsburg. Other guests at the dinner were Judge Alton B. Parker, Vincent Astor, and a number of prominent Democrats from this city. It was said to be purely a social affair.

CALLED OUT ALL FIREMEN.

Wedding Salute of Mill Whistle Fools Five Towns.

Through the fog and heavy air the residents of the towns around Passaic heard the long, deep blowing of a factory whistle shortly after 9 o'clock last night. No one could tell where it came from, and, the blowing of a whistle being the fire signal for the volunteer departments in that section, the firemen in Rutherford, Nutley, Belleville, Garfield, and Clifton put on their coats and rushed for fire headquarters, each thinking the alarm came from close home.

The blast continued for seven minutes, and by the end of that time firehouses, Police Headquarters, and residences of the volunteer firemen were battling with each other for possession of telephone wires to locate the fire. It took half an hour for everything to be straightened out. Then from Passaic came the news that the whistle was that of the mill of the Passaic Metal Ware Company. Eager inquirers were informed that it was not blowing for a fire at all, but because the engineer wanted to present his compliments to Miss Sallie A. Karp, daughter of Maurice Karp, the Superintendent of the company, who was being married at the home of her parents, 217 Brook Avenue, Passaic, to Michael F. Bernan of Passaic. The fire companies disbanded without voting honorary membership to the engineer of the mill.

HE IS JUST SECRETARY BO.

Sweeney of Interior Department Doesn't Even Care for "Mister."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Washington realizes that it has an acquisition in the new Assistant Secretary of the Interior, Bo Sweeney of the State of Washington. When he arrived here last night and met a group of men at the desk while he was registering he lost no time in explaining that his name really was Bo, and just Bo.

"It might be Bogoslov or Bonaparte," said the new Assistant Secretary, "but it isn't. It is Bo, and that is all there is of it. I don't know any more than that my father and mother agreed on it and my father said it was the name of an old friend of his whom he loved better than any one else except my mother. I have worn the name more than fifty years and it has stood wear and tear very well.

"Neither I nor my folks have ever had occasion to be ashamed of it thus far. Furthermore, if you please, so long as I am in Washington, please leave off the Mister and call me plain Bo, if you call me anything at all."

Secretary Sweeney was a delegate-at-large to the Democratic National Convention of 1896, voted for Mr. Bryan for the nomination for President, and has served several years in the State Legislature.

COLONEL HOLDS OUT, MOOSE STILL HOPE

LEADERS SOUND THE STATE

And Must Hear "Nay" from His Own Lips—Barnes Appeals to Republicans.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON BOARD THE IMPERATOR, (via Sable Island,) June 23.—Col. Roosevelt said to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that, pending the receipt of fuller information on his arrival at New York tomorrow night or Thursday, he would not discuss political matters.

"I shall not be a candidate for Governor. I will say nothing further," he repeated.

Col. Roosevelt expressed great interest in the news received in a wireless message from THE TIMES that he might be called to testify before the Senate committee considering the treaty with Colombia, regarding the proposed payment of $25,000,000 to that country.

Col. Roosevelt, with his nephew, Philip, occupies the royal suite of the Imperator. He spends most of his time dictating in his stateroom to a stenographer. He goes on deck only for an hour for an early morning constitutional. He has usually a number of friends to dine with him in the restaurant, and his appearance provokes great applause. Col. Roosevelt attended the ship's concert and enjoyed Houdini's tricks as much as a boy. Col. Roosevelt said to THE TIMES correspondent this morning:

"I have been working hard finishing my book on Africa and writing my Pittsburgh speech. Yesterday I made a thorough inspection of the Imperator with her commander. I found the inspection most interesting."

A wireless message received yesterday from the Imperator at the offices of the Hamburg-American Line said:

Col. Roosevelt continues to spend several hours daily in the imperial suite in preparing a speech to be delivered in Pittsburgh on June 30. He has been under the treatment of Dr. Boccius, the ship's surgeon, and seems cured of attacks of fever. The Colonel entertains a large party of friends at tea daily on the private veranda deck of his suite.

According to a wireless message received from Capt. Thomas Kier yesterday afternoon the Imperator was 622 miles east of Sandy Hook at noon, which should bring her into Quarantine about 5 o'clock this afternoon. She should reach her pier in Hoboken at 7 o'clock. It is possible, however, that she may be delayed by fog between Nantucket Lightship and Sandy Hook.

PROGRESSIVES STILL HOPE.

Must Hear "Nay" from Colonel's Own Lips Before They Believe.

Progressive leaders in this city yesterday declined to accept as final Col. Roosevelt's refusal to become his party's candidate for Governor this Fall. An advance guard of up-State Bull Moose leaders is in the city prepared to urge the Colonel upon his return to assume the leadership of the Progressive fight in this State.

George W. Perkins, National Executive Chairman of the Progressive Party; Theodore Douglas Robinson, Progressive State Chairman, and nephew of Col. Roosevelt; Horace S. Wilkinson of Syracuse, who is slated for the Chairmanship of the Progressive State Committee should Col. Roosevelt's nephew retire, and Chauncey J. Hamlin of Buffalo, the aggressive Bull Moose leader of Erie County, are awaiting the Colonel's return to renew their plea that he enter the Gubernatorial fight.

Both Mr. Perkins and State Chairman Robinson said yesterday that they would not accept as final the Colonel's declaration made known in dispatches from London and Southampton, prior to his departure for home, that the condition of his throat would prevent him from taking an active part in the campaign until they had heard it from his own lips.

"The Colonel's last word to us before he sailed for Spain was that he still had an open mind with regard to the proposition that he become the Progressive candidate for Governor," said one of the Bull Moose leaders yesterday.

"He told us to go ahead and canvass the situation thoroughly during his absence and promised to place himself unreservedly at our disposal should our investigation indicate that there was a genuine demand among the voters generally throughout the State that he become a candidate. We have found such a demand. We have gone ahead and made certain preparations on the assumption that what Col. Roosevelt said before he sailed reflected his attitude. Now if he should declare himself out we will be in a very bad fix."

The preparations include a general canvass of the State undertaken by some of the most practical and aggressive among the Bull Moose leaders and getting petitions with more than the necessary number of signatures to place the Colonel's name on the Progressive primary ballot as the Bull Moose candidate for Governor.

Only 3,000 signatures are necessary. Chairman Robinson said last night that there was a "safeful" of petitions at the Progressive State headquarters in Washington Square.

Say State Calls Colonel.

The men who have had charge of the up-State canvass are O. B. Phillips of Rockland, who was Acting Chairman of the Progressive State Committee during the absence in Europe of Chairman Robinson; Horace S. Wilkinson, Chauncey J. Hamlin, and ex-State Senator Frederick M. Davenport of Clinton. All four arrived in this city yesterday to await the return of Col. Roosevelt. They had a conference with Mr. Perkins and Chairman Robinson and expect to go to Sagamore Hill and confer with Col. Roosevelt tomorrow, when they will press their plea that he lead the Progressive fight in the State this Fall.

According to Mr. Phillips, there was

NINE DIE IN TORNADO.

Storm Injures 40 Persons and Destroys 300 Buildings.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., June 23.—Nine persons were killed and forty injured, some fatally, and 300 buildings were destroyed by a tornado which swept through Watertown, S. D., to-night, according to information received here by telephone.

The storm destroyed all communication by telegraph and telephone to the city direct, and information was meagre. The same dispatch said that the tornado did much other damage in the vicinity with probable loss of life.

CHICAGO, June 23.—The telegraph companies late tonight said that they were unable to establish communication with St. Paul and Minneapolis, and the theory is advanced that the tornado which swept through Watertown traveled southwest over Minnesota and Wisconsin.

PHOTOGRAPHS BY WIRE.

Transmitted 600 Miles in British Experiment—By Wireless Soon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 23.—A demonstration was given today of the telelectrograph, an electrical invention which reproduces a photograph at a distance as easily as an item of news.

Various portraits were transmitted over a distance of 600 miles, and the demonstrator said that recent experiments showed that before long pictures would be flashed between New York and London.

A further development will be the transmission of photographs by wireless telegraphy. A demonstration of this process is promised within the next two months.

Cleveland Sent to Succor Americans Shipwrecked on Pacific Island.

ON BOARD U. S. S. CALIFORNIA, MAZATLAN, Mexico, June 23—(By wireless via San Diego, Cal., June 23.)—The cruiser Cleveland, at Acapulco, has sent word to Rear Admiral Howard, in command of the Pacific Fleet, that a boat arrived there today containing the second mate and two men from the wrecked American schooner Nokomis, bound for San Francisco, which went ashore on Clipperton Island on Feb. 28.

The Captain, his wife, three children, and five of the crew are on the island, short of provisions. Admiral Howard ordered the Cleveland to carry aid to the shipwrecked crew, and she departed today.

AGED PEER A SUICIDE.

Lord Forbes, the Premier Baron of Scotland, Cuts His Throat.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 23.—Lord Forbes, Premier Baron of Scotland, was found early this morning lying dead with his throat cut at a hotel in Dundee, where he had been staying for a month.

Horace Courtenay Gammell Forbes, who was 85 years old, was a representative peer for Scotland from 1874 to 1906, when he resigned. He was a stanch adherent of the Episcopalian Church of Scotland.

The Earl of Granard is descended from the Forbes family.

Lord Forbes owned about 13,700 acres. His country seat was Castle Forbes, Aberdeenshire, and he had a London house in Cavendish Square. He was a member of the Carlton and Athenaeum Clubs in London and the New Club in Edinburgh.

500 LIZARDS FREED IN PARK.

Peddler, Up for Cruelty, Trades Stock for Suspended Sentence.

Magistrate Herbert was called upon yesterday to decide whether a lizard is an animal. He finally held that, whether it is or is not, Alexander Axiotins, a peddler, of 212 West Thirty-sixth Street, was guilty of cruelty to lizards.

Axiotins was arrested on the charge that he "did inflict physical pain and suffering upon a certain living animal, a lizard, by tying a string about the neck of the animal and affixing the string to a cardboard for the purpose of exhibiting said animal."

The peddler said that Magistrate Deuel in Night Court on June 11 had decided that the act was not cruelty to animals. Magistrate Herbert suspended sentence on condition that the peddler set free in Central Park all of the 500 lizards which he owned.

Axiotins and Patrolman Edward Xenddochius, who had arrested him, set out together for the Park.

ARCHBALD ASKS EXPENSES.

Deposed Judge Sues Government for Allowance During Impeachment.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., June 23.—Robert W. Archbald, ex-Commerce Court Judge, but now practicing law in this city, filed suit against the Government today to recover $387.84, representing expenses while he was on the bench from Aug. 24, 1912, to Jan. 1, 1913. It was during this period that Judge Archbald was found guilty by the Impeachment Court of the United States, and was ousted from the judiciary.

In his complaint the ex-jurist states that Commerce Judges were allowed $1,500 a year each for expenses in addition to their salaries. He received his salary for the period mentioned, but has been unable to collect for his expenses.

RADIUM RESTORES SIGHT.

Woman Who Was Almost Blind Can Read Without Glasses.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Penn., June 23.—To be able to see her children again after five years of almost total blindness is the happy lot of Mrs. Emma Epler of Mohnton, five miles from this city. Her sight was restored through a new radium treatment and its skillful application by Dr. John Ege of Reading.

Mrs. Epler's blindness was brought on by straining both eyes when she worked in a shirt factory to support her children. When she visited Dr. Ege she could barely distinguish day from night. Applications of radium were made for six to eight hours at a time and Mrs. Epler waited with the hope that some day she might be able to again see. At the end of three weeks she was able to distinguish houses at a distance and a week later was able to distinguish the faces of her children and tell one from another. After five weeks of treatment she was able to read half a dozen lines of a test card set before her, and today she is able to read a newspaper without glasses. The radium's success in the treatment of blindness was announced today by Dr. Ege.

BUTTE MOB FIRED ON; ONE KILLED

THREE FALL BEFORE SHOTS

FIRE FROM BUILDINGS NEAR

Later They Begin to Blow Up Building—Rumpus Started Over Moyer Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

BUTTE, Mont., June 23.—Almost a pitched battle raged around Miners' Union Hall tonight, following the shooting of three men by Sheriff's Deputies when insurgent miners tried to storm the place to break up a meeting called by C. H. Moyer, President of the Western Federation of Miners, and other union officials. Of the three persons hit by bullets, one was killed on the spot and another will die.

Maddened by the fusillade started by the deputies some of the miners ran to get arms, while others brought dynamite from the mines to blow up the hall. The dynamiters were unable to reach the building for a time, being held off by the alertness of the deputies. Sharpshooters for two hours kept up a sniping from the tops of near-by buildings, hoping to hit some officers of the law.

Later tonight the deputies left the building and the mob started in to level the structure. Half a dozen charges had been set off before midnight, blowing up the front of the building.

Moyer and other officers of the union were to address a meeting called to outline plans for settling the differences between the factions in the local union.

Many of the seceders from the federation who had planned to organize a new union under the auspices of the Industrial Workers of the World, were in and around the miners' headquarters and many deputies had been sent to the hall to preserve order. They were under the direction of Sheriff Driscoll.

The insurgents started to storm the hall, according to the deputies, and several shots were fired in the air to drive the besiegers back. The impetus of the rush was so great that the crowd came on in spite of the warning shots. Then they shot into the midst of the crowd.

Innocent Bystander Shot.

Ernest L. Noye, Secretary of the Montana Demurrage Bureau, an innocent spectator, was shot through the neck and instantly killed.

J. H. Brune, aged 52, one of the Moyer men, was shot by accident by the deputies. He was going up the stairs to attend the meeting when the deputies, desperate at the continued onset of the men, fired at every one in sight. Brune was shot in the head and will die.

Charles Kramer, the third man hit, had just arrived from Los Angeles. He thought there was a parade in progress and did not recognize the sound of pistol shots. A bullet grazed his abdomen, but his injury is not serious.

At the first volley, President Moyer and the other officers of the federation, who had taken places on the rostrum, dashed out of the rear door. An automobile was waiting for them at the back door, and they hurriedly drove away.

As soon as the attackers were forced down the street from the hall by the fusillade the Sheriff stepped forward and shouted to the crowd that he wanted five hundred deputies at once. No one responded to this appeal and the Sheriff began to dispose his men as best he could.

Sheriff Driscoll rushed more deputies to the hall, and soon a hundred men with sawed-off shotguns were on guard. They attempted to keep everybody from the building, as it was reported that the structure was about to be dynamited.

This report was well founded, for soon after the place was cleared, explosives were set off under the union headquarters. The detonation could be heard for blocks, but did little damage to the building.

It is supposed by officers that some of the seceders from the union planned to blow up Union Hall and kill Moyer and the other officers of the Western Federation of Miners.

As the miners were driven back by the incessant firing of the deputies, they scattered throughout the city, shouting for dynamite. Several armed men went to the Stewart mine and carried toward Union Hall several boxes of the explosive.

The men were prevented by the deputies from approaching the building with the dynamite.

Sniping From Buildings.

Many of the insurgent miners then went to the tops of near-by buildings and opened fire on the deputies in the hall. The officers retreated for a time to the inner rooms of the building, then sallied to windows, fired on the besiegers, and retired.

For two hours the miners kept bullets popping away at the hall, but without doing any damage.

Mayor Duncan was told of the situation and he wired to Gov. Stewart at Helena. The Mayor told the Governor later that the city was under control, but this message had scarcely been sent before the first dynamite was set off under the union headquarters.

Union Headquarters Damaged.

Many attempts were made on the building. The first charge having failed to destroy the building, a second and third mine were exploded, having been planted while deputies were chasing dynamiters from some other part of the structure. The third explosion blew out the front of the building, which had been denuded and looted during the first outbreak, more than a week ago.

Finding he could not control his men in their attacks, President Michael McDonald of the newly organised union had thousands of handbills printed hurriedly and distributed about the streets, calling on all in the name of the union to disperse and go home. Then the excitement began to subside.

Moyer had been advised early in the day to leave Butte and permit the miners to work out their own problems, but he scoffed at the insurgents' advice and asked the Sheriff for an armed force in order to hold his meeting and make a last stand.

The meeting was not held, and the local sentiment here is now that the situation will rapidly clear with no further interference by Federation officials.

START OF THE DISCORD.

Seceders from Western Federation Cause of Much Disorder.

The seceding members of the local union of the Western Federation of Miners at Butte started rioting on June 13, and the disorder continued until the night of June 15. Dynamite was exploded under the porch of the home of P. K. Sullivan, an officer of the union. The seceders said that a new union would be formed under the protection of the Industrial Workers of the World, abandoning the Western Federation of Miners.

There was much disorder in Butte, and threats were made to lynch Deputy Sheriff Owen C. Ribben and Martin Hawkins who were saved by the police. Two miners were arrested, but the rioters became so menacing that the prisoners were released.

A delegation of the rioters called at the local newspaper offices and demanded that the Industrial Workers of the World no longer be called "the mob" and "the rioters."

The safe belonging to the local union of the Western Federation was taken out of the office and dynamited. The police made no attempt to stop this, and later one of the seceders complained to the police that one of their number had put them in the light of being thieves by taking $3,000 and a diamond ring from the safe. Nearly 1,000 persons in sympathy with the rioters stood about and watched the safe blown open.

On June 14, the seceders said that the managers of the Black Rock, Speculator, and Butte and Superior mines had agreed to allow miners to return to work without Western Federation cards, providing that delegates of that body did not appear at the mines. It was said that of the 9,000 members of the union in Butte, the insurgents controlled the votes of 2,000.

There was a meeting of the insurgents in Butte on June 21, at which plans were made to form an independent union. The report of the Executive Committee was adopted and called for a permanent organization. The Executive Committee numbered twenty, of which the majority are members of the Industrial Workers of the World, and the temporary President, McDonald, is, also a member of that organization.

The regulars of the Butte local of the Western Federation of Miners obtained the resignations of its officers on that day and elected new officers, who are to take office in July. It was thought that this would heal the breach between the two factions and save the Butte local. Moyer, the Western Federation leader, announced these resignations, hoping to forestall action by the seceders. The Western Federation of Miners has contracts with the mine owners whereby it has the power to say who may be lowered into the mines, and its agent has the power to order any engineer to refuse to lower any men he may point out. The seceders from the Butte local union are fighting against this card system of the Western Federation and also refuse to pay the strike assessments imposed by the federation.

NEAR A RIOT OVER ETTOR.

Leader's Trial Postponed, but I. W. W. Causes Disorder.

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, June 23.—Several thousand striking miners gathered today at Dillon Vale, near here, to be present at the trial of Joseph Ettor, the Industrial Worker of the World leader, on a charge of assault and battery, but the charge was withdrawn and his hearing on a charge of inciting to riot, which grew out of a recent Industrial Workers of the World demonstration, was continued until Thursday.

Disorders occurred when I. W. W. adherents jeered a union miner speaker, but the outbreak was not serious. Sheriff W. G. Huscroft and a squad of deputies were on hand to prevent trouble.

The Industrial Workers held a parade today, carrying the American flag ahead of their banner by order of the authorities.

BARNES IS OUT FOR ROOT.

Calder Says Senator Assured Him He Wouldn't Run Again.

Republican State Chairman William Barnes yesterday came out strongly for the renomination of Elihu Root for United States Senator from this State.

"Political conditions at Washington have demonstrated, if demonstration were necessary," said Mr. Barnes, "that men of experience, judgment, and intelligent patriotism are required. The Democratic Administration at Washington has not hesitated to discriminate against the people of the State of New York and show its antipathy toward them in many matters. Senator Root is needed. There can be no other candidate."

Mr. Barnes added, in reply to a question, that Senator Root had not publicly announced at any time that he would not be a candidate. Mr. Root will be in the city to-day. The candidacy of Congressman William Calder of Kings, who has openly declared himself an aspirant for the nomination, Mr. Barnes declined to discuss. It is not regarded as likely, however, that even with Mr. Root out of the race, Congressman Calder would have the support of Mr. Barnes or any considerable number of the Republican leaders. Ex-Speaker James W. Wadsworth of the Assembly, it is believed, would be the man to whom the leaders would turn, were Mr. Root to retire.

Mr. Calder said yesterday that he had not consented to become a candidate until he had been assured directly by Mr. Root that he would not run.

ARREST IN JEWEL ROBBERY.

Photographer Accused of Receiving Gems Worth $10,000.

Charged with receiving $10,000 worth of jewels which were stolen on May 30 from the home of Mrs. William G. Shaeffer, wife of a Pottsville, Penn., coal operator, Robert Johnson, a photographer of 153 West 102d Street, was arrested last evening at Broadway and Fulton Street by Detectives Brown and Londrigan of the Second Inspection District. He was locked up in the Greenwich Avenue Station.

The police of this city first got a trace of part of the stolen gems on Thursday afternoon, when they arrested Enrico Canonico of 185 Bleecker Street while he was attempting to pawn a diamond and amethyst pendant in a shop at 91 Park Row. Magistrate Herbert in the Tombs Court held Canonico on a short affidavit charging him with suspicion of receiving stolen goods. Bail was fixed at $2,500.

Canonico, who said he was a jewel salesman, told the police he bought the pendant from a man on the Bowery for $40, but on inquiry at the address given by him no trace of such a person was found. Canonico was sent to the Tombs for examination on June 26.

The police shadowed Johnson for an hour prior to his arrest. When he was searched at the Greenwich Street police station, they said, they found pawn tickets calling for pledged goods worth $10,000, including a brooch containing diamonds and forty-five pearls, and also a diamond-studded gold watch. Johnson denied that he had any knowledge of doing anything criminal. He said, according to the police, that he had agreed with a man to pawn this jewelry, and that he did not know any of it had been stolen.

PARIS POSTMEN RIOT SEIZE POST OFFICE

Bombard Police from Windows with Stones and Knock Several of Them Senseless.

HOLD FORT TILL MIDNIGHT

Enraged Because of Senate's Failure to Include Increased Allowances in Postal Budget.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 23.—Excitement among employes of the Central Post Office at the Senate's delay in passing a measure designed to improve their working conditions led to an amazing demonstration when the office closed this evening.

It had been expected that some disorder might occur, and 500 policemen had been assembled; but the postmen suddenly appeared at the windows of an upper floor and bombarded the police with stones until several of them were stretched unconscious on the ground.

Meanwhile other postmen had unharnessed the horses from the vans which were about to take out the mails for delivery, and the courtyard gateway had been barricaded by a heavy postal van. The police freed the gates, whereupon the postmen barricaded themselves in the Post Office, where they detained many sacks of mail which ought to have been delivered in Paris during the evening. They also prevented the departure of the provincial mails, and it was estimated that at least a million postal packets were being detained.

At 11 o'clock M. Gaston Thomson, the Minister of Commerce, arrived on the scene and harangued them from the street, amid a din of yells and shrieks from the besieged postmen, who hurled imprecations and shook their fists at him.

Finally, however, the insurgents became tired, and about midnight left the building.

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, June 23.—The disaffected postmen, after their first riotous outbreak at 5 o'clock this evening, grew rapidly in numbers and violence. The men sang revolutionary hymns, jeered the authorities, and continued to hold the Post Office against all attempts to dislodge them.

The trouble arose over the refusal of the Senate in the afternoon to include in the postal budget certain increased allowances, in favor of which there has been a strong agitation for some time past. The Minister of Commerce, Gaston Thomson, accompanied by the Prefect of Police, Célestin Hennion, appeared on the scene and sought to induce the men to withdraw. He pointed out that the Senate had voted an increase in their salaries to the amount of 12,000,000 francs ($2,400,000) and that the Government favored the extra allowances, and he implored them to trust him to look after their interests. The Minister's words had little effect and he was constantly interrupted.

Finally about midnight the men left, having accomplished their purpose of completely paralyzing the mail service of the city from 5 o'clock.

SOLD GASOLINE FOR OIL.

Many Explosions Follow Oil Company's Error in Newark.

Oil explosions, resulting in minor injuries and small fires in Newark in the past two days, have been investigated by Capt. C. Albert Gasser, head of the Bureau of Combustibles, who discovered yesterday that a driver for the Texas Company had been selling gasoline for kerosene.

An unusual number of fire alarms were from a certain district, accompanied by calls for ambulance surgeons to dress burns, and Capt. Gasser sent Frederick Herzid, an inspector, to investigate. He found that there had been a number of lamp and stove explosions.

Rudolph Wittalish and his 15-months-old baby, of 71 West Street, were burned when an oil stove exploded. Mrs. Amois Kelody of 66 West Street, whose lamp exploded, was burned slightly. The oil stove of Mrs. Daniel Zellar of the same address blew up, set fire to the room and burned her. At Mrs. Christian Samm's, 162 Court Street, a lamp exploded and burned her hands. Mrs. Henry Colton, 50 West Street, bought oil for sanitary purposes and it exploded. Robert Foster, 53 West Street, filled three lamps. The first one he lighted blew up and set fire to his house. Mrs. Thomas Scracka, 47 West Street, and Mrs. Richard Wright, 59 West Street, were burned by lamp explosions.

Inspector Herzid's investigation showed that all these persons bought oil from Abraham Balsam, a grocer of 58 West Street. Balsam showed that gasoline had been put into his oil tank, and said he bought it from the Texas Company.

Capt. Gasser went to the Texas Company's headquarters at 31 Pearl Street and found that gasoline had been run into some of the kerosene tanks used for delivery to grocers. It is thought that a new employe made the mistake.

SAYS HER HUSBAND IS GAY.

Mrs. Frankel, Suing, Alleges Association with Other Women.

Mrs. Elizabeth Frankel, of 569 Boulevard, Rockaway Beach, has sued her husband, Arthur M. Frankel, a contractor and garage owner of Rockaway Beach, for separation.

Mrs. Frankel says her husband has an income of from $10,000 to $15,000 a year, but has given her no money since Dec. 1. She says she has been compelled to open a shop to support herself. Her complaint alleges many instances of his association with other women, none of whom, however, are named.

She alleges cruel and inhuman treatment and one of the happenings she mentions in support of the charge is that her husband celebrated their nineteenth wedding anniversary by entertaining several women at Valley Stream while she was at home nursing injuries she received in a beating he gave her before he started on the outing.

Frankel makes a general denial, and also says his wife neglected him and that she refuses to turn over to him a piece of property worth $25,000 that he owns, but purchased in her name.

NEW PORTUGUESE CABINET.

Machado Premier, Foreign Minister, and Minister of Interior.

LISBON, June 23.—The Portuguese Cabinet, under the Premiership of Bernardino Machado, was today reconstructed as follows:

Premier, Minister of the Interior, and Minister of Foreign Affairs—Bernardino Machado.
Minister of Justice—Manoel Monteiro.
Minister of Finance—Santos Lucas.
Minister of War—Gen. Antonio Pereira d'Eca.
Minister of Marine—Peres Rodriguez.
Minister of Public Works—Almeida Lima.
Minister of the Colonies—Couceiro Costa.

COLONEL HOLDS OUT, MOOSE STILL HOPE

practical unanimity among the Progressives in the towns he visited that the Progressives should go it alone under any circumstances, and that Col. Roosevelt should be the candidate.

Mr. Wilkinson told his friends that in his opinion the Colonel would be elected by 200,000 majority should he run. The investigations made and straw ballots taken in different towns had convinced him, he said, that the Colonel, in addition to the Progressive vote cast for Oscar S. Straus in 1912 would get 25 per cent. of the vote cast for Hedges, the Republican candidate, and 30 per cent. of the vote cast for Sulzer in the Democratic column, in the same year.

"I am authorized to speak only for Erie County," said Chauncey J. Hamlin at the Waldorf last night. "I shall see the Colonel on Thursday, and will tell him then on behalf not only of the Progressives but on behalf of a great many independent Republicans and a great many independent Democrats there that it is their desire that he run for Governor this Fall."

No boisterous welcome is awaiting the Colonel. There will be no brass bands and no delegation of leades down the bay to meet the Colonel. At Quarantine Mrs. Roosevelt, George W. Perkins, and Theodore Douglas Robinson plan to meet the Colonel and take him to Oyster Bay on the yacht of William H. Childs, a Brooklyn Progressive.

CHAIRMAN BARNES WARNS.

Says Roosevelt Candidacy Merely Means Continued Murphy Rule.

On the eve of Col. Roosevelt's homecoming, Republican State Chairman William Barnes yesterday made public copies of a three-column editorial which appeared yesterday in his newspaper, The Albany Evening Journal. In this editorial the flat statement is made, with figures to support it, that the only way to defeat the Democratic State ticket this Fall is for voters to support the Republican ticket, and that even if Col. Roosevelt himself should become the Progressive candidate for Governor, the result would be the reinstatement in power of what the Colonel himself has characterized as "he malign and baleful influence of the Murphy machine" in the administration of the State.

In the editorial the prediction that Col. Roosevelt will not dare to run for Governor on the Progressive ticekt is made.

"That it is Mr. Roosevelt's desire to be the Republican candidate for President in 1916 is known to every well-informed citizen of the United States," the editorial says, "and that therefore he will guide his course in the furtherance of that ambition. He knows that his candidacy for Governor might bring about the election of a Democratic candidate, that he would then be charged with having done again what he did in 1912, and that his hopes at a Republican primary after he had re-established the Democracy in New York would probably be nil."

The editorial begins by reciting some of the circumstances under which the Progressive Party was formed in 1912, and then reviews party history. Then it continues:

As soon as Mr. Roosevelt discovered that in pursuit of his personal ambition to occupy the Presidency for a longer period than any one of his illustrious predecessors had occupied it he would not be supported except by an insignificant number of the delegates to the national convention elected by the Republicans in the State of New York at a direct primary, the flood gates of abuse were opened by him and his associates against what they termed the Barnes machine, regardless of the fact that fully one-half of the delegates in this State opposed to Mr. Roosevelt's ambitions had not been in any way associated with Mr. Barnes politically, and most of them were to him unknown.

When Mr. Roosevelt determined in 1912 that, as he could not rule, he would attempt to ruin the Republican Party, he insisted upon running a candidate for Governor and a full State ticket, thereby bringing about the election of Mr. Sulzer and the rest of the Democratic State officers, which resulted in the embroiling of the State in a controversy which was the most humiliating experience to which the people of the State of New York had ever been subjected.

The question is how can the Democratic organization or machine, or Mr. Murphy and his associates, or Mr. Murphy and Mr. Glynn and associates, or whatever else may be the proper appellation of the Democratic Party of the State, be defeated by the election in 1914?

There will be cast, roughly speaking, in this State 1,600,000 votes at the coming election. The enrollment of the political parties in the State in 1914 was: Democratic, 622,006; Republican, 522,150; National Progressive, 111,951; Prohibition, 15,725; Socialist, 31,261, and Independence League, 12,991, a total of 1,326,084.

At the election of 1913 Judge Werner, at the head of the Republican ticket, received 597,000 votes in this State and led Judge Bartlett and the Democratic ticket alone by about 35,000 votes. Judge Werner received in that off-year election only 58,000 votes less than Mr. Wilson received for President in 1912, and only 25,000 votes less than Mr. Stimson received for Governor on the Republican ticket in 1910 before the organization of the Progressive Party.

Now, with the 111,000 enrolled Progressives in this State, the organization of that party will endeavor to induce Mr. Roosevelt, regardless of his repeated refusals, to become its candidate for Governor, regardless of the 500,000 enrolled Republicans whose votes are necessary to a successful candidate.

There is no reason to suppose that a man who voted against Mr. Roosevelt in 1912 for President, and for Mr. Taft, is prepared today to take into serious consideration the former's candidacy for the Governorship, provided that the Republicans nominate a fit and capable man for the office of Governor on primary day, Sept. 28.

Some Republicans in this State may thoughtlessly, in the hope of a victory, be willing to let bygones be bygones and to deliver the Republican Party into the hands of Mr. Roosevelt in order to secure the votes of those who have no faith in either the Republican Party or the things for which it stands. There is a natural desire of the politician to love success at the polls, but no political party was ever worthy of its salt which gave up a principle in order to win an election. The entire record of the Republican Party has been one of courage and devotion to its beliefs. When it becomes purely an office-seeking organization and is willing to lick the hand that struck it, it may remain an organization of pusillanimous cowards, but as a great organization of thought and intelligent purpose it will disappear.

These clean-cut truths are manifest:

First—That there is no way under the direct primary law whereby any leader or several leaders can deliver 500,000 enrolled Republicans of this State to any scheme, combination, dicker, or deal.

Second—That there is but one way to defeat the Democratic ticket, and that is for the voters who desire so to do to vote the Republican ticket.

Third—That the only effect of the Progressive nomination for Governor may be to keep in power what Mr. Roosevelt calls "the malign and baleful influence of the Murphy machine."

gine by turning the propeller. For some reason the engine was slow in starting, although in its trial on shore a few minutes before the propellers had raised a small hurricane and blown off numbers of straw hats. When the engine had been balking for several minutes, La Monte and Robinson jumped out of the launch and swam for the airboat. They lent a hand to Hallett, the starboard propellers began to whirl, and at 3:28 the America was moving on its own power.

Swift Dash with Five Aboard.

With only the starboard engine in operation, the America swung around in a wide semi-circle. It was heading for the shore, about 100 feet from where it was launched, when the three men started the second engine. Then the America began to show her heels. With both propellors roaring behind her and three tracks of boiling water, foam and spray produced by the rudder and the skids at the end of the two lower wings, the flier began to speed over the smooth lake. After a dash of about a mile one set of propellors stopped, and the airboat made a swift circle. It was not ready to fly yet, because it had five men aboard, the airboat having started off at too lively a clip to permit La Monte and Robinson to jump off after they had cranked the engine. La Monte weighs considerably over 200 pounds.

After a run of about a mile and a half the America stopped. A small launch with a load of photographers made toward it and picked up the airboat's superfluous passengers after they had dived off in their overalls and blouses. The crowd on shore thought the America had met with an accident, and was receiving help from the motorboat. Many whose nerves were worn by a long vigil on the hottest day Hammondsport had seen this year became pessimistic. Some said they had predicted it would end up with an accident and that they knew the America would be a failure.

A few seconds after it had reduced its ship's company, however, the airboat's engines began to thunder. It shot through the water for a hundred yards, then climbed out into the air, and flew, skimming the surface of the lake. It was lost in the shadow of a green hill that juts into the lake on the east, but in a few minutes its long, scarlet lines reappeared in the sunlight over the blue lake. Occasionally it swung out of its course and cut sharp curves. Many watching from the shore with field glasses said that one propeller had stopped or slowed and diagnosed it as engine trouble, but in reality Curtiss was experimenting upon one of the untried features of aeroplane construction embodied in the America.

The two engines, of 100 horsepower each, are placed on either side of the centre of the airboat. When they run together the equilibrium of the boat is maintained, but when one is running and the other dead, it would naturally send the craft in a circle. Curtiss believes, however, that the rudder and ailerons, or movable wing extensions, can be controlled so that the boat will steer dead ahead with only one engine running. Curtiss kept the boat's head on the course today while one propeller was making 850 revolutions a minute and the other was making 750. His experiments did not prove that the America could be manoeuvred on one of its engines, but he is still confident that his theory is correct.

Joined by Smaller Airboat.

Francis S. Wildman took flight from the hangars in the airboat of the Curtiss School for Aviators, soared over the giant red flyer and then dropped down beside it, the two flying back together like a linnet and a hawk. A flotilla of motor boats, canoes, and rowboats were scattered all over the lake by their efforts to keep within distance of the flyers. Finally the America came back toward the hangar, haunted by its crimson reflection in the water below. Near the Curtiss hangars it changed back into its secondary character as a boat. With the cabin riding high out of the water and the racket growing less furious, it came up to the shore. Through the celluloid windows of the cabin Curtiss and Lieut. Porte could be seen waving their hands in response to congratulations upon their successful flight.

For a craft that is said to be the last word in the newest science and that is embarked on one of the most ambitious of adventures, the America made its trial flight in a curiously pastoral setting. The Curtiss aviation field is in its primary sense a pasture, and a dozen good milch cows browsed there tranquilly during the flight near the reeds on the edge of the water. Only three or four miles of the narrow lake are in sight before the low hills seem to cross it and cut off twenty miles of its length. The slopes on each side of the lake are covered with a crazy-quilt pattern of vineyards, as each small farm is totally different in shape from all the rest, and has its grapes running in rows of an entirely new angle.

Hammondsport lies a few hundred feet from the aviation field, but it is almost entirely painted out of the picture by the forest of green trees on its streets. Only the dock, two weather-beaten church steeples, and part of the new school are visible. Except the airboats the only non-rural touch was that supplied by the three moving-picture cameras firing from the roof of the Curtiss hangars.

Curtiss stayed on shore on the second trip, and a 100-pound sack of cement and the 200-pound James La Monte were taken aboard to counteract the America's tendency to soar. On the second flight there was no trouble in starting the engines. As the airboat lifted itself from the water and swung past the Hammondsport water front, it flew near the little white lake steamer Yates, which saluted it with a blast.

Rose to Height of 60 Feet.

On the second flight, Lieut. Porte sailed for a while at a height of sixty feet, but spent most of the time putting the America to the simplest test of four or five feet over the water.

The America demonsrated that it was of tough and sturdy build in spite of its frail appearance. Hardly a tremor could be detected at the tips of its wings during the tremendous volleying of its two engines, and the rest of the structure was as steady as if it had been of steel construction instead of light wood and silk.

Three changes will be made in the near future, Glenn Curtiss said, probably before another trial flight. The windows will be cut larger in order to enable the pilot to see more of the wings. An elevator or hydroplane board will be fitted to the America, to enable her to climb more easily out of the water. The wing control will be made more sensitive to the touch, and will be changed so it can be operated by the pilot's hand instead of by his foot.

Lieut. Towers, chief of the aeroplane service for the navy, visited Hammondsport and saw the trials. He had been chosen originally to pilot the America on her transatlantic flight, and was forced to decline because his services were required in Mexico. It was rumored that he was to accompany Lieut. Porte on the America's ocean trip, but Lieut. Towers said there was no possibility of this. He said that he was in Hammondsport on naval duty, having been assigned here to study developments in aeronautical science embodied in the America.

Another airboat was launched here today—the Betty V., owned by Victor Vernon of Syracuse, who has been taking lessons in airboat flying here for six weeks.

JULY BEST MONTH FOR FLIGHT

Captains of Transatlantic Liners Discuss Airboat America's Trip.

Capt. A. E. Hambleton of the White Star liner Celtic, who has navigated in the latitude of the Azores more than a quarter of a century, said yesterday that July was the best month for an aeroplane flight, as the weather was almost invariably fine.

With regard to a flight from Newfoundland to the Azores the Captain said Lieut. Porte would have to depend upon his compass and correct his bearings by the sun and stars because it would be practically impossible to get a relible observation from the airship on account of the vibration and the altitude.

"There are nine islands in the Azores group," the Captain added, "and that gives Lieut. Porte a chance. Pico has a mountain more than 7,000 feet high, which is snow-capped and can be seen for fifty miles on a clear day. This would be a guide to him in making the land."

Capt. Hambleton was surprised that the route from Newfoundland to Ireland had not been selected, because it was right in the track of the liners from New York, Canada, Boston, and Philadelphia, while on the southern track to the Mediterranean there were very few ships in Summer.

Capt. Daniel Dow of the Cunarder Lusitania, which sailed yesterday for Liverpool, said that the winds in the region of the Azores at this season were light and blew either from east or west. Lieut. Porte could use a gyroscopic compass in his airship to steer by, as it would not be affected by the vibration or the metal in the engine. These compasses were used in torpedoes, he said, and were placed right aft next to the ballast chamber and close by the twin propellers revolving different ways without affecting them in any way.

"Porte ought to cross the Atlantic steamship lanes in 45 west longitude," said Capt. Dow, "and strike the track of the Mediterranean steamers about 200 miles west of the Island of Corvo, which is the farthest west of the Azores group."

The Captain added that the chain of islands extended about 300 miles and there should be no difficulty in making Fayal. There was a possibility of flying between that island and St. Michael's, he said, as they were about 150 miles apart.

NILES AMAZES ARMY MEN.

Gives Startling Exhibition with Aeroplane Over New York Bay.

Charles S. Niles gave an exhibition of flying yesterday afternoon at Governors Island before the Mayor's Fourth of July Aviation Committee and a great number of army officers and ladies.

He was in the air for thirty-five minutes, and made several manoeuvres that have never been attempted before. Using seven times, turning full loops each time; he did the spiral drop, in which the course of the machine describes a letter "S" a number of times; he did the "roll," or wing-over-wing drop, which resembles a tumbler pigeon falling, and after flying head down for more than 3,500 feet, he showed his mastery of the plane by recovering from a wing-over-wing drop and climbing more than 2,000 feet in great circles, with the wings almost perpendicular to the earth. It is said that this has never been done before.

The flight was scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock, but owing to members of the Mayor's committee being delayed, it was put off until 3:30. By that time several hundred were grouped about the machine on the parade grounds.

Niles came to the machine with Brig. Gen. Robert H. Evans, his son, Lieut. Ralph Evans, and Col. Hahn, commandant of Governors Island. Gen. Evans was much interested in the machine and S. S. Jerwan, instructor at the Moissant Aviation School, explained its parts and how the Gnome engine worked. Gen. Evans asked what gave the engine its "kick," and when this was explained, made the observation that "the engine is a kind of a turbine, isn't it?" Then Jerwan gave a demonstration of the controls, and after this Niles was ready for the flight.

A number of volunteers held the tail until the engine gathered speed and the wind from the propeller blew their hats off at great speed; two of them landed in the bay, to the delight of the crowd.

A moment later Niles gave the word to let go. The machine ran about sixty feet and then left the ground. The wind was blowing from Brooklyn, and Niles sailed right into it until he was over that city, and then began to sweep around over the East River and to circle Governors Island. He sailed higher and higher until over Ellis Island he had attained a height of about 1,500 feet. The plane then pitched forward, and Niles looped the loop twice, straightened out and did the spiral drop, and finally righted himself a little way above the water. The spectators gasped as he seemed to fall, but the easy, certain way in which the plane swung back to an even keel reassured them.

Niles then began to climb again, and by the time he had reached the Hudson River on his circuit was ready for more "stunts." This time he had reached an altitude of more than 2,000 feet. He started by looping the loop twice, then when he reached an even keel allowed the machine to slide backward, or do a "tail dive." From this position he rolled over, and then flew about 1,000 feet head down. This was received with cheers by the watchers on Governors Island and the great crowds that had gathered at Battery Park. After righting himself, he swung around and started to climb again, and when above Brooklyn had reached his favorite altitude of about 2,000 feet.

Niles swung the plane about and as he reached the East River looped the loop twice. Then he dived head first for a short distance, righted himself only to roll over wing-and-wing. By this time he was over Manhattan Island. The wing-and-wing evolution tapered off into a short spiral, which ended with Niles flying upside down. He flew by the Woolworth tower, within 200 feet of it and about 100 feet below its top, still head down, and righted himself over the Hudson.

On his last circuit of Governors Island, Niles dropped 1,000 feet head down, starting over Manhattan and turned over and flew head down, righting himself by the time he had reached the Statue of Liberty. He poised for a moment over the statue and then fell end over end in a great "S" and then flew upside down until he reached the parade ground. Here he righted the machine, made several short spirals and landed softly and without mishap.

Gen. Evans was one of the first to reach him and helped him out of the machine, and congratulated him warmly. "It was the most wonderful flight I have ever seen," Gen. Evans said, "and I must thank you in the name of the army for this demonstration. The way you handled that machine brings home to me the fact that our army has practically no aeroplanes and shows me that we would be powerless in a war with any up-to-date power. We ought to have 1,000 aeroplanes and 2,000 aviators in training. Then we would never need to fear any one." Gen. Evans then introduced Mrs. Evans, Col. Mills, and Mrs. Mills to Niles and they congratulated him.

Col. Mills asked Niles about the conditions for the flight, and the aviator said that there were good.

"The wind was steady," he said, "and had a velocity of only about thirty-five miles. It was not at all cold; in fact, I was quite warm, particularly over the city. Of course I did not fly over Manhattan intentionally. It happened that I was spiraling when the wind caught me, and I had to chose between making a dangerous turn or flying over the office buildings. I would not have done so purposely, as it is against the Aero Club rules. The hardest evolution I performed today was the over-and-over roll. This is dangerous because you are tempted to keep on rolling, and as you are falling all the time, you are likely to strike something."

John M. Shaw, Chairman of the Mayor's Fourth of July Aviation Committee, talked with Niles about the races for that day. Niles said he did not think he could fly, as he had another engagement. With Mr. Shaw were Howard Henry, Duncan Leverich, William Robinson, John C. Williams, Charles Trippe, Leopold Warburg, and Frederick S. Flower, all members of the committee.

Brig. Gen. Evans was accompanied by Major Cannon, Major Lorton, Col. Hahn, Col. Mills, and their staffs.

Alfred J. Moissant, manager of the Moissant Aviation School at Hempstead, L. I., said the exhibition had been given for educational purposes. "We wanted to show that a monoplane is as safe as an automobile," he said, "when it is handled by an experienced aviator. Niles's flight today, when he did everything that can be done with such a machine, and did it with perfect safety, has been a revelation to the army officers here, and I think it will go a long way toward getting the army men to induce Congress to set aside money for the Army Aviation Corps."

The machine in which Niles flew is a Bleriot monoplane, with a Gnome engine of 50 horse power. The wings are 28 feet from tip to tip and the body from rudder to propeller is 24 feet. Niles weighed 148 pounds and the machine less than 600, so that the whole affair weighed about 725 pounds when flying. He carried 5½ gallons of gasoline, which is enough to sustain flight for an hour and a quarter. For lubricating castor oil was used. The average speed was between 60 and 70 miles an hour, although in some of the evolutions the 'plane fell at twice that rate.

Niles will leave Governors Island today at about 3 P. M., and will fly back to Hempstead, L. I. He has promised that he will not fly over the city unless the wind is so strong that he cannot help it.

INJURY TO EMPRESS CANNOT BE LEARNED

Lying on Her Damaged Side in Fifteen Feet of Mud, Wreck Commission Is Told.

CHARGE OF LOCKED DOORS

Captain and Chief Steward Deny That Second Cabin Passengers Were Caught in the Lounge.

Special to The New York Times.

QUEBEC, June 23.—The probability is that the precise character and extent of the damage sustained by the wrecked Empress of Ireland in her collision with the collier Storstad in the St. Lawrence River never will be definitely established. This was indicated in evidence given by William Weatherspoon of New York, who has been in charge of diving operations on the scene of the wreck on behalf of the Quebec Salvage Company and the principal witness at today's session of the wreck inquiry commission instituted by the Canadian Government, and presided over by Lord Mersey. The committee today began the second week of the investigation and present indications are that two more days or so will suffice to bring the investigation to a close.

It was in reply to a question by Mr. Newcombe, the representative of the Dominion Government, that Mr. Weatherspoon made the statement which indicated that the exact nature of the damage caused to the Empress would remain unknown.

"The Empress is lying on her starboard side in about fifteen feet of mud," said Mr. Weatherspoon, "and in my opinion any attempt to ascertain the character of the damage would be a very hazardous if not an impossible undertaking."

The witness added that the Empress was covered by seventy-five feet of water at low tide and that at the spot where the vessel lay the tide and current of the river ran about two and a half knots an hour, making diving operations somewhat difficult and dangerous.

Another interesting episode in today's proceedings arose out of a letter addressed to Lord Mersey by some unknown person containing allegations to the effect that on the night of the disaster there were no night watchmen on duty in the second cabin of the Empress; that after the collision about 300 women and children found themselves in the second-class lounge with the doors locked and that there was no one to break open the doors and enable them to escape.

In handing the letter to Mr. Newcombe, the representative of the Dominion Government, Lord Mersey said it seemed to him that it might be worth whole to investigate the truth of the statements which it contained. The investigation and refutation of the assertions made in the letter occupied only a very few minutes.

Capt. Kendall, recalled to the stand, stated that the regulations of the ship provided for half-hourly reports to the bridge as to whether everything was all correct below, and the report "All correct" was brought to the bridge half an hour before the collision.

Mr. Newcombe—Is it possible that the doors leading to the decks from the second class lounge could have been locked? Capt. Kendall—It is not possible. They were never locked.

Q.—Then there is no foundation whatever for the statements contained in the letter? A.—Not the least.

Early in the sitting Capt. Walsh, the Marine Superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, answered a number of questions regarding the company's regulations for the management of the Empress of Ireland, the arrangements for dealing with occasions of emergency, the number and character of the lifeboats, lifebelts, and other such matters, and he testified that everything was in perfect order.

Replying to Lord Mersey, Capt. Walsh said that the lifebelts in the cabins were easily accessible to the passengers, that they were not tied up in any way, and they could be adjusted in a few moments.

Mr. Haight asked Capt. Walsh a number of questions as to the chief qualification an officer must possess to secure promotion in the marine service of the company, and seemed to hint that the ability to make rapid voyages was the chief test. Capt. Walsh denied this, and pointed out that the most careful instructions were given to Captains not to take risks.

He said that the command of the Empress of Ireland was the most important captaincy in the Canadian Pacific Railway service, and he admitted that there were many men in the service who were older than Capt. Kendall, who is only 39. Capt. Kendall, he said, attained his position by general efficiency.

Evidence that the watertight doors of the Empress were promptly closed was given by James Rankin, an engineer, who was a first-class passenger. He said he was awakened by the collision and immediately afterward he heard the working of the gear which closed the watertight doors. It was this fact which made him realize the seriousness of the collision, and he at once left this berth and put on a life belt. He added that the officers and crew of the Empress did everything in their power, and that the discipline was good.

Keep Young while growing Old—

AFTER all, youth is often more a matter of nerves than of years. You see that proven almost every day—this man of thirty, nerves wrecked and old before his time—that man, sixty but bright-eyed, sprightly because he kept his nerves youthful.

It is in this care of the nerves that Sanatogen is of such signal service. For to the hungry nerves, impoverished by overdrafts, illness, worries and neglect, Sanatogen brings just the foods they must have for speedy restoration to health—pure albumen and organic phosphorus in easily taken-up form.

And by thus nourishing the weakened nerve-cells and tissues, Sanatogen helps bring back the ease of digestion, the restful slumber and the vigorous health of youth.

And you—if the enthusiastic letters of 19,000 physicians and the grateful praise of scores of noted people—if that testimony means anything—you will not long delay giving Sanatogen its opportunity to help you.

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere in three sizes from $1.00 up.

John Burroughs, the distinguished naturalist and author, writes: "I am sure I have been greatly benefited by Sanatogen. My sleep is fifty per cent. better than it was one year ago, and my mind and strength are much improved."

Arnold Bennett, the famous novelist, writes: "The tonic effect of Sanatogen on me is simply wonderful."

CALL VILLA PERIL TO NEW PEACE PLAN

Niagara Conferees Think a Break with Carranza Now Would Hurt Negotiations.

EXPECT REBEL DELEGATES

Despite Carranza Official's Assertion That Chief Won't Agree to Informal Conferences.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, June 23.—Although rumors were current here today that the Constitutionalists had not agreed to send representatives to the proposed informal conferences here with the American and Huerta delegates under the agreement, detailed in a Niagara Falls dispatch, published in THE TIMES today, the understanding among most of those concerned in the mediation movement, is that assurances have been given by Gen. Carranza that he will permit his emissaries to take part in "conversations" with the representatives of the United States and the Huerta Government.

This understanding existed at the meeting yesterday of the A B C mediators and the American delegates, and at the subsequent session, when the Mexican delegates consented tentatively to meet the representatives of Gen. Carranza.

For this reason there is a disposition here to question the authority for the statement made by Capt. Breceda, Carranza's private secretary, in an interview at New Orleans, that Gen. Carranza will refuse to permit his agents to confer with the Huerta delegates. Such statements, it is inferred, are based on declarations of Carranza, made prior to the new proposal for bringing the Constitutionalists into the peace movement.

At the same time there is an undercurrent of fear among those interested in the success of the mediation effort that an open break may come between Carranza and Villa and cause doubt to arise as to who is the head of the Mexican revolutionists. Should Villa repudiate Carranza as "Supreme Chief," the question of the advisability of receiving Carranza delegates here would be brought up and might cause serious embarrassment and delay.

The Mexican delegates here have shown no disposition to raise obstacles along that line, but today they posted a bulletin in the Clifton Hotel, in which they said that they were advised that Gen. Carranza had issued an "order of the day," dismissing Gen. Angeles from the Carranza Cabinet. To this was added:

"Gen. Angeles continues to be Villa's candidate for the Presidency. Villa has received many congratulations from sympathizers for the stand he has taken against Carranza."

In spite of such reports and the latest communication of Gen. Carranza, those in the mediation circle say that their understanding still is that Carranza delegates will come to Niagara Falls to hold informal discussions with the delegates of President Wilson and Gen. Huerta. Carranza's objection to allowing his delegates to take part in the peace parleys has been met by the decision to confine the oral exchanges between the delegates of President Wilson, Gen. Huerta, and Gen. Carranza to informal sessions without conditions. His objection to having American delegates participate in discussions of Mexico's internal affairs will be overcome by having the conferences on this phase of the situation limited to the two sets of Mexican delegates.

Some uncertainty exists as to whether the mediators will declare a recess of the peace conference while the American, Huerta, and Carranza delegates are engaged in their parleys. It is likely that at least one of the mediators will remain here, ready to offer his good offices, if requested to do so. If a formal conference tomorrow or next day disposes of the protocols of agreements already reached, one or two of the mediators may leave Niagara Falls temporarily.

At the suggestion of the American delegates the proposed conference between all the parties to the mediation negotiations was not held today as had been planned. The American delegates asked postponement on the ground that they were waiting for instructions from their Government. It is supposed that these instructions relate to the agreements which have been reached between the two sets of delegates.

While there was no conference today, Dr. Naon took a long motor trip with Justice Lamar and Mr. Lehman, the American delegates, during which the participation of the Constitutionalists in the peace movement was discussed.

Responsibility Put on Mexicans.

By The Associated Press.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, June 23.—The signing of protocols within a day or two, practically settling the international dispute between the United States and Mexico on the condition that a provisional government be established, which the United States can recognize, is expected to serve as an incentive to the representatives of the two Mexican factions to reach an agreement on personnel. Upon them will be put the responsibility of making or breaking the peace programme.

The protocols will be published, perhaps on Thursday. One will set forth that within a stated period after the day the United States recognizes the new Government, American forces shall be withdrawn from Vera Cruz and hostilities shall be declared suspended between the United States and Mexico. Another will include a declaration by the United States that it desires no indemnity for expenditures resulting from seizure of Vera Cruz, but asks only the establishment of a provisional government that can guarantee international as well as national obligations. The naming of a commission to deal with claims growing out of the revolution will be arranged.

Definite information is lacking as to when the Constitutionalist delegates will arrive here. In some quarters there is still doubt about final arrangements for the informal conferences. Most of the negotiations have been carried on through Louis Cabrera, one of the Constitutionalist representatives in Washington, with whom Dr. Naon talked while in the national capital.

Dr. Naon seemed much displeased today with the publication of reports concerning the proposed meeting of Constitutionalist and Huerta delegates and it was believed that he himself was not altogether sanguine of the success of the plan which he was instrumental in promoting.

Whether the new commission now coming from Carranza represents his personal interests is not known, but the mediators have good reason to believe that Gen. Villa is in sympathy with the efforts of the United States to effect a settlement of the Mexican embroglio through diplomatic channels and that the delegates will have the support of Villa in whatever they negotiate.

SAYS CARRANZA WON'T ACCEPT

His Secretary Makes a Positive Statement in New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, June 23.—Carranza will not accept the invitation to send representatives to meet informally with Huerta agents, according to a statement made here today by Alfredo Breceda, private secretary of Gen. Carranza, who is a member of the new commission which the Constitutionalist chief is sending to Washington.

"Carranza is firm in his attitude that he will not treat with Huerta except on the battlefield," Breceda said through an interpreter. "We are on a very important mission to Washington of which we cannot talk, but it is not to meet representatives of Huerta, formally or informally."

That the Commissioners intended to be fully informed of the situation at Washington and Niagara Falls was indicated by the arrival today direct from Washington of J. F. Urquidi, secretary of the Constitutionalist representatives in Washington, who delivered the Carranza note to the mediation conference at Niagara Falls. Urquidi said he was in New Orleans on another mission and would probably leave tomorrow.

ESTEVA RUIZ NON-COMMITTAL.

Refers Inquirer About Conference to the Call of Extra Session.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 23.—Señor Esteva Ruiz, the Acting Secretary of Foreign Relations, when a dispatch in regard to the proposed informal meeting of the Huerta delegates with the Carranza delegates at Niagara Falls was shown him today, declined to make any statement, but referred the correspondent to the terms of the call convening the extra session of Congress.

The call says that the extra sessions may have to discuss internal questions relating to the political pacification of the country.

Señor Esteva Ruiz received newspapermen tonight and conversed with them at some length. He professed, however, to be without direct news of the Niagara conference, saying:

"For two days I have received no report from our delegates at Niagara Falls. This leads me to suppose that there has been nothing of importance to communicate to me. Perhaps the mediators and delegates are drawing up a protocol, or partial conferences are still taking place. As for the conference being prolonged another month, I hardly think this can be so, for I do not see how so long a period could be necessary."

It is said that private advices reaching the city today afford hope of a successful issue of the conference.

A bulletin of the Interior Department tonight says that Major Salvador Cordero, who was Chief of Police of Tampico, and eighteen other residents of that port were executed by the rebels.

The Minister of the Interior, when asked tonight whether the elections set for July 5 would be suspended, said that so far electoral preparations continued and all the Governors of States controlled by the Government had reported that the preliminary details were complete. The Minister was asked how the elections could be held with so large a part of the republic in rebel hands. He said that was no obstacle, as the Government controlled the more populous sections of the republic.

JUNTA IS AWAITING WORD.

No Information as to Carranza's Attitude Has Reached Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Local agents of the Mexican Constitutionalists said today that there would be no conference between Carranza and Huerta delegates, informal or otherwise, without express authority from Gen. Carranza for such a conference.

Gen. Carranza has been told by Señor Rafael Zubaran, chief confidential envoy of the Constitutionalists here, of the plan for informal meetings of Carranza and Huerta delegates, but according to all the information here Gen. Carranza has given no answer yet on the matter.

A member of the junta said today in answer to a question, that Señores Zubaran and Cabrera would be willing to meet the American delegates again without instructions from Gen. Carranza, either as an act of courtesy or to answer questions, or give information, but if the American delegates should ask the Constitutionalists to meet the Huerta delegates, the Constitutionalists would have to decline to do so, unless authorized by Gen. Carranza.

Señores Luis Cabrera and José Cascoucelos, two of Carranza's designated delegates to the peace conference, have authority to go to Niagara to confer with the mediators whenever the latter will admit them on the terms of no armistice, and no discussion of Mexican internal affairs. They have no other power. Señor Zubaran has no authority to meet the Huerta delegates in any way.

Everything pertaining to the plan for informal meetings between the Constitutionalists and the Huertistas, so far as the Carranzistas here are concerned, has been put up to Gen. Carranza, and, it is said here, that he now has the matter under consideration.

The members of the new Carranza mission to Washington, Señores Fernando Iglesias Calderon, Leopoldo Hurtado Espineza, and Capt. Breceda, who were expected here tonight, will not now reach Washington before Thursday, having stopped off for a day at New Orleans. They were met at New Orleans today by Señor José Francisco Urquidi of the Washington junta, who is on his way to Galveston on an undisclosed mission for the Constitutionalists. A brother, Manuel Urquidi, who was Under Secretary of Communications in the Madero Cabinet, is at Tampico or Matamoras, and it is understood that Señor Urquidi will meet him.

Says Reports of "Deep Division" from Villa Are False.

LAREDO, Texas, June 23.—A delayed dispatch from Saltillo says that all reports of alarming divisions between Gen. Carranza and Gen. Villa are false, and that the "small differences will be arranged with the highest patriotism by both sides.

This reassurance was the main part of an official statement given out in Saltillo, at Carranza's headquarters. The statement, which was issued "to the press of the United States in regard to the situation beween Gens. Carranza and Villa," received the personal approval of Gen. Carranza. It reads as follows:

"You may assure the public of the truth of the matter regarding the alleged differences between Villa and myself. All the news published to alarm public opinion in the United States and elsewhere by stating that there have been alarming and deep divisions between the forces of Gen. Villa and myself are completely and absolutely false.

"The published report that Gen. Carranza has precipitately fled from Saltillo and sought refuge along the American border is likewise pure fiction. Gen. Carranza is here in Saltillo, surrounded by a group of distinguished and trusted followers, who have the interests of his campaign at heart and are in perfect harmony with him. Perfect tranquility prevails here. There are no bellicose preparations except against the enemy of the country and civilized humanity, viz., the usurper Huerta and his associates.

"The powerful forces of Carranza, Villa, Pablo Gonzales, Obregon, Natera, and others are united perfectly in spirit and action. Their collective aspirations are to obey unconditionally in every procedure the orders of their illustrious and serious chief of state and military movements—Carranza.

"All ardently desire and the wish of the First Chief of the Constitutionalists is to create a grand, honorable, and progressive nation that will forever exist in perfect harmony and entertain the most gratifying and pleasant relations with her illustrious neighbor to the north; Carranza's ambition is a civilization such as that of the nation governed by the Hon. Woodrow Wilson.

"The small differences between Villa and Carranza will be arranged with the highest patriotism by both parties concerned. These small differences will be arranged with a patriotism which nothing nor any one can break; for all the Chiefs of the Constitutionalists possess an immense love of country, superior to everything else, and will work to the end of creating a grand nation.

VILLA HAS EXPELLED TWO CARRANZA MEN

Former Mayor of Juarez and a Customs Official Ordered Out of the Country.

CARRANZA MAKES CHANGES

Removal of Trevino and Fabela Regarded as a Victory for Villa—Rebel Reverses Near Zacatecas.

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Texas, June 23.—Despite Gen. Villa's repeated protestations of loyalty to Carranza and declarations that there has been no split, the rebel military commander continues his aggressive action against the followers of the supreme chief.

Gustavo Pedres, the former Mayor of Juarez and a Carranza appointee, was notified at 11 o'clock this morning that he must leave the country within four hours. With his family he was held up at the international bridge and told that he could not cross, as he had overstayed the prescribed period. After some parley, however, all were permitted to leave.

Juan Quesada, who was head of the Customs Department at Juarez under Carranza, has been ordered to leave the country. Despite the protests made by Carranza agents here, all the city and customs officials, arrested at Juarez when the City Government was seized, are held as prisoners at Chihuahua. Persons arriving here say that several are in jail, while others are kept under surveillance.

The removal of Gen. Trevino as Carranza's Chief of Staff, and Ysidro Fabela, Acting Minister of Foreign Relations in the Constitutionalist Cabinet, which was reported from Saltillo, was taken by revolutionists here as a victory for the Villa faction. Both men were said to have opposed Villa's southern campaign, and favored the creation of the new military zone, which blocked his progress.

Fabela took a conspicuous part in drafting Carranza's notes to the Washington Government and to Niagara Falls in connection with the mediation conference. It is predicted here that Luis Cabrera, now in Washington, will succeed him as Foreign Secretary.

It is said that Eduardo F. Hay will be the Chief of Staff, suiting both factions. Hay, now Chief of Staff to Gen. Iturbe in Sinaloa, won his spurs in the Madero revolution. He is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame.

The presence near Carranza of Hay and Cabrera would create a different attitude on the part of the rebel government, both internally and internationally, in the belief of local observers.

Heavy washouts are delaying the advance of the rebel army on Zacatecas. Railroad officials announced today that it would take a fortnight to repair the damage to bridges between Chihuahua City and Torreon. This will interfere with Villa's plans for obtaining supplies for his army during the siege.

Local Villa agents said today that they did not know Villa's whereabouts, but supposed that he had reached Fresnillo, thirty-five miles north of Zacatecas, where Gen. Natera maintained his headquarters during his unsuccessful investment of the city.

More than 5,000 cavalry have been ordered to proceed overland toward Zacatecas, presumably to shield the general movement which began with the resumption of train service.

Arturo Elias, the Huerta Consul here, gave out a telegram today from Gen. Barron, the garrison commander at Zacatecas, which said:

"News published by the press in regard to the defeat of our forces is unfounded. On the contrary, we have dealt the bandits a heavy blow. On this date (June 22) they retreated north with great losses of men and ammunition."

Persons arriving today from the south likewise assert that the reported victory of Villa's vanguard was, in fact, a repulse, and that the three previous attacks of Gen. Natera resulted in the most serious reverses yet suffered by the rebels.

VILLA PLOTTING IN SONORA.

Said to be Seekinig a Deal with Maytorena's Followers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 23.—Reports which have been received here say that Gen. Villa, on learning that differences had arisen between Gov. Maytorena of Sonora and Gen. Carranza, commissioned Col. Giron and eight others to negotiate with Maytorena's followers in Sonora and unite their forces against the Carranzistas.

It is also said that Gen. Cabeicellos, Gen. Obregon, Gen. Alvarado, and Gen. Calles have received repeated orders from Gen. Carranza to depose Maytorena at a suitable time from the Sonora Governorship, but have not done it, owing to the importance of Maytorena's following in other northern States, particularly Tamaulipas.

The War Department reports that the City of Tlaxcala was attacked yesterday by 400 rebels. After a battle of two hours the rebels were repulsed with loss, chiefly owing to the efficiency of the Federal artillery. The defense was directed by the Governor of the State, Gen. Manuel Cuellar.

It is also reported here that Federal activity against the rebels is increasing in the northern States. La Ventura, forty kilometers south of Saltillo, and Galeana, in Nuevo Leon, have been retaken by the Federals, and a revolutionary force detailed to attack San Luis Potosi has been completely defeated, losing heavily.

Newspaper men who interviewed Gen. Blanquet tonight said to him:

"It is reported that there has been sniping in the neighborhod of Vera Crux, and that the affair arose from the fact that the United States forces endeavored to improve their positions. Can you tell us anything about it?"

Gen. Blanquet's answer was that the story was not true.

Gen. Blanquet also said he had no information about the reported encounters between Gen. Orozco and the rebel forces north of Zacatecas and between Gen. Argumedo's commands and the rebels operating south of that city.

SPANISH CONSUL THREATENED.

Mexico City Hears That Tampico Rebels Ordered His Arrest.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 23.—The Interior Department's bulletins report that Señor Trapag, a Spanish Consul at Tampico, intrusted to the American Consul a cablegram to the Spanish Ambassador in Washington, in which he complained of the constant ill-treatment of Spaniards at Tampico, and that the American Consul instead of dispatching the message to its destination, delivered it to the rebels.

A copy, however, is said to have reached Vera Cruz, whence it was transmitted to Washington, and led to remedial measures being applied on President Wilson's urgent representations to the rebels. The latter, angered by this, are said to have called the Spanish colony together and given its members forty-eight hours to deliver Consul Trapaga into their hands. The result is unknown.

U. S. NEGOTIATING WITH VILLA?

Washington Has Persistent Report That He Will Accept Mediation.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Reports were revived here today that the United States was preparing to negotiate with Villa in preference to Carranza.

It has been reported that Villa informed George C. Carothers, the American Consular Agent, on June 15 that he would accept the results of the mediation conference, whether Carranza agreed to them or not. Villa, the report stated, expressed the view that such a course would be desirable in view of the peculiar temperament of the Mexican people and the ambitions of Carranza. He said Mexico had seen enough suffering and that he was ready to accept terms that would lead to peace with honor, particularly because of the threatening possibility of intervention.

Secretary Bryan, when asked about this tonight, smiled and said:

"That is encouraging, isn't it? But there is nothing that I can say about it."

Similar reports, it is learned, reached the Constitutionalists several days ago, but it was pointed out that June 15 was before Gen. Villa's differences with Carranza were to some extent adjusted.

Members of the Cabinet who discussed the mediation situation briefly with President Wilson today expressed hopeful views of the situation, one of them asserting that he saw no clouds on the mediation horizon.

Secretary Bryan, as usual, declined to make any comment relating to developments further than to reiterate his persistent declaration of satisfactory progress. In Administration circles the expectation was general that the Constitutionalists would confer with the American and Huerta delegates at Niagara Falls.

IT WAS MR. EDISON'S MISTAKE

The greater the man the greater his ventures, the greater his achievements, and the greater his MISTAKES.

¶ MR. THOS. A. EDISON, the great inventor and scientist, has recently made a great mistake.

¶ He made a statement to the effect that the cigarette is injurious, on the alleged ground that he has found poisonous matter in the PAPER wrapper of some twenty different brands which he has analyzed.

¶ This statement was printed in the newspapers a few weeks ago. In the meantime, several protests have appeared in certain newspapers and trade papers, disproving the presence of any poison in the cigarette paper and making it clear that the substance which Mr. Edison has found, and which he calls "poison," is NOT poison.

¶ These protests were incontestable. They were based upon the results of scientific investigations and careful analyses previously made by unquestionably the most reliable chemical authorities, including the London "Lancet," the foremost medical organization in the world.

¶ Mr. Edison's contention involved all the cigarettes in general, no mention being made of any particular brand or brands; and so did the answers resenting Mr. Edison's unjustified attack.

¶ However, I do not think that the general character of the matter exempts the individual cigarette manufacturer from the duty to prove in a specific, definite and indubitable manner the purity of the particular brand of paper in which HIS particular brand of cigarettes are wrapped. I think each manufacturer owes this procedure to himself and to the public, in order to remove such unfavorable impression of his goods as Mr. Edison's erroneous and misleading statement may have left in the minds of those among his (the manufacturer's) present and prospective patrons, who may, in their turn, make the mistake of granting that just because Mr. Edison is a genius in ELECTRICITY, he is also infallible in his findings in ANALYTICAL CHEMISTRY.

¶ We all appreciate the fact that Mr. Edison has acquired and he maintains his prominence and fame in the most honest and deserving way, and we feel indebted to him for the most useful service he has rendered to humanity, as a wonderfully able electrician and mechanic.

¶ BUT WHEN IT COMES TO ANALYTICAL CHEMISTRY, I BELIEVE MR. EDISON HIMSELF WILL ADMIT THAT SUPREMACY IN THAT BRANCH OF SCIENCE BELONGS TO OTHERS.

¶ When I read Mr. Edison's statement in the newspapers, I was particularly interested in it because I have, among my accounts, the advertising of the well-known and it is part of my business to further the interests of PHILIP MORRIS & CO., LTD., by a correct representation of their goods to the public.

Philip Morris Cigarettes,

¶ I immediately decided to resent publicly Mr. Edison's attack. I was as positive at that time as I am now that the paper in which PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES are wrapped is absolutely the best and the purest paper made and free from any poisonous ingredients. But I did not want to base my protest upon mere personal knowledge or opinion, nor did I deem it sufficient to refer to any reports or certificates previously issued in favor of cigarettes IN GENERAL.

¶ My share of the task, as stated above, being to defend the PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES in PARTICULAR, it was necessary for me to present to the public the results of a SPECIAL investigation and a chemical analysis proving the purity of the PARTICULAR brand of paper in which PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES are wrapped.

¶ I could not very well hurry with the work. It required time to gather the necessary information from both the manufacturers of the PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES and the manufacturer of the PAPER used for wrapping the PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES, and subject this paper to a chemical analysis.

¶ This analysis alone took about two weeks. It was made in the most complete and careful manner by Ricketts & Banks of New York, who rank among the most reliable analytical chemists in the country, and who have issued a certificate to the effect that NO POISONOUS INGREDIENTS COULD BE FOUND IN THE PAPER IN WHICH PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES ARE WRAPPED.

¶ The following is a fac-simile of the text of the said certificate, the original of which is in my possession, and can be seen by any one, upon request.

Analysis No. 27763

225 Fifth Ave.,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

Referring to the sample of paper marked "Philip Morris Cigarette" submitted to us for analysis we have to report that we are unable to find any poisonous ingredients therein.

Yours very truly,

Ricketts & Banks

SIGNED

¶ I always keep myself informed with the sales of my clients—

1.—MR. EDISON'S STATEMENT APPEARED IN THE NEWSPAPERS ON MAY 11TH—

2.—ON MONDAY, MAY 18TH, MORE PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES WERE SOLD THAN ON ANY OTHER DAY IN THE LAST SIXTY YEARS—

3.—THE BUSINESS ON PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES FOR THE MONTH OF MAY WAS LARGER THAN THAT OF ANY OTHER MONTH IN THE LAST SIXTY YEARS, WITH A CONSIDERABLE INCREASE OVER THE PREVIOUS BEST MONTH—

4.—THE MONTH OF JUNE WILL BE EVEN MORE PROSPEROUS THAN MAY, PROVIDING THE SALES CONTINUE AT THE SAME RATE DURING THE REMAINDER OF THE MONTH AS IN THE FIRST THREE WEEKS.

¶ This increase in the sales of PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTES, following Mr. Edison's attack, may have been a coincidence, but it may also be due to the public tendency to take special precautions, in such circumstances, by giving preference to the product which is the BEST KNOWN, the LONGEST KNOWN and the MOST WIDELY KNOWN in its field.

¶ The public knows that the longer a product enjoys FAVORABLE PUBLIC OPINION and confidence the more evident is its quality.

¶ The public also knows today that the PHILIP MORRIS CIGARETTE is THE CIGARETTE which has enjoyed the most favorable opinion and continuous patronage of the most critical smokers throughout the world, for unquestionably THE LONGEST period of time in the history of high-grade Turkish Cigarettes.

¶ Although Mr. Edison's unjustified attack involved only the paper—and not the tobacco—of cigarettes, I believe, however, that the following extract from a report issued by the London "Lancet," the greatest chemical authority in the world, will also be of particular interest to Mr. Edison as a cigar smoker, pipe lover, tobacco chewer and cigarette hater:

"It was found that the CIGARETTE, whether Egyptian, Turkish, or American, yielded the LEAST AMOUNT of its total nicotine to the smoke formed; THE PIPE YIELDED A VERY LARGE PROPORTION (in some cases 70 to 80 per cent.) of its nicotine to the smoke reaching the mouth of the consumer; and the analysis of cigar smoke gave figures midway between the two. From the point of view of nicotine poisoning, therefore, assuming that equal amounts of tobacco are smoked, THE CIGARETTE WOULD APPEAR TO BE THE LEAST HARMFUL FORM OF SMOKING, and the pipe the worst, the cigar occupying an intermediate position in this respect, judging from the amount of nicotine contained in the smoke therefrom."

ONE KILLED, SIX HURT UNDER 30-TON CRANE

Subway Excavation Caves In Near 76th Street and Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn.

CRASH HEARD TWO MILES

Second Collapse Threatens Firemen at Rescue Work In 60-Foot Hole —Foreman Arrested.

One man was killed and two others were injured, probably mortally, yesterday when a thirty-ton crane broke through the sandy soil of the subway cut between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh Streets and Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, and crashed into the excavation sixty feet below. Four others were hurt so badly that they were sent to the Norwegian Hospital, and a score more suffered cuts and bruises.

After an investigation carried on by Robert Ridgway, engineer in charge of subway construction, of the Public Service Commission, Jacob A. Keever, foreman for Carpenter, Boxley & Herrick of Roanoke, Va., the sub-contractors, was arrested on the charge of criminal negligence, and was held in the Fifth Avenue Police Court.

The derrick which slipped had been erected on the side of the cut, and ran back and forth on temporary rails. It stood at the very edge of the excavation, which was almost completed, and was shored up on either side by timbers 4 inches by 10. They had been in place for five months, and had been found in good condition the last time they had been examined two weeks ago. The sandy soil in this district had proved very treacherous, and it had been found necessary, after the cut was opened, to strengthen the shoring on two different occasions.

The men under Keever went to work at 6 o'clock, and all went well until a few minutes before 8. Then a wagon and two horses drove up alongside the derrick, and it lowered into the cut a "battleship," or bucket, which could convey two tons of material. The driver of the team went off to get his ticket to testify that he had taken another load, and as he went the ground beneath the derrick began to give. As it slipped, the great beams gathered momentum and carried everything before them. On either side, for fifty feet, the shoring groaned and split, and in a moment an avalanche of sand, steel beams, massive timbers, and iron rails fell into the cut beneath. The planking on which was the wagon tipped into the air, and the horses were thrown into the excavation. One of them was so badly injured that he had to be shot.

Immediately beneath the derrick was Dominick Dimeto. He was struck by one of its arms and killed. Another laborer, Nicholas Figeletto, was caught between two flying timbers and his left leg was severed below the knee. Nicholas Rindefe also was caught in the landslide, suffering a possible fracture of the skull. Both he and Figeletto were taken to the Norwegian Hospital and were hardly expected to recover. The other men who were severely hurt were Carlos Filigie, Fred Young, Joseph Vavariardo and Augustus Madden, the engineer of the derrick.

The crash was heard two miles away. Patrolman Jenkins of the Fort Hamilton Avenue Station sent a call for ambulances from the Norwegian, the Holy Family and the Coney Island Hospitals. The boy, Dr. C. B. Traxler was at breakfast in his house at Fourth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street and saw the accident. He rushed to his telephone and notified Brooklyn Police Headquarters and summoned the fire apparatus.

Deputy Police Commissioner Godley, Inspector Dillon, and Capt. Gallagher, of the Fort Hamilton precinct, took charge of the rescue work. Two fire trucks let down their ladders into the excavation. First the firemen brought up the body of Dimeto, then Figeletto and Rindefe. Spectators went to their aid, but as the work of rescue was in progress, it was seen that the danger was not yet past. The sidewalk on the west side of the avenue suddenly fell into the cut, but it carried with it only some of the firemen's clothes and ladders. The police lines were then drawn tightly and none but firemen were permitted to approach the excavation.

CENSOR OF CITY HALL NEWS.

Mayor Reported to Have Silenced Heads of Departments.

Several members of the Mayor's official family were disturbed yesterday over the report that the Mayor had established an official censorship of news, and that all inormation coming from the various departments must be given out through his office, and not by the department heads. Several instances were cited where heads of departments who ventured to give out information about their work were called to account and told not to offend again. The official censor, it was said, was Dr. Louis Blan, an examiner in the Commissioner of Accounts office.

According to the report, Mr. Blan, who was the publicity agent for the Educational Committee of the Board of Estimate, which conducted the recent school inquiry, was appointed by the Mayor as publicity agent of the administration several weeks ago, with instructions to handle all reports of the various departments and put them into shape for submission to the newspapers. Since then, some of the Commissioners complained, Mr. Blan's duties had been enlarged, so that he was to handle practically all news from the various departments.

Among those Commissioners who had been told not to give out any more information regarding their work until it had passed through the hands of Mr. Blan, it was said, were Katharine B. Davis, Commissioner of Correction; Bridge Commissioner Kracke, Health Commissioner Goldwater, and Charities Commissioner Kingsbury. It was the first time in the history of the city, it was said, that an official publicity agent had been used by an administration. In the past Commissioners had dealt directly with reporters and had given out whatever information they desired, and some of the present Commissioners, it was said, resented the restriction that they feared would be placed upon them.

FIRES AT FLEEING PRISONER.

Charities Official Raids Opium Den, but Proprietor Escapes.

Two pistol shots were fired in Thirty-ninth Street near Seventh Avenue in the direction of Broadway at 11:30 last night, and in a minute a thousand persons crowded about a man with a revolver. He was running toward Broadway and complained that an important prisoner had got away and that he had fired to bring him down. The shots, it appeared, went wild.

The shooter refused to give his name and detectives from the West Thirtieth Street Station took him to the police station. There he produced a permit to carry a pistol and an identification card from the Charities Department bearing the name of Sigmund Simons, a special investigator.

Simons refused to answer any questions. He had raided an opium resort, single-handed, it was said, and had arrested the proprietor. While walking toward the police station the prisoner had bolted.

Simons refused to tell where the opium resort was or the proprietor's name. The police did not detain him after he had shown his credentials.

LABOR VIEW OF CITY WORK.

Unions' Attitude Is Explained to the Park Commissioner.

A delegation representing the various building trades unions of the city called upon Park Commissioner Cabot Ward yesterday to explain to him the attitude of the trades unions toward city contracts. The delegation was headed by John Gill, who told the Commissioner that there was a tendency on the part of contractors who have city work to sublet portions of the work to people living out of the city and the State.

The contract for building the new wing of the Museum of Natural History, which is under the jurisdiction of the Park Commissioner, has been let to the P. F. Kenny Company, and a good deal of the work will be given to sub-contractors. Mr. Gill said it was only fair, and in compliance with the State labor law, that these sub-contracts go to people living in the State and that only workmen living in the city should be employed on them.

Commissioner Ward agreed to receive a committee of the building trades unions on Thursday.

BURROUGHS AT FORD FARM.

Learning More About Birds, He Says—Wishes Roosevelt Could Loaf.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, June 23.—John Burroughs, the naturalist, is a guest of Henry Ford at the latter's bird farm.

"I have been living close to nature on the Ford farm," he said, and proceeded to tell how he had picked up more bird lore there.

"I profited greatly," he said. "I have decided to copy some of Mr. Ford's methods. As soon as I go back home I shall install a large feeding table for the birds living on my wild lands."

Then he turned to Theodore Roosevelt.

"Teddy found that river all right," he said. "He came down to my place once and discovered birds on my own land that I did not know. He is a most accurate observer. I'll believe anything he says about finding things now.

"He has a serious fault, however. He hasn't the ability to loaf. He plunges through the woods as though he had to get somewhere at a certain time. I like to saunter. I wish he could overcome that fault, for it would be much more pleasant to tramp with him."

$2,500 FOR STOPPING TEAM.

Traffic Policeman Proved That Young Boy Drove Runaways.

A Sheriff's Jury yesterday awarded Policeman Nicholas A. Huth of Traffic Squad C $2,500 damages for injuries he received in stopping a runaway team of horses attached to a milk wagon at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-seventh Street on Sept. 25, 1912. Huth began suit for $10,000 against Daniel J. Mulhern and William J. Bunger, owners of the team, on the ground that the horses were being driven by a 14-year-old boy in violation of a city ordinance.

The defense was that stopping runaway horses was part of the business of the policeman, whose duty it was to risk life and limb whenever the necessity arose. Huth's counsel said this was the case only when the necessity did not arise through a violation of the law on the part of those responsible for the accident. The case was sent to the Sheriff's Jury to determine what damages ought to be awarded.

ADVERTISING ETHICS ARE NOW CODIFIED

Associated Clubs Adopt Standards of Newspaper Practice.

TO PROTECT THE PUBLIC

Largest Possible Co-operation Pledged—Speaker's Compliment to The New York Times.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, June 23.—If there ever is to be a science of advertising the time for it has arrived. This was abundantly manifest at the meetings of the convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs in the Exhibition Grounds today. The psychology of advertising, the fundamental principles of publicity, the essential requirement of truth, and the position of the Ad. Clubs as guarantors to the public—these were the questions that were presented by prominent men in the different departments of advertising enterprise.

The morning was given over to organizing the different departments, the afternoon to work that counted, the evening to a general session in the Transportation Building.

It was good to see these ad. men at work. There was not a department session that was not well attended during the afternoon, and the different papers were followed with interest, some with enthusiasm. While the women of their families were enjoying a trip across the lake the men got down to serious things. The ideal weather brought a large crowd to the grounds in the afternoon. Probably 10,000 people passed through the gates during the day, and a crowd of not less than 5,000 witnessed the regatta along the sea wall at 5 o'clock. At the conclusion of the afternoon's business yacht racing, eight-oared races, and a hydro-aeroplane flight were features that attracted the attention of delegates.

The fight over the next convention will be settled tomorrow, and officers will also be elected. William Woodhead of San Francisco is practically assured of re-election as President.

The newspaper section this afternoon discussed standards of practice. James Schermerhorn, publisher of The Detroit Times, said: "No discussion is necessary. No standards of practice are necessary. Follow the practice and the standards of THE NEW YORK TIMES and you cannot go wrong."

The section, however, decided to be more specific and voted unanimously that it was the duty of a newspaper:

1. To protect the honest advertiser and the general newspaper reader as far as possible from deceptive or offensive advertising.
2. To sell advertising as a commodity on the basis of proved circulation and the service the paper will render the manufacturer or the merchant, and to provide the fullest information as to the character of such circulation and how procured.
3. To maintain uniform rates, according to classifications, and to present those rates as far as possible in a uniform card.
4. To accept no advertising which is antagonistic to the public welfare.
5. To effect the largest possible co-operation with other newspapers in the same field for the establishment and maintenance of those standards.

The resolution was moved by Allen D. Albert, Chairman; Senator Lafayette Young, Robert J. Virtue, Edward Bode, Louis Wiley, and Edward Walker, committee.

William H. Ukers of New York, Chairman of the committee which drafted the rules of practice, said in an interview:

"These standards represent the most vital development in the advertising field and are the best contributions to the cause of better business yet made by the Associated Clubs. For the first time in the history of advertising we now have codes of advertising ethics by means of which the members of the Associated Clubs can gauge their own conduct and also that of their fellows.

"These standards should be what the Ten Commandments have been to Christian people for centuries. They are ideals of conduct. While they may never be lived up to in toto, perhaps, by any single practitioner of advertising, they will, nevertheless, be to advertising men what the Ten Commandments have been to society, a set of ideals toward which to work—the best standards of right action now attainable."

AGED WOMAN FOUND DEAD.

Marks of Violence on Body, but Murder Theory Is Abandoned.

The body of Mrs. Catherine Lombardo, who was 60 years old, was found yesterday lying across a bed in her apartment on the fifth floor of a tenement house at 402 East Eighteenth Street. Her waist was torn about the throat and there was a blue discoloration on the right side of her throat. Also clothes had been pulled from a closet to the floor.

These indications led the police to believe that the woman had been strangled, possibly by a burglar, but when Mrs. Lombardo's two daughters and husband were called home from their work they found $265, the savings of the family, intact in an old chest, and they could discover nothing else missing. It was noticed, also, that two rings and a pair of earrings worn by the woman were on her body.

The police practically abandoned the theory of murder, and they were inclined to believe that the woman had died of epilepsy. Her husband said that she was subject to violent attacks, and both Coroner Riordan and Dr. Topping of Bellevue Hospital agreed that she might have torn her waist and made the blue mark on her throat in the paroxysm of a fit. At the same time she could have pulled the clothes from the closet.

Mrs. Annie Gallot, who lives across the hall, said that she went into Mrs. Lombardo's rooms at 10 o'clock yesterday morning to tell her that her grandson, Tony Donjioviani, 3 years old, was playing on the fire escape. Mrs. Lombardo was alone washing dishes. Mrs. Gallot returned to her rooms and took little Tony with her. Forty-five minutes later she sent Tony to his grandmother, and in a few minutes the child came back and said his grandmother was asleep. Mrs. Gallot went to Mrs. Lombardo's bedroom and found her body.

Mrs. Lombardo lived with her husband, her two daughters, a son-in-law, and the child. Every one except she and Tony went out to work as usual yesterday morning.

Coroner Riordan ordered an autopsy to be held at the Morgue this morning.

Man's Body in Niagara Rapids.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., June 23.—The body of a man was taken from the upper rapids of the Niagara River early today, ten feet from shore at a point known as Suicide Point and 250 feet above the brink of the American Falls. In the right temple was a bullet wound. The body was that of a man six feet two inches tall, weighing 300 pounds. The blue serge suit bore the name of J. M. Humst and of an Indianapolis tailoring company. The initials "J. M. H." also were found. It is thought that the man arrived on a Michigan Central train from the West today.

A Stirring New Novel

Cross Trails

By HERMAN WHITAKER

In the white world of a Hudson Bay lumber-camp turbulent scenes and chivalry surround the only woman snowbound there. She witnesses a mutiny of the lumberjacks which is quelled by the Viking-like superintendent, and discovers that for months she must be cooped up with the one man in the world she wishes to avoid. It is a vivid transcription of the life which the author knows so well. Many of the turbulent scenes are filled with minor characters of picturesque charm.

$5,000,000 CLAIM FROM MARCONI CASE

Preliminary Hearing Today in Connection with English Shareholders' Action.

DUE TO ISAACS'S DEAL

Suits Based on Managing Director's Testimony Before the House of Commons Inquiry Committee.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, June 24.—Mr. Justice Sargant will have before him in the Chancery Division today (Wednesday) five adjourned summonses relating to five actions appearing on the list as "Locker-Lampson versus Isaacs," and involving a claim by shareholders of the English Marconi Company to something like $5,000,000.

The Daily Telegraph says the actions are based on the statement made by Godfrey Isaacs, Managing Director of the Marconi Company, before the House of Commons committee which held the Marconi inquiry, that he undertook to place 500,000 shares of the American Marconi Company in England, and that he disposed of the greater part of them to Mr. Heybourn of the firm of Heybourn & Croft, stock and share dealers. He stated further that the profit made by reselling the shares at a higher price than that at which he took them from the American company amounted to about $300,000, and that he handed this sum to the English company.

On behalf of himself and other shareholders in the English company O. S. Locker-Lampson, M. P., claims that Mr. Isaacs, Heybourn & Croft, and the Directors of the English Marconi Company are liable to make good to the English company the difference between the par value and the highest market value of the shares as dealt with by Mr. Isaacs, and as the difference amounts to 50 shillings per share, the claim is for nearly £1,000,000.

The hearing today is on the preliminary application by the defendants that the plaintiffs should be directed to give further and better particulars of the claim.

SUES FOR $3,200,000.

George A. Kessler Demands Payment of Advertising Allowances.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 23.—George A. Kessler began suit today against the firm of Chandon et Cie. before the Tribunal of Commerce at Epernay over the question of an annual subvention of $200,000 which the firm paid him for a number of years.

Mr. Kessler is represented as counsel by former Minister of Justice Vallé, and MM. Chandon et Cie. by another former Minister, A. Millerand.

Mr. Kessler's contract was revised on several occasions. Between 1901 and 1913 the firm allowed him large sums to advertise their champagne effectively and also undertook in 1901 to extend until 1929 a contract which ended in the former year. Since then, however, differences have arisen, and Mr. Kessler now demands payment of $3,200,000 or sixteen years' allowances for advertising on the basis of $200,000 yearly.

M. Vallé, in giving instances of Mr. Kessler's enterprise in advertising, recalled that in 1902, when Prince Henry of Prussia went to the United States for the naming of the Kaiser's yacht, Meteor, the Kaiser was desirous that Miss Alice Roosevelt should perform the ceremony with a bottle of German champagne. Preparations were made accordingly, but when the ceremony was performed it was discovered that a bottle of the brand for which Mr. Kessler was agent had been employed, the substitution having been accomplished owing to the ingenuity of Mr. Kessler.

The Kaiser himself took the matter pleasantly and when afterward Mr. Kessler sent him a bottle in a beautiful case, exactly like the one supplied to Miss Roosevelt, he sent a letter in reply saying he would keep the bottle in the Hohenzollern Museum. The Kaiser's letter was read today at the hearing of the case, which was adjourned until July 22.

HIGH PRICES AT SALES.

French Furniture Sold at Sotheby's, Old Engravings at Christie's.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 23.—At Sotheby's today a set of four Chippendale mahogany chairs fetched $2,625, a pair of Louis XV. corner cabinets of black lacquer $3,750, a Louis XVI. marqueterie commode $3,300, and another commode of the same period $2,700.

The sale at Christie's of the Northwick collection of engravings continued today with the disposal of portraits after Sir Joshua Reynolds. Among the prices were the following:

Lady Jane Halliday, by Valentine Green; whole length, first state, $2,940.

Lady Louisa Manner, by Valentine Green; whole length, first state, $2,130.

Mrs. Mathew, by W. Dickinson; whole length, first published state, $2,100.

The Gawler Brothers, "Schoolboys," by J. R. Smith; first published state, $1,630.

Miss Frances Harris, by J. Grozer; whole length, first state, before any letters, $1,520.

Lady Caroline Howard, by Valentine Green; whole length, first state, $1,415.

Jane, Duchess of Gordon, by W. Dickinson; first state, $1,315.

Mrs. Hardinge, by T. Watson; first published state, $1,315.

MRS. HOWARD'S FUNERAL.

Body Is Cremated, and Ashes Are to be Brought to America.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 23.—The funeral of Mrs. Bronson Howard was held this morning. The body was cremated, in accordance with Mrs. Howard's last wishes. Sir Charles Wyndham, who is living at the Hyde Park Hotel, said to a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today:

"My sister came here ten days ago, apparently in the best of health. Last Friday, while dressing for the theatre, she fell in her room, and never spoke after that. She died about 1 o'clock Saturday morning."

Sir Charles added that the death had been kept as quiet as possible and that no notices were sent to the London papers, as Mrs. Howard's relations here did not want the news to become known here until her friends and relatives in America had been apprised. He added that he had been in communication with Mrs. Howard's relatives in America and that probably the ashes would be shipped to New York in the near future.

STRAUSS BALLET IN LONDON

Audience Is Enthusiastic, but the Critics Find Defects in It.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, June 24.—A brilliant audience attended the production by the Russian ballet at Drury Lane last night of Richard Strauss's "The Legend of Joseph," Herr Strauss himself conducting.

The audience gave the ballet a great reception, but the critics are not so enthusiastic. While admiring the splendors of the stage setting, they find defects in the treatment of the story by its authors.

As regards the music, they declare that it has a distinctive atmosphere, but that it is doubtful if it will advance Strauss's reputation.

HERRICK'S FAREWELL PARTY

Reception Attended by Premier and Other Well-Known Persons.

PARIS, June 23.—Myron T. Herrick, the American Ambassador, and Mrs. Herrick tonight gave a dinner in honor of the new French Premier, René Viviani, and his wife; Antonin Dubost, Speaker of the Senate; Paul Deschanel, Speaker of the Chamber of Deputies, and a number of Ambassadors and other members of the Diplomatic Corps and their wives.

A reception was given afterward at which were present several members of the French Cabinet, prominent officers of the army and navy, and many notable persons in society, both American and French.

This was the last large party to be given by Ambassador and Mrs. Herrick before their departure, which will probably be about July 31.

MILITANT BOMB IN CHURCH.

Suffragette Attempt to Destroy a Building Near London.

READING, June 23.—An unexploded bomb was found to-day in the porchway of the Church of St. Mary the Virgin here. It is supposed to have been placed there by militant suffragettes.

The machine consisted of a tin can full of explosives with a fuse attached. The bomb had been lighted, but the fuse had gone out before the explosives were reached.

Reading is thirty-eight miles southwest of London.

BILL TO PLACATE ULSTER INTRODUCED

Measure to Amend Home Rule Enactment Read in the House of Lords.

MORE CONCESSIONS LIKELY

Bill as It Stands Not Government's Last Word — Lansdowne "Profoundly Disappointed" with It.

LONDON, June 23.—The crisis in connection with the granting of home rule to Ireland entered another stage today, when the Marquis of Crewe, Liberal leader in the House of Lords, introduced the long-expected bill to amend the Irish Home Rule bill.

The terms of the amending bill are identical with those offered on March 9 by Premier Asquith and contemptuously refused by Sir Edward Carson, the Irish Unionist leader, who described the Premier's proposal as a "hypocritical sham."

By the new bill the Parliamentary electors of each county in Ulster are to be allowed to decide by vote whether the county shall be excluded from the provisions of the Home Rule bill for a period of six years from the first meeting of the new Irish Parliament.

The situation has never been paralleled in Parliamentary procedure in the British Isles. Never before has a bill been presented to Parliament to amend a measure not yet on the statute books. This was, however, the only means of overcoming the deadlock, as the House of Lords refused to consider the main bill until the full proposals of the Government were before it.

In introducing the amending bill the Marquis of Crewe dwelt much on the religious difficulties surrounding the question of Ulster, but while he admitted the necessity for some form of exclusion for those who deemed themselves affected by the Home Rule bill, he contended that the exclusion of the entire Province of Ulster would involve great injustice. The Government consequently, he said, had reiterated in the amending bill Premier Asquith's proposal of exclusion by counties from the operation of the Home Rule measure.

Lord Crewe made it quite clear, however, that the amending bill was not necessarily the Government's last word. "The bill gives the widest possible latitude for an amendment," he said, "and he explained that under it the civil government in the excluded areas would be administered by the Lord Lieutenant through officers to be appointed by him.

The Marquis of Lansdowne, the Unionist leader in the House of Lords, said he was profoundly disappointed by the fact that the bill merely embodied proposals which had been already rejected. He asserted that it was "shabby and undignified" for the Government to present an unacceptable bill, with an open invitation to the Opposition to give its assistance in converting it into a workable measure that would avoid civil war. The Government, he declared, was perfectly aware that the amending bill was not sufficient for that purpose.

Lord Lansdowne expressed relief that the Government had at last realized the necessity of making some effort to avert an imminent danger. He said he wished he could add that its contribution today had met the need for fundamental changes in the Irish Home Rule bill which alone could make it workable.

The bill was then read a first time, but it is understood that extensive changes are to be made by the Unionist majority in the House of Lords when it reaches the committee stage, and that afterward there will be an opportunity for compromise and conciliation.

SUICIDE'S REVENGE ON GIRL.

Left Written Slander on Former Chicago Resident in England.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 23.—At the inquest today on W. T. Hedges, an advertising agent, who committed suicide by poisoning himself, it developed that he left a written statement to the effect that his act was caused through Miss Ada Moore of Margate, "who lived in Chicago as Mrs. Jack Waddington and was expelled under the White Slave Traffic act."

Miss Moore, who is a sister of Mrs. Hives, with whom Hedges had been living, said on the witness stand that Hedges wrote the statement out of spite because she induced her sister not to return to him. She said she had lived in Chicago, but left in a proper manner.

The Coroner described the writing as a malicious document, designed to cast mud at a respectable girl.

Kohlsaat in London Law Courts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 23.—Judge Kohlsaat of Chicago visited the Royal Courts of Justice today. He inspected the building and occupied a seat on the bench with Sir Thomas Scrutton during the hearing of a case.

'COL.' WILKINSON EXAMINED.

Promoter Turns Over Correspondence to Post Office Inspectors.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—Sheaves of correspondence bearing upon his connection with the Central Tennessee Development Company and with the International Bankers' Alliance of London, were submitted to Chief Postal Inspector James T. Cortelyou by "Col." George Wilkinson, President of the first and agent of the second concern, yesterday.

"Col." Wilkinson is under fire down in Spring City, Tenn., where Directors and stockholders of the development company want to bring about his arrest and indictment on charges of misuse of the mails. Mr. Cortelyou suggested that "Col." Wilkinson bring all correspondence he had to the Federal Building for examination.

The "Colonel" was accompanied by Arthur J. Mitchell, sales manager of the Tennessee Company, an ambitious project which contemplated transforming the little town of Spring City into a metropolis. Later Maylon Van Booskirk, the attorney who obtained the Delaware charter for the Tennessee Company and who visited Spring City as its legal representative, came to Mr. Cortelyou's office. He brought with him the Delaware charter and some correspondence.

Present at the interview were Postal Inspectors from New York, who had participated in the investigation of the American Redemption Company and the subsequent conviction of the men behind it after a trial at Elmira, N. Y. The American Redemption Company acted as agent for the International Bankers' Alliance.

The main attention of the Government was directed to a careful scrutiny of the methods of operation of the International Bankers' Alliance and the connection of "Col." Wilkinson with the concern. The men were questioned for some hours. At nightfall the investigation ended for the day upon the promise of Wilkinson and Van Booskirk to return to Mr. Cortelyou's office tomorrow. It was rumored about the Federal Building that sensational developments would come in the case in the morning.

CLEMENCY FOR DYNAMITERS

President Said to Have Granted Pleas of Some Minor Conspirators.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—President Wilson's decision on the appeal for pardons for the twenty-four labor leaders sentenced to jail in the dynamite conspiracy cases was sent to the Department of Justice tonight and probably will be made public tomorrow. Though the exact nature of the President's decision was carefully guarded pending the formal announcement, it was generally understood in official circles that some of the minor defendants had received Executive clemency.

For Frank M. Ryan, former head of the Structural Iron Workers, and others convicted as chief conspirators in the campaign of destruction, even the Senators and Representatives who have interested themselves in the pardon appeals have held out little hope of obtaining clemency.

Thursday is the date set for the convicted men to begin serving their sentences. All of them are free on bail, and the date on which they must present themselves at the Federal Prison in Leavenworth, Kan., was extended from June 6 to June 25, to give President Wilson more time for consideration of their petitions.

Since the cases have been before the President two of the defendants, Olaf A. Tveitmoe of San Francisco and Richard Houlihan of Chicago, have won new trials. It is said that unless new evidence against them is discovered they will not be placed on trial again.

GIRL ADMITS KILLING ANOTHER CONFESSED

Louise Magaluso Denies Story of William Flack, in Tombs, That He Murdered Marino.

FIRED TO END SLAVERY

Tells How Leader and Gang Came to Her House to Force Her to a Life of Shame.

Louise Magaluso, an eighteen-year-old Italian girl, who lived until recently at 211 East Nineteenth Street, confessed yesterday to the murder of Giuseppe Marino in a flat at 634 East Thirteenth Street on April 6 last. She said she was driven to the act when her victim tried to force her to lead a life of shame so that he might live in ease.

The confession has puzzled Assistant District Attorney Breckenridge and his detectives, because there is a prisoner in the Tombs who until yesterday insisted that he and Louise Magaluso, whom he knew as "Marla," lured Marino to her flat to rob him, and that he fired the fatal shot. This prisoner is William Flack, 21 years, of 408 East Twenty-third Street, who was arrested on April 10, soon after he had informed the police that he had "found" the body of Marino.

Flack was taken from the Tombs to confront the Magaluso girl at the Homicide Bureau. Straightway she said she recognized him as a man who once had brought a message to her flat, and Flack nodded his head as though assenting. She denied that he had been there at any other time, and insisted that she alone had taken the life of Marino. Flack listened to her statements, and did not contradict her. He was not questioned closely by the Assistant District Attorney because he is represented by counsel, and his counsel was not present.

Of his own accord Flack told Assistant District Attorney Breckenridge that he had discovered the body of Marino in Louise Magaluso's flat by looking through a window into the murder room. The girl, to disprove his assertion, said that he could not have seen through that particular window because it was shut off by a heavy curtain, which she described as thicker than the coat she wore.

Without hesitation, and apparently without fear, the girl then told Mr. Breckenridge and the detectives what she said was the true account of her life. She came to this country three years ago with her parents. The family lived in Newark at first, somewhere in Eighth Avenue. The number of the house Louise did not remember, so the police last night were still searching for her parents. Soon she met Joseph Stabasio, who persuaded her, though she was happy with her parents, to elope with him. They came at night to New York. The following day, she said, Stabasio took her to the Marriage License Bureau at the City Hall, and obtained a license. There was no other ceremony, but she lived with him, believing that she was his lawful wife.

"At the end of nine months Joseph tired of me," said the girl. "He came to me one day and said: 'I've found a woman who can earn $25 regularly every week. While I have her you cannot be more than a servant to me. You had just as well get out.'"

At that time, the girl told the Assistant District Attorney, she was about to become a mother. She went to Bellevue Hospital, and her child died there when it was born. According to the detectives she gave the same name for the records at Bellevue that she has given to the police.

Because of her elopement, the young woman said, she dared not return to her father and mother. Consequently she went to live with her brother, Tony, at 634 East Thirteenth Street. It was at the flat of her brother that she met Marino, who, she said, was leader of a gang of blackmailers and procurers.

"Marino tried to make me a tool for the gang. Once he ordered me to go to Twelfth Avenue, where a man was to hand over to me $500 in a cigar box. I didn't know what it meant then, but later I found out that the money had been got from another man by blackmail. I started to the place, but was frightened by two policemen near the corner and ran back to the flat. That made Marino angry and he beat me.

"When my brother later learned how brutally Marino had treated me he went to Marino's house and gave him a whipping. That angered Marino still more. Several days later my brother was arrested, charged with stealing a horse, and he is now in the penitentiary on Blackwell's Island. It was Marino's gang that caused the arrest of Tony because he had protected me.

"When I was left alone in the flat, Marino with members of his gang came to my flat about 3 o'clock in the morning of April 6. They broke the door open. Marino had a revolver in one hand and a razor in the other. He told me to be quiet and not to bother his men."

Because she pleaded with Marino and his gang to leave her flat, the girl said he struck her with the butt of his revolver. She showed the detectives a deep scar, which she said was caused by the blow. Marino became more violent, said the girl, as the first tears came to her eyes. He struck her several times until she fainted and lay on the floor. Then the gangsters, she said, were frightened and left the room.

Thinking all had gone, she arose quietly, to find Marino alone with her. Seeing that the girl was not seriously hurt, Marino became more threatening, she said. He brandished his pistol, swore at her, and threatened to shoot her unless she would consent to work on the street for him and his gang.

"Finally the strain was too much for me," said the girl. "I pulled all my strength together and said: 'I'll do it, Joe, but for God's sake put that gun away.' He seemed to be satisfied then and laid the revolver on the table. I watched his movements and didn't take my eyes from him."

When Marino turned his back, the girl said, she snatched the revolver from the table and fired the shot into his head that killed him. Then she asked:

"And I had a right to do it, didn't I?"

Assistant District Attorney Breckenridge said her manner was almost convincing, as did Detective Buckley. Another attaché of the bureau said he had been there nine years, but nothing had left such an impression on him as the girl's story and her appearance.

The girl wore a dark brown coat, a blue skirt, a white shirtwaist, and a white straw hat. A dark complexion, black eyes, and very light hair, which, the police said, was bleached, gave her an appearance that was striking.

Her desire to look well was largely the cause of her arrest late Monday evening. Detective Buckley learned that the girl after leaving the murder flat had gone to 211 East Nineteenth Street. He did not find her there, but learned that she had left some clothes to be pressed at a tailor's shop at 210 East Nineteenth Street, so he waited around the tailor's place. The girl sent two persons several times to get her clothes, but the tailor refused to deliver them except to the girl. Finally she went after them herself, and the detective arrested her.

At the Homicide Bureau Miss Magaluso told the detectives with pride of how she had evaded them by masquerading as a boy. She said she cut her own hair and then in boy's clothes went to a barber's shop to get her hair trimmed. When the barber finished the hair cut, he asked the usual question: "Shave?" The girl assented, but the barber, running his fingers over her cheeks, stopped suddenly and said: "You don't need a shave; you're not even a boy."

She said she went to a motion picture show in male attire. As she was leaving the place she met a man of her acquaintance, who said: "Aren't you a brother of Maria Magaluso?"

The girl was examined by Coroner Hellenstein later, and he held her on a charge of homicide for the Grand Jury. She was taken to the Tombs.

A JOLT FOR JIM.

Dog of Many Medals Gets an Almost Fatal Auto Bump.

A good many people who walk by Fifty-seventh Street and Sixth Avenue these June days wonder why Dr. Galpin's Jim is going lame in his off hind leg and wears his tail in a sling.

The reason may be quickly told. Jim got in front of a big touring car ripping along at forty miles an hour and the car did the rest. It happened on the Saturday evening following the Saturday when Jim walked in the front row of the work horse parade and added a blue ribbon to his previous decorations for life-saving. But all of them couldn't save him from that flying car.

Jim, who is mostly St. Bernard, had gone with the doctor that day to Travers Island to the N. Y. C. A. athletic games. About dusk, on the way to Long View, over the Tuckahoe Road, the car blew off a cylinder head or sprang a leak or something and had to stop for repairs. It was Jim's chance for exercise and he bounded into the woods by the roadside. When he thought it was about time for the repairs to be completed he came out of the woods on the jump and landed in the track of a big touring car splashing the gravel around at about forty miles an hour. Fortunately for Jim his jump was a bit short and he landed where only the front wheel got a glancing lick at him. But it knocked him ten feet into the air, and when he hit the ground he was unconscious. Jim weighs a hundred and thirty pounds and it takes some blow to hoist that weight ten feet into the air, not counting the lateral motion.

Jim gave one yelp as he went up and came down still. In a minute the doctor forgot all about the car and began repairs on his dog. He found that Jim's hip was dislocated, with perhaps the bones broken, and two inches of his elegant tail cut off. Worse, he thought Jim was a dead hero, but he worked over him to revive him, and as soon as he showed signs of life he reduced the dislocation before Jim came to, and when he opened his eyes his dislocation was gone, but he was feeling like a wreck, though submitting without a whimper. For an hour the doctor worked over him and then put him into his car, which was about ready when the trouble occurred, and hurried to town with him.

It was too late then to get the veterinary, so the doctor sat up with Jim all night ministering to his wants, and the first thing in the morning had the veterinary there. By his orders Jim was taken to the hospital, where the X-ray showed a slight fracture of the hip bone, which was put in shape. Then the veterinary amputated the bones of Jim's caudal appendix, which showed through the skin, and ran a tuck in his tail to make it as good as new when it healed, albeit a bit shorter.

Jim disappeared from his usual haunts for several days after that, but, having a good constitution and a cheerful disposition, he soon became convalescent, and was released a few days ago, walking lame and with the end of his tail done up in what looks like a curl paper, though it isn't that. He is not as frisky as he was and it is amusing to watch him at times pensively contemplating his bandaged tail, as though he were wondering what it will look like when he sees it again.

Elevated Structure on Fire.

The elevated railroad structure at Broadway and Marcy Avenue, Williamsburg, was burned yesterday when a tar wagon in the street with a furnace upon it caught fire and then set fire to barrels of tar. The flames leaped so high that when they reached the wooden ties the fire imperiled the big station platform. The structure was burning fiercely by the time firemen set to work and extinguished it. Trains were blockaded for more than half an hour.

GIRL TELLS SECRETS OF COCAINE TRAFFIC

Gives District Attorney Names of Wholesalers and Reveals Profits of the Trade.

PARTNER GOES TO PRISON

Ex-Convict Gets Almost Limit Sentence—Had Sold Illicit Drugs for Many Years.

Secrets of the illegal trade in cocaine and other habit forming drugs were told yesterday in the Court of General Sessions, when Annie Goldstein, 21 years old, came up for sentence before Judge Mulqueen on her conviction for selling cocaine. She stood before the Judge with Andrew Blutier of 77 Sullivan Street, who was convicted at the same time.

The two prisoners, according to the evidence at the trial, were engaged to marry. The girl admitted that Blutier had given her an engagement ring which she had pawned. Yesterday it developed that the man was already married and has a wife and child living.

Annie Goldstein's exposure of the cocaine sellers' methods was made several days ago to Marion M. Goldman, an investigator for the New York Probation and Protective Association. The girl was paroled in the custody of Mrs. Goldman and has promised to aid Assistant District Attorney Wilmot in his drug crusade. Blutier was sentenced to Sing Sing for six years and eleven months—only eleven months less than the maximum penalty.

According to the story which Miss Goldstein told, and which Blutier admits is essentially true, he and she met four years ago at a dance given by the John Happy Association in Arlington Hall. "I thought he was single, and I went to live with him at 77 Sullivan Street. I understood that he was in the trucking business until eight months ago, when I learned that he was a cocaine dealer.

"He took me to the Sixth Ward Athletic Club rooms at 16 Bowery, and there I met Jack Sirocco and several other men. I learned that Blutier was an agent for some of these men in the sale of cocaine. He got 50 cents for every sale of a $2.50 lot of cocaine.

"Blutier and his employer fell out, and he decided to go into business for himself. He had saved a little money, with which we were able to make purchases of small amounts of cocaine. The amounts were increased, and in a little while we were able to start a bank account. We bought the cocaine from a man in Canal Street. We had no trouble getting any amount of it. Most of our sales were in small packages.

"We began doing business on Oct. 28, and on that day made $35. Four days later I deposited $30, and on Oct. 29 I put $15 more into the bank. Between Nov. 1 and Dec. 16 we banked $75, besides paying all our expenses. So far this year we have saved $600."

The girl told in her story the names of persons from whom she bought the drug and the names of other dealers, which will be used by the District Attorney in future investigations. Mr. Wilmot hopes, through the information given, to get at the principals in the drug traffic in Chinatown and the Tenderloin.

Blutier, when he was about to be sentenced, admitted that he had been a cocaine dealer for many years. To the girl's disclosures he added the assertion that a physician now employed by the Department of Charities had known for a long time that he was selling cocaine. Blutier said that the physician had even changed the ounces which he got for the cocaine into paper money.

The records show that Blutier was sent to Elmira for burglary in 1901 and that he has been arrested on two other occasions. Because of the previous conviction Judge Mulqueen gave him a heavy sentence.

DRUG SELLERS SENTENCED.

Five Persons Get Prison Terms in Special Sessions.

Three heroin sellers and two persons who were found with cocaine in their possession got jail sentences yesterday from Justices Wilkins, Herrmann, and Moss in Special Sessions.

Richard Weston, a twenty-two-year-old newsboy, of 250 West Thirty-sixth Street, was sent to the penitentiary for one year for selling heroin to an employe of the District Attorney's office.

John Baco, a grocer, of 67 Bayard Street, and Serro Martin, a waiter, of 566 Ninth Avenue, received sentences of nine and six months, respectively, for selling Chester Graysdell, a drug user, who was being watched by Detective Waterhouse.

Mary Miller of 855 Ninth Avenue and Philip Proster, a shipping clerk, of 206 West 111th Street, were sentenced to six months in the penitentiary for having cocaine.

All of the arrests were made at the neighborhood of Seventh Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street, which is supposed to be the centre of the drug traffic.

DR. GOLDWATER RETURNS.

Praises Work of Government Hospital in Canal Zone.

Health Commissioner Goldwater returned to New York yesterday from a voyage to the West Indies and the Panama Canal on the United Fruit steamer Tenadores.

"I arrived at Colon," said Dr. Goldwater, "just after Gov. Goethals had tested Gatun Lock. I went through the Canal, which is ready for use now, but the Governor will not take any chances on the slides. The big slide in the Culebra Cut is now well under control. The engineers are working at it from behind as well as on its face to reduce the pressure. Gov. Goethals is now moving his headquarters to Bilboa, on the Pacific side, which will be the permanent location, he says."

The Health Commissioner said the work which had been accomplished in the hospital at Ancon was wonderful. Men were going there from all parts of Central America and the West Indies for treatment. Dr. Goldwater praised the hospital at Port Limon, Costa Rica, also.

When the steamer called at Port Limon, Dr. Goldwater took a train trip up to San José, capital of Costa Rica, through splendid mountain scenery and luxurious vegetation.

"Whey they tear up a roadway in that country," he added, "the earth is sprouting next morning with all kinds of green shoots. The wooden fences that divide the coffee plantations were covered with flowers and plants."

Mrs. G. W. Goethals, wife of the Governor, was also a passenger on the Tenadores. She will spend the Summer with her son, who is in the Harvard Medical College, and will be joined later at her home at Vineyard Haven, Mass., by another son, Lieut. Goethals, who is now with his feather on the Isthmus. Mrs. Goethals said that she did not know when her husband would come to New York. He had not fixed a date for the opening of the canal for commerce.

When the Tenadores was steaming dead slow past the Scotland Lightship early yesterday she hit the rear of a tow of empty scows coming into New York. The shock did not awaken the passengers of the steamer or even scratch her paint. It ripped the scow so that she filled with water, but she did not sink.

TRANSFUSION WITH SYRINGE

Husband's Blood Saves Life of Mrs. Arthur Warner.

Mrs. Arthur Warner, wife of the real estate agent of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, whose husband gave a quart of blood to strengthen her for an operation at the Midwood Sanatorium on Thursday, is said to be recovering rapidly, although she was thought to be at the point of death from internal hemorrhages.

Dr. B. D. Harrington of 525 Ocean Avenue, Flatbush, saw that transfusion was necessary, and sent for Dr. Edward Lindeman of 40 East Forty-first Street, who had been practicing it by a new method. The operation usually is performed by immediate osmosis of the blood vessels, but Dr. Lindeman takes the blood from the sound person in one arm of a syringe, and transfers it from the other arm to the patient.

After Mr. Warner had given about a quart of blood to his wife Dr. Harrington operated and removed more than a gallon of blood which had seeped into the abdominal cavity during the hemorrhages. Dr. H. Fuller Rathbun and Dr. Cameron Dunn assisted at the operation. Mr. Warner was at his office and at work again in two days after the transfusion took place.

20,000 BANKRUPTCY PLEAS

Sixteen Years' Record in U. S. District Court in Manhattan.

Twenty thousand petitions in bankruptcy have been filed in the United States District Court in Manhattan since the Bankruptcy act went into effect on Aug. 1, 1898. The filing facilities of the clerk's office have been overtaxed to find room for the numerous papers which are now scattered in various rooms on three floors of the Federal Building. Alexander Gilchrist, Jr., clerk of the court, is in daily consultation with the Government officials over plans for additional rooms when the Post Office men leave the building.

Steel cabinets for filing purposes are especially needed to take the place of the obsolete wooden cases now used. Should a fire occur these wooden cases would make fine fuel for the flames, and there would be destroyed valuable documents which cannot be replaced.

Wreath for Cleveland's Grave.

A committee of the Grover Cleveland Association, of which George F. Parker is Chairman and David Robinson Secretary, yesterday forwarded a wreath to Princeton Cemetery to be placed on the grave of the late President, today, the anniversary of his death. A wreath has been sent annually. The committee is composed of all the living members of Cleveland's Cabinet, Mayor Mitchel, President McAneny of the Board of Aldermen; Judge Alton B. Parker, William E. Curtis, Charles S. Hamlin, John H. Finley, State Commissioner of Education; George B. Cortelyou and many others.

MISS M'GILL DENIES KISSING CHAUFFEUR

Never Visited His Room at Night in Kimono, Wealthy Defendant Testifies.

CALLS HIM ONLY A SERVANT

Witnesses Say He Cooked, Drove Auto, and Did Housework—He Attacks Wife on Stand.

Miss Eleanor McGill, who divorced Dr. William Carr of the United States Army in Washington three years ago, presented her defense before Judge William H. Speer in the Hudson County Circuit Court yesterday to the allegations of Mrs. Walter Mayer that she alienated the affections of Mayer from his family and was guilty of unseemly conduct with him in her home in Gifford Avenue, Jersey City, and elsewhere.

Miss McGill inherited $600,000 from her father, the late Dr. John D. McGill, Surgeon General of the National Guard of New Jersey, principal surgeon to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and President of the Hudson County National Bank. After her divorce she resumed her maiden name. In addition to the alienation suit, by which she seeks to recover $50,000 damages from Miss McGill, Mrs. Mayer is suing for divorce. To eke out $7 weekly alimony she receives from Mayer she works in a bakery for $7 a week.

Miss McGill and Mayer were the main witnesses for the defense, which closed at the end of yesterday's session. Another witness was Mrs. Mary McGill Gamble, who assumed the care of Miss McGill at the death of her mother in 1888, when the defendant was three years old and who went to live with her when she returned to her father's home after her divorce. Mrs. Gamble's daughter, Mrs. Alexander Gamble Duke, who had been a member of the McGill household since 1911, also testified.

Mrs. Gamble said that no conduct such as was testified to Monday by former servants of the McGill family, could have occured between Mayer and Miss McGill as always watched the defendant at home and usually travelled with her when she went out of town. The witness admitted on cross examination that she was more than 70 years old, and that for several years she had been taking long naps in the daytime.

Both Mrs. Gamble and her daughter, Mrs. Duke, testified that Mayer was only a servant in the house, and was always treated as a servant. When Miss McGill could not get on with the women servants and discharged them, it was testified, Mayer did the cooking and housework, and once when he objected to being cook and chambermaid, as well as chauffeur, Miss McGill told him that was what he was paid for and if he did not like the place he could quit.

This testimony was borne out by Mayer, who testified that he helped Miss McGill by doing the housework and cooking and waiting at the table. Mayer swore that he never had any affection for his wife that could have been alienated. He told Judge Speer and the jury that he never could arouse any affectionate regard for Mrs. Mayer, as he had been forced to marry her shortly before their child was born.

Miss McGill testified regarding her age and her upbringing by Mrs. Gamble, and then told of her dealings with Mayer. She said her father had employed Mayer for several years and liked him, as he was a careful chauffeur and made a presentable appearance. Mayer used to live with his wife and child, but in April, 1912, he told Dr. McGill of his domestic troubles, and a room was provided for him in the McGill home. Miss McGill denied she had ever kissed Mayer, as one of the former servants had testified she had, and said that Mayer had never been in her room unless called there to perform a service when there was some other person present.

The defendant denied that she had ever gone to Mayer's room in a kimono at night or at any other time, as another servant testified she had. She said that if she ever did such a thing she would not be a servant see her. After her father's death in November, 1912, Miss McGill testified, she had difficulty in getting along with the women servants and discharged them. After they had gone Mayer did the cooking and general housework.

"He made delicious toast," said Miss McGill, when questioned about Mayer's ability as a cook.

Miss McGill said that she discharged Mrs. Roy, the housekeeper, six weeks before her father's death because of her impudence.

Asked by Alexander Simpson, counsel to Mrs. Mayer, if Mrs. Roy hadn't left the employ of the McGills because of her mistress's conduct with Mayer, Miss McGill said she had not. When pressed further along this line Miss McGill said:

"Don't you believe me?"

"No," said Mr. Simpson.

Asked why she had not produced Mrs. Roy as a witness for the defense, Miss McGill said she had not thought it necessary to do so. She said Mrs. Roy was in Montreal with a sick father.

"You tried to get her and failed," she said.

Three servants of the McGill household who were called by the plaintiff on Monday testified to the alleged indiscreet acts of Miss McGill and Mayer. Miss McGill practically rested her defense upon the testimony of Mayer and herself. She admitted that she had a picture of Mayer in her room but said that it was one of him in the automobile and she said she had given him one of her pictures, but it had been taken in the automobile at Asbury Park and Mayer was also in the picture as was also Mrs. Duke.

The case will go to the jury this morning.

5-CENT FERRY FARE STANDS.

Court Temporarily Enjoins Reduction on the Fort Lee Route.

Judge Mayer issued a temporary injunction yesterday in the Federal District Court restraining the Riverside and Fort Lee Ferry Company, which operates the boats between 129th Street, Manhattan, and Edgewater, N. J., from reducing its tolls tomorrow from 5 to 3 cents for an adult and to 2 cents for a child under 10 years of age. This nullifies temporarily the action of the Bergen County Freeholders, who ordered the reduction. Argument on the injunction will be heard on Friday.

APPEAL FOR UNIFIED FACTORY INSPECTION

Witnesses Testify Better Results Can Be Obtained by Only One Department.

DANGER FOR WORKING GIRLS

Woman Wants Strict Supervision of Employment Agencies—Safety Provisions Urged.

The State Factory Investigating Commission, which held a morning session in the County Court House, and an afternoon session in the City Hall yesterday, heard severe criticism of the factory inspection system as an expense to and an interference with business men. Better results could be obtained, several witnesses said, by unifying the inspection service under one department. Better regulation of working conditions and stricter safety requirements in commercial buildings also were advocated.

Mrs. P. J. O'Connell, Superintendent of the Alliance Employment Bureau, 107 East Seventeenth Street, criticised as disorganized the present system of employment agencies. She urged a strict supervision over those employment agencies which sent out for stenographers, typewriters, and like employes. She said that agencies, many of them philanthropic, sent girls and children to obtain employment without first ascertaining surroundings and atmosphere of the places. One girl, she said, had been sent to a place where she was subsequently murdered, while in many other cases girls had been mistreated.

Reginald P. Bolton, a consulting engineer, Secretary of the Washington Heights Taxpayers' Association, advocated a law that would prevent the use of buildings for factory purposes which lacked proper safety conveniences. He estimated that more than 10,000 freight elevators in New York were used by employes. Sixty per cent. of the elevator accidents in this city, he said, were due to the open door or gate of the elevator and not to the elevator itself.

Carl M. Hansen, chief engineer of the Workmen's Compensation Service Bureau, testified that the safety laws were not stringent enough. Wherever the words "impractical" or "wherever practical" occurred in the statute, he said, that section was made useless. Aisles between machinery in factories, he said, should be made wide enough to permit persons to pass through in safety.

"You do not believe in leaving things to the discretion of boards or officials?" asked Abram I. Elkus, attorney for the commission.

"I do not," replied Mr. Hansen. "That is the very reason none of our Labor Departments in the United States has been able to reduce the number of accidents."

Mr. Hansen said that only one out of ten boilers that exploded had been inspected by insurance companies. The inspection of insurance companies should be accepted, he thought.

Dr. Charles Rogers of the Industrial Hygiene Bureau had harsh words for the stogie. He said stogies should be manufactured in perfectly sanitary places. Many of them, he asserted, were made in basements and in tenements or wherever room could be found to put up a wire cage and thus comply with the Federal requirements.

Charles Schwimbersky, fire prevention adviser to the cotton garment manufacturers, discussed fire escape provisions, and favored less rigid restrictions and definitions of factory fire exits. Michael Murphy of the International Union of Steamfitters complained that many establishments required their employes to work seven days a week, and that others demanded long hours of employment. Among the firms guilty of the first charge, Mr. Murphy specified printing houses, ice factories, and the mechanical departments of hotels.

James B. Holland of the stationary firemen's organization, said the State employed three times as many Inspectors to protect wild game as there were Inspectors to protect the lives of factory workers. Dr. Abraham Korn of the Harlem Property Owners' Association advocated the abolition of the State Labor Department so far as it affected cities of the first class. Its functions, he said, could be performed as well by the city departments. Employment agencies and immigrant lodging houses, he urged, should be under the supervision of the Bureau of Licenses.

Charles F. Noyes, a real estate dealer, attributed a depression in the real estate market to the stringent labor laws. He said he spoke more particularly of low buildings, four, five, and six stories high.

Miss Lillian Wald and Miss Elizabeth Watson, both social workers, said that it had been found impossible to enforce the factory and labor laws. The only solution, she said, was to abolish garment making and like work in the homes. Children as young as 8 years, said Miss Wald, were engaged in this class of home work. Social laws and education had brought about a betterment of sweatshop conditions. Miss Watson said that children of 4 years were known to be engaged in the making of artificial flowers in the home. She told of a girl of 10 who worked all day in a factory and then at night and on Sundays until midnight at home.

The commission will continue its hearing this morning.

COLUMBIA'S DR. BULL FUND.

Income from Memorial Donations Used to Promote Research.

The question has been raised recently in medical journals as to the final disposal of the fund collected for a memorial to Dr. William Tillinghast Bull. It was recalled that in March, 1909, a number of friends and admirers of the surgeon, then lately deceased, met and decided to try to raise $500,000 for a memorial institute of surgical research which was to be a part of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. The members of the committee appointed at that time were John E. Parsons, Chairman; Joseph H. Choate, Austen G. Fox, Dr. Clement Cleveland, Dr. Virgil P. Gibney, Dr. Nathaniel Bowditch Potter, Dr. Francis P. Kinnicutt, Dr. John B. Walker, who was Dr. Bull's close friend and partner, and Dr. L. Bolton Bangs.

After about six months the members of the committee saw that it would be impossible to raise anything like the sum desired, and that the amount which they had on hand was not sufficient for the establishment of a research institute. The money on hand, amounting to about $32,000, was in consequence turned over to the Trustees of Columbia University to be used for the benefit of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. The income is at present being used for the general promotion of the work of the Department of Surgery, of which Prof. George E. Brewer is the head; and it is felt that in this way the fund is being put to the best possible use for the help of research work. It is still known as the William Tillinghast Bull Memorial Fund.

A MYSTERY IN DISGUISE.

Bellboy Can't Understand W. J. Burns's Supposed Make-up.

The latest story of William J. Burns, as told at the Herald Square Hotel, does not concern the detective so much as disguises some persons suppose he assumes. When he got back from Columbus, Ohio, the other day, he brought with him not only his own clothes, but a lot of his wife's dresses, and a boy was sent up from his office to unpack the bags and put the clothes away.

A negro bellboy was sent upstairs with this youngster, to act in behalf of the hotel in this invasion of the rooms of Mr. Burns. He watched the work of the other with interest as the numerous suits were put away. When the white boy began to take out the dresses, the negro's eyes popped.

Numismatist Finds Indian Relic Worth $250 for Sale at $2.

Rescued at a trifling price from neglect in an obscure corner of a New York pawnshop window, one of the rarest of the Indian medals of America has passed into the possession of Thomas L. Elder, numismatist, of 32 East Twenty-third Street. The medal is of silver and is sixty-one millimeters in diameter. Its intrinsic value is about $2, but its rarity and association, Mr. Elder says, make it worth at least $250.

It was the medal worn possibly by the great Indian warrior Pontiac, or at any rate by one of the chiefs under him. Pontiac was the principal chief of the three tribes Ottawas, Ojibways, and Pottawattamies. In 1746 he defended the French at Detroit against an attack by some of the northern tribes, and in 1755 he is believed to have led the Ottawas at Gen. Braddock's defeat. In 1762 he formed a great conspiracy among the Indian tribes. Many forts were taken by surprise and their garrisons were massacred. Pontiac himself besieged Detroit, but failed to capture it. Finally on July 23, 1766, Pontiac and his Indian chiefs concluded a treaty at Oswego with Sir William Johnson. Pontiac was murdered in 1769 by a Kaskaskia Indian, who had been bribed by a barrel of liquor and a promise of additional reward.

After the treaty was signed Sir William Johnson presented gifts to Pontiac and the other Indian warriors. Among these gifts were the silver medals. Only five or six of them are now known to exist. On the obverse is the legend, "Georgius in Dei Gratia," and below it an armored bust of the King to the right, wearing the ribbon of the Garter. On the reverse to the right is a lion reclining, and at the left is a wolf snarling at him. In the background are a church and several houses. Behind the wolf are trees and shrubbery.

Many years ago one of these medals was found on Presque Isle at the mouth of the Shawnee River in the grave of Otussa, a son of Pontiac, and it was said that it was the identical medal worn by Pontiac at the time of his murder. What became of this medal is not known. The lion on the reverse is supposed to represent Great Britain and the wolf to represent France. The medals were struck at the mint in Philadelphia. One of them is owned by the Numismatic Society of this city. Mr. Elder will probably offer his specimen to the Michigan Historical Society.

At the top of the medal is a small hole through which a ribbon or cord was passed so that the medal might be worn suspended from the recipient's neck.

JURY FIXER PLEADS GUILTY.

District Attorney Seeks Gang Who Made Business of Bribery.

George Jaimeson, who confessed last week to Assistant District Attorney O'Malley that he had agreed to take $150 for "hanging" a jury, of which he was a member, in the mining case suit of Rattray against Hazard, in the Supreme Court, pleaded guilty yesterday before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions to an indictment charging bribery. He will be sentenced on June 30.

Mr. O'Malley told the court that Jaimeson would aid the District Attorney at the trial of Milton Solomon, an electrician, of 405 Bleecker Street, who was arrested with Jamieson after $60 in bribe money had been passed in the sight of two detectives. Jamieson received $35 of this and Solomon got $25, it is charged.

Solomon will be put on trial before Judge Rosalsky on Thursday. He has made no overtures to the District Attorney, and it is Mr. O'Malley's intention to hurry his trial. Further investigation of a supposed "jury fixers' syndicate" will follow.

ROCKEFELLER ERRED SAYS WANAMAKER

FOR PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Would Have Government Take Over Railroads — Blankenburg Says It Is "A Pretty Theory."

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23. — John Wanamaker and Mayor Blankenburg gave their views on the question of Government ownership of public utilities today before the United States Commission on Industrial Relations. The Mayor called it "a pretty theory," which the lack of sufficient morality in American political life made remotely possible of adoption. Mr. Wanamaker said that he believed in Government ownership "absolutely," and thought that its adoption in the case of the railroads would mean a settlement of their difficulties.

Mr. Wanamaker criticised John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for his action in regard to the Colorado strike, saying:

"I think that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., made a very great mistake when he placed President Wilson in a position where he had to send troops to settle industrial troubles. The Government should never have to settle such troubles."

Some of his other important utterances were:

"I believe that all the wealth of the world was made by labor, but I don't believe, like a man who spoke yesterday, that a man should get a kick for inheriting money from a working grandparent, but that he should pray that other grandparents may be as successful.

"I doubt greatly whether trades unions have been the biggest force in bettering the conditions of the working man.

"I believe in public ownership of public utilities. If the Government owned the railroads we could have one-cent postage."

When Mr. Wanamaker took the stand he was asked by Commissioner Weinstock to give what assistance he could in enabling Congress in determining the causes for the lack of complete harmony between labor and capital.

"What is the missing link between them?" asked Mr. Weinstock.

"Prejudice and misunderstanding," replied Mr. Wanamaker. "A Chinese wall has been built up between them by prejudice, and labor has to bear the loss resulting from that wall, as well as the profit. Of course workingmen have just as much right to organize as has capital, but it is unfortunate that so many poor men carry chips on their shoulders. I believe in unions. All wealth is earned by labor. But we must unhitch labor unions from political parties. It will help to do away with this prejudice.

"Trade agreements are unsatisfactory in that there is responsibility on one side and none on the other. A better class of leadership is coming into trades unions, but they have suffered much from inferior leaders. Few labor organizations have worked for anything but to protect their wages, and have restricted their members from learning trades. They would do better to open more doors to young men."

"What is your opinion of Government ownership of public utilities?" asked Commissioner O'Connell.

"I believe in it absolutely," was the emphatic answer. "It should apply to all branches—street cars and gas and other utilities."

These were some items of Mayor Blankenburg's profession of faith:

"To my mind, there is nothing prettier in theory than public ownership; but under present conditions it would be a grave risk, I think. It cannot come until our citizens are educated to a higher sense of citizenship. Politics would creep in, and then the utility would be conducted for the benefit of one or another party. We must first straighten out our politcal system. Only in Europe, under a semi-autocratic form of government, does public ownership seem a success.

"While it is possible to win on a non-partisan platform in this city, most of the local contests are on party lines. The people of Philadelphia have not yet awakened to a full sense of their civic duty, although that spirit is coming. It is evidenced by the Civic Club and by the work of our noble women.

"But until it has fully flowered we had better not have public ownership. We have had painful experiences in experimenting with it. The gas works once belonged to the city. But they became controlled by a ring, whose head was a Czar more powerful than the Czar of Russia. Finally the people, aroused by the Committee of One Hundred, arose and smashed the ring, and the control of the gas works was given to a private company. We get infinitely better service. The terms are fair and the gas is excellent.

"I believe in the recall; I should like to test it now to see whether Philadelphia approves my administration."

CAMPAIGN FOR WHITE SUITS.

League to Meet at Manhattan Beach Tomorrow Night.

Charles Gehring, organizer of the White Clothes League of New York, whose purpose is to induce people to seek comfort in the Summer by adopting clothing suitable to hot weather, announced yesterday that the league would have its first real demonstration tomorrow night at the Oriental Hotel, Manhattan Beach.

The league has no initiation fees and no dues. The only qualifications are the ownership, or temporary possession, of a white suit of clothes. Mr. Gehring and the hotel proprietors and managers who are taking an active part in the crusade for white clothes, have sent out numerous invitations to the party. White clothes will be essential.

Mr. Gehring expects fully 100 members of the league with their wives and daughters and friends to be at a dance which will be a feature of the first official gathering of the league.

LINSON ASKS PARTICULARS.

New Move for Lawyers Accused of Overcharging City.

John J. Linson, who was accused with Everett Fowler and Augustus H. Van Buren of overcharging the city nearly $100,000 for work in condemning land for the new aqueduct, served upon Corporation Counsel Polk yesterday a demand for a bill of particulars. Mr. Linton wants to know just how much of the alleged overcharge is laid at his door. The demand indicates an intention of the defendants to demand separate hearings, which will make it thrice as difficult for the city to substantiate its complaint.

According to the complaint the three men were appointed as special counsel by the city and served from 1907 until 1910. The complaint accused them of having agreed to make excessive charges, and of having divided the excess between them. They were charged also with having duplicated charges of $50 a day, when in reality men employed by them did the work. The bill of particulars demanded by Mr. Linson need not be given unless the court orders it.

All of the accused men are prominent lawyers, and Mr. Fowler and Mr. Linson are also prominent politicians. They live in Kingston, N. Y.

GENTLEMAN OR THIEF?

Found Train Seat for Mrs. Gillespie, but Her Brooch Is Gone.

Mrs. Robert McM. Gillespie of 8 West Fifty-third Street lost a diamond and pearl brooch worth several thousand dollars yesterday either on a New Haven train between New York and Stamford, Conn., or in the Grand Central Terminal. Mrs. Gillespie was inclined to believe last night that the brooch had been taken from her by a thief on the train. She left Stamford, where she and her husband are staying at their country home, to come to New York yesterday morning.

The train was crowded and Mrs. Gillespie was at first unable to obtain a desirable seat. After she had been on the train for some time a man told her that he had secured a very good seat for her in another part of the car, and she accepted his courtesy. As she was walking through the Grand Central Terminal after leaving the train Mrs. Gillespie noticed that the brooch was missing from her dress. She then suspected that there had been some design in the politeness of the man on the train.

The brooch was not only very valuable intrinsically, but a jewel prized very highly by Mrs. Gillespie because of its associations. It had been in her family for several generations and had become hers by inheritance two years ago.

The Unknown River in the July Scribner

Colonel Roosevelt makes a preliminary statement in regard to his exploration of The River of Doubt. It is illustrated from photographs by G. K. Cherrie, the first ever taken or published of scenes along that river. The fourth article of Col. Roosevelt's South American series is also in this number. It gives his hunting experiences "Up the River of Tapirs."

The whole narrative is a vivid and wonderful story of discovery, adventure, observation and hardship.

Studebaker SIX quality cannot be matched save by Studebaker manufacturing methods.

The assembler cannot achieve it with a lowered price—because he is an assembler, not a manufacturer.

The small manufacturer, even with a high priced car, cannot reach it because his production won't support the equipment investment.

Studebaker has all the requisites for producing the highest quality SIX—big volume, laboratories, foundries, heat-treating plants, forge shops, stamping mills, machine shops, body and upholstering plant, etc.

You'll find the evidence of Studebaker manufacturing and Studebaker quality in the way this SIX holds the road; in its vibrationless, silent motor; in its noiseless rear axle and transmission.

These qualities are present in varying degree in other cars, according to whether they are completely or semi-manufactured; or assembled; but you must have them in your "SIX".

Send for the Studebaker Proof Book, describing Studebaker manufacturing methods.

Adequate service maintained day and night the year round in the Times Building. It is open, with elevators running, twenty-four hours a day every day in the year. A complete system of wiring is installed for telephone, telegraph, and messenger calls in each office. Drinking water is filtered. Cleaning is done by vacuum system, and ventilation is perfect.

BROOKLYN HANDICAP WON BY BUCKHORN

Buskin Only Beaten by the Narrowest of Margins in a Stirring Finish.

MAKES RECORD FOR TRACK

All of the Seven Starters Out in Front at Some Time—Big Crowd at Aqueduct Race Course.

Brooklyn Handicap day, as usual, brought out a crowd that never attends a race meeting except on the day when this classic of which Brooklynites particularly are fond is run. There was a distinct atmosphere of the people at the other end of the bridge about the throng. All the "regulars" from New York were on hand, of course, as were a lot of occasionals who like to see the meeting of the top-notchers in a race of this sort.

They saw a good race, too, for Buckhorn only beat Buskin by the very narrowest of margins, a margin so close that only those directly behind the judges' stand could tell which of the pair had won the prize. There was no trouble about placing Rock View, for the other two were a half length in front of his big brown nose, with his stable companion, Thornhill, and the rest of the field beaten off. The race was the most peculiar of any of the big handicaps ever run in that at some period of the struggle every one of the starters, with the possible exception of Lahore, was in front of the field at some stage of the race.

The start was made directly in front of the grand stand, so that all had a chance to see what proved to be a grand race by the seven contestants. The three-year-olds, Luke McLuke and Charlestonian, were scratched early in the day, so that Thornhill was the only starter of that age to fight the elder division. It fell to his lot to make the pace, for Buskin, which got a bit the best of it when the barrier was slipped, was at once taken in hand by Fairbrother, in order that the lighter weighted ones might set the pace for him. So Thornhill led the bunch around the first turn, with Lahore, Buskin and Buckhorn close up and Flying Fairy and Donald Macdonald trailing.

Rock View in Front.

Once they entered the back stretch Buckhorn's nose showed to the fore, and Buxton, who had the mount on Donald Macdonald and thought he was riding the caboose on a freight train, began stirring up that sluggish animal with all the vim he possessed and sent his mount up into the thick of the bunch with a rush that actually made him show his nose in front for an instant. That sprint sent all the other jockeys to the whip, and even the heavy-weighted Rock View showed a flash of speed that put his nose to the fore for a fraction of a second. But on the far turn Buckhorn passed them both and Donald, having shot his bolt, fell back, giving Buskin and Flying Fairy a chance to get where they joined the leaders as they all shot into the stretch. There Flying Fairy showed her nose in front, moving so rapidly that it semeed she was the one they all would have to beat to get the money. But her lead was "a flash in the pan," for Buckhorn and Buskin and then Rock View overhauled her at the last eighth post, and she fell back beaten.

From that point on it was a duel between Buckhorn and Buskin. Running stride for stride there was a stretch of fifty yards where they alternated in the lead as their respective noses bobbed up and down. Then McCahey made his supreme effort. Taking a firm hold of his mount he "hand-rode" him to the end of the journey, and made him last long enough to beat Buskin, who seemingly had made his supreme effort just a trifle too late to snatch the victory. It was a gloriously stirring finish, for Rock View was lapped on the struggling pair, just being robbed of the honors, as it seemed as if he actually ran the last furlong faster than either of the two in front of him.

It was a finish worth going miles to see, even if one didn't have a bet on the winner. Buckhorn's last race had been so bad that he was at nine or ten to one in the speculation, while Buskin was the favorite, on the theory that he would repeat his Metropolitan Handicap victory. He was as good a horse as he was on that day, but Buckhorn was a little bit better. That seemed to be all the trouble with the defeat of the favorite.

Belmont Horses Placed.

As the race was the fastest ever run over the track at the distance by nearly two seconds Buskin's defeat had no sting in it to mar his reputation as a grand, good racer.

Getting the jump on his field at the raising of the barrier, Granite had things his own way in the opening six furlongs dash, for which he was the favorite. He was never headed, though Pawhuska and Besom both made determined efforts to catch him at the head of the long straight stretch. But Butwell would not be denied, and put the opening race of the meeting to his credit by landing Granite first past the wire, a couple of lengths in front of Pawhuska, with the rest beaten off.

Helen Barbee stood a hard drive in the stretch when Flittergold and Punch Bowl challenged her for the race at a mile. It was a "hammer-and-tongs" run all down the stretch, and the trio were on even terms opposite the old field stand. But Helen Barbee had enough left to beat Flittergold by a length, with the latter only a nostril in front of Punch Bowl when they rushed by the judges in a driving finish.

Embroidery, Luxury and Amazon made a beautiful race of the run for 2-year-olds at five furlongs, for which the latter was favorite. It was only by the cleverest kind of riding that Buxton was able to pick up the purse with Embroidery, for Luxury and Amazon, both under strong drives, were lapped on her as she ended her run. The other runners were beaten so far off as to make them look outclassed.

After Dartworth, which made the running for just half the distance in the fifth race, ran out at the head of the stretch, Crossbun and Monocacy had the finish between them. Monocacy, in a furious drive in the last eighth, caught the Belmont filly a hundred yards from the finish and beat her home by a length. Dartworth, who started out so well, was last to finish.

Running like a scared dog with a tin pan tied to its tail, Gaelic won the last race so easily and by such a distance, that the rest were never in it. Lampoon and Doublet had a hot fight for the place, however, the former, who was favorite in the speculation, getting it by a nose. Summaries:

Doublet, James Butler's b. g., 107, (Kederis,) 6 to 1 and 2 to 1....3[3]
Rhine Maiden, Gloaming, Busy Edith, Polarius, and Mallard also ran.

Aqueduct Racing Notes.

Buckhorn's share of the Brooklyn Handicap purse was $3,350 net. R. J. Mackenzie, his owner, is a railroad contractor of the Northwest, just now engaged in constructing a section of the Canadian Northern Road.

In the race for the Belmont Stakes, or soon after it, Luke McLuke cracked one of his heels, which was the reason for his withdrawal from the race in which his owner, John W. Schorr, a brewer of Memphis, Tenn., had hoped to start his colt, and fully expected to win it. As Buckhorn's record for the race beat that of Bangor for the distance, 2:09 2-5, made with only 98 pounds in the saddle, Luke McLuke would certainly have had to be "some horse" to defeat Buckhorn and Buskin.

Sheriff Eminer of Queen's County, with a score or more of deputies, was at the track to see that there was no violation of the betting law as it has been interpreted by the District Attorney of the county. As there were about fifty Pinkerton men scattered about and a covey of police in tan-colored uniforms representing the township, and no interference with the oral betting that was going on, it was on the surface an exceptionally law-abiding crowd, for no arrests were made. This was due perhaps to the fact that a number of men were told that their room was better than their company, and were told to keep away from the track. Some of these would-be visitors were men whose pictures have a place in the photograph albums of the police or detective agencies.

Buckhorn's victory would seem to vindicate the action of the stewards of The Jockey Club in indefinitely suspending the license of the boy Woods, who rode the horse last Thursday at Belmont Park, when he was badly beaten by Republican and Thornhill.

Auto Carnival for New York.

Greater New York is to have an automobile carnival in connection with the Commercial Tercentenary Celebration, to be held in September and October. A committee of fifteen men active in the automobile industry is to direct this part of the celebration. It is planned to have a big night pageant depicting on floats, allegorical and otherwise, the growth of the automobile and accessory industries. There will also be a section for private owners, including a division of florally decorated cars, electric cars, and grotesque, cyclecar, decorated motor truck and advertising sections. The pageant, which will be run through Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Queens, will take place in the last week in September. The committee in charge consists of William C. Portner, Chairman; Alfred Reeves, S. A. Miles, J. C. Nichols, Fred J. Wagner, A. G. Batchelder, Charles A. Stewart, E. Lascaris, Elmer Thompson, William M. Sweet, George Duck, David Beecroft, John C. Wetmore, Julian C. Chase, Harvey Robinson, Frank G. Webb, Clifford M. Bishop, Edward F. Korbel, M. W. Colwell.

Baltusrol Golf to Start Early.

Louis Keller, Secretary of the Baltusrol Golf Club, over the links of which an invitation tournament will begin tomorrow morning, issued an announcement last night that players may start as early as 8 o'clock. There is a heavy entry list, containing 129 names, and Secretary Keller fears there may be difficulty in getting the field away promptly. Players will be paired at the first tee and may start in the order of their arrival. An early start is necessary, for the first round of match play is scheduled for the afternoon.

Resolute defeated Vanitie by 0:14:39, (actual time,) and 0:16:20, (corrected time.)

Vanitie defeated Defiance by 0:09:14, (actual time,) and 0:03:52, (corrected time.)

Resolute, the flag officers' candidate, went a long way toward establishing her right to defend the America's Cup against Sir Thomas Lipton's fourth Shamrock challenger by completely outclassing both Vanitie and Defiance in a thirty-mile race on the Sound, off Greenwich, yesterday. Clad in her new double head rig, which enabled her to carry three foresails, instead of two, she excelled in every department of the game, and if the wind had not died down in the last part of the journey, the victory would have been even more overwhelming than it was.

Without time allowance, Resolute won from Vanitie by 14 minutes and 39 seconds and from Defiance by 23 minutes and 53 seconds. She averaged half a minute faster than Vanitie every mile of the way. Rivalry there may be between these three great sloops, but yesterday Resolute knew no rivals. It was a mockery of a race.

On corrected time the margin over Vanitie was lengthened to 16 minutes and 20 seconds, while the margin over Defiance was reduced to 20 minutes and 12 seconds. Resolute's new head rig, by increasing her sail area, entitled her to only 1 minute and 41 seconds from the bronze-hulled Cochran sloop, while Defiance, sailing through the race for the first time, received 5 minutes and 22 seconds from Vanitie and 3 minutes and 41 seconds from Resolute.

The début of the tri-city contender was welcomed on all sides, but it did not add materially to the competitive features of the race. The pace was too fast, and after a gallant bid for the lead at the start, Defiance fell back and remained the trailer to the finish. She was sailed first by George M. Pynchon, her amateur skipper and managing owner, and then by Capt. Selah B. Howell, her professional helmsman, and there were on board George Owen, her designer, and E. Walter Clark and George Lauder, Jr., two other members of the syndicate of Boston, New York, and Philadelphia yachtsmen who own her. With her knockabout rig and minus a bowsprit, Defiance showed that she had in her many fine sailing qualities that may later be brought out, but at no time did she display speed worthy of a sloop that would try conclusions with such as Resolute and Vanitie.

Charles Francis Adams, 2d, of Boston, Resolute's amateur skipper, handled the yacht with the dash and abandon that has characterized his work from the first. Headwork played a big part in the winning of the race and, as usual, Mr. Adams showed that he could be depended upon. Pitted against him, in addition to Mr. Pynchon, was Capt. Bill Dennis's successor on Vanitie, Harry Haff, who was sailing his first trial race. Capt. Haff handled his boat well, considering that he was short on experience, and it was a pleasaure to see the big sloop come about smartly inside of fourteen seconds when the same trick used to take twenty-three and twenty-five seconds under the old régime.

The race, which was held under the management of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club for a special prize, was sailed under typical Sound conditions, which is to say, poor conditions. The start was delayed half an hour waiting for a breeze, and when it came it was of the feeblest sort. It puffed intermittently all afternoon, sometimes swelling to a six-knot blow, and sometimes petering out altogether. The sky was overcast and the yachts finished in a drizzle of rain, but despite this a good-sized fleet of pleasure craft turned out to see the struggle. The Indian Harbor Yacht Club chartered the steamer Ursula for the occasion, and a big party of Greenwich folk crowded the decks. Among the yachts there were J. P. Morgan's Corsair, E. C. Benedict's Oneida, Edmund Randolph's Ellen, with W. Butler Duncan of the America's Cup Committee on board; George M. Pynchon's Marie, Addison and Wilmer Hanan's Maviet, Frederick C. Fletcher's Cristina, Harry Maxwell's Stiletto, Alexander Smith Cochran's Mohican, George F. Baker's Viking, E. Y. Weber's Mareva, Charles E. Berners' Owyhee, Morton F. Plant's Thelma, with Mr. Plant and his bride aboard; Walton Ferguson's Christabel, and George Lauder, Jr.'s, Endymion.

The committee in charge of the match was composed of Richard A. Monks, Chairman; Henry C. Pelton, Abbott P. Brush, Frank Bowne Jones, and Magistrate Charles E. Simms of this city. The committee used the tug W. H. Childs, and established a starting line off Great Captain Island, signaling a triangular course of fifteen miles, twice around. The first leg extended five and three-eighths miles along shore east by north, one-quarter north to the Cows, off Shippan Point. The second was a straight cut across the Sound to Centre Island, a distance of four and three-eighths miles, south by west, one-quarter west. The third led back to Captain Island, and was five and one-fourth miles northwest, one-half west.

The preliminary signal was at 12:45 o'clock, and the warning ten minutes later. There was a mild three-cornered scrap for first to cross, but Mr. Adams soon withdrew, leaving Capt. Haff and Mr. Pynchon to have it out between themselves. All three boats circled the buoy at the far end of the line, Haff keeping Vanitie close up to Defiance. The wind was northeast at the start, and the ebb tide would help the boats in the beat to windward.

With the starting whistle at 1 o'clock, Mr. Pynchon brought Defiance about sharply on the starboard tack and made for the line. Capt. Haff circled inside of him and got the windward berth although a trifle astern. Skipper Adams hovered a short distance astern, keeping out of trouble. Defiance went over the line at 1:00:17, and Vanitie at 1:00:43, while Resolute followed at 1:01:22.

Once over Mr. Adams brought Resolute about and headed for the better breeze and stronger tide in the open Sound, but Capt. Haff kept right on after Defiance and the pair went in close to shore. The Gardner boat was footing much faster than the Owen knockabout, and she soon had the latter blanketd. Twelve minutes after starting, Defiance came about and Vanitie crossed her bows, forcing her back to the port tack. That ended the little duel and Vanitie set out to catch Resolute.

But a good deal of time had been wasted in this inshore tacking match and Mr. Adams had made the most of every minute of it. He had Resolute a mile or so off shore, and with the better breeze and stronger tide the Herreshoff yacht was walking right away from her nearest rival. Both Resolute and Vanitie carried medium jib topsails in addition to jibs, staysails and clubs, while Defiance's rig consisted only of her single headsail, club and mainsail. Capt. Haff worked Vanitie out as far as he could, but it was a long time before he got the good breeze. Mr. Pynchon found almost no breeze at all closer to land, and by the time Resolute was ready to round the first mark, Defiance was not much more than half way there, with Vanitie in between.

The times at the first mark were: Resolute, 2:05:24; Vanitie, 2:10:29; Defiance, 2:13:41.

In these first five miles or more Resolute had pocketed a lead of five minutes and forty-four seconds over Vanitie and nine minutes and twenty-two seconds over Defiance. The procession had begun. The second leg was a broad reach to the Long Island shore. Resolute had to dodge an intruding tug with barges in tow, but she could spare a few seconds without feeling it. She was traveling fast in the light breeze, using her big reaching jib, while Vanitie, with her ballooner, was dropping Defiance further astern, but unable to keep up with the leader. On this leg Resolute gained forty-five seconds more over Vanitie, while the latter gained one minute and seven seconds over the tri-city candidate.

The times at the second turn were: Resolute, 2:34:02; Vanitie, 2:39:52; Defiance, 2:47:49. Defiance had lost a lot through trouble with her ballooner soon after the first turn. The big sail refused to stay put at first, and had to be hauled in. For several minutes the sloop hove to, while the crew repaired the trouble.

On the third leg, a broad reach at first, Resolute broke out her ballooner and streaked across the Sound. Vanitie did likewise, both having booms eased to port, while Defiance took up the chase in like fashion somewhat later. A southerly shift in the wind gave the tri-city boat a chance to use her spinnaker, and Vanitie followed suit as soon as the shift struck her, but try as they would there was no catching the white-hulled Herreshoff sloop. The spinnaker on Defiance set very poorly, as it extended only to the top of the mainmast and fell in folds on deck.

Without resorting to a spinnaker, Resolute covered this third leg 3 seconds faster than Vanitie, and her lead at the end of the first half of the race was 6 minutes 32 seconds, without time allowance. Resolute had a lead of 15 minutes 58 seconds over Defiance, or an average of more than a minute a mile in the first fifteen.

The times for the third leg were: Resolute, 3:20:24; Vanitie, 3:26:17; Defiance, 3:35:49.

In spite of the lesson of the first round, Capt. Haff held Vanitie to a course close to shore, while Mr. Adams immediately went into open water. They used their No. 1 jibs for this leg, Vanitie taking several short hitches to keep away from land. The tactics again favored Resolute, and at the turn she had added 4 minutes 54 seconds to her already comfortable lead. Her lead over Defiance here was 27 minutes 41 seconds.

The breeze obligingly picked up a bit for the trip across the Sound, and Resolute made fast time, first with her big reaching jib and then with her smaller No. 1. Vanitie, too, used a reaching jib, but, although her sails seemed to be filling well, she could not gain an inch. Far in the ruck loomed Defiance. The tri-city candidate was only just around the fourth mark when Resolute turned the fifth. The times at the fifth turn showed that Resolute had gained 59 seconds in the last leg, and was now leading Vanitie by 12 minutes and 25 seconds, while Defiance was 48 minutes and 19 seconds astern.

The homeward journey was enlivened for a while by a fickle turn of the breeze, which deserted the leader and blew all its power into Vanitie's sails. Hopelessly outdistanced as she was, the Cochran sloop took every advantage of the shift, and, with Resolute standing still in mid-Sound, Capt. Haff worked his sloop to the westward, where the breeze was, and began to slip up slowly. But just when it seemed that things might become interesting a northeasterly slant swept that part of the Sound where Resolute stood waiting, and Skipper Adams had only to jibe, catch it, and streak for home.

Resolute finished at 5:57:10. Vanitie followed at 6:11:10, and Defiance at 6:19:58.

Vanitie's eleventh-hour sally had not prevented Resolute from tacking more than two minutes on to her lead, but the last puff of breeze was good fortune to Defiance. It enabled her to beat both boats on the last leg. Her elapsed time was 0:46:02, against 1:11:00 for Resolute, and 1:13:14 for Vanitie.

Alexander S. Cochran, the owner; William Gardner, the designer; E. V. Willis, the new assistant skipper, and R. W. Perkins, sailed on board Vanitie, while Resolute's company included George Nichols, Robert Emmons, 2d, George A. Cormack, John Parkinson, Capt. Chris Christiansen, and George F. Baker, one of the members of the flag officers' syndicate.

The trio will have a rest today, and tomorrow they will compete in the annual regatta of the New York Yacht Club. Friday and Saturday they are scheduled to race for Commodore Harold S. Vanderbilt's Cup, under the management of the Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Club at Oyster Bay.

SHAMROCK IV. FAR AHEAD.

Cup Challenger Beats Old Shamrock 12 Minutes in 15 Miles.

SOUTHAMPTON, June 23.—The British challenger for the America's Cup, Shamrock IV., had her first hard weather trial today with the older Shamrock and acquitted herself well. In a stiff northwesterly breeze, necessitating reefed mainsails, the challenger worked out a lead of three minutes in a run of five miles. This was followed by a ten-mile thrash to windward, in which the challenger did still better, beating her opponent by twelve minutes.

JUNIORS START THEIR GOLF.

Philip V. G. Carter, the Champion, Leads Field at Plainfield.

In addition to leading the field in the qualifying round, Philip V. G. Carter of Nassau, the champion, won his first match in the Metropolitan junior golf championship yesterday over the links of the Plainfield Country Club, defeating his clubmate, H. W. Maxwell by three up and one to play. Carter's medal winning score was 77.

Maxwell had a score of 80 in the testing circuit, and it was good enough to finish second on the list. There was a wide gap after that, so it was immediately figured that Carter and Maxwell would be the principal contestants for the championship. However, the luck of the draw brought these two together in the first round, with the result that Maxwell was eliminated.

It was not that Maxwell did not give the champion a good match, for even if Carter had a one-hole advantage at the turn Maxwell was actually one up at the thirteenth. The crucial point came at the 460-yard fourteenth hole, where Maxwell's approach shot was badly flubbed. Carter won the hole and squared the match. Then by a streak of great golf he never needed more than three shots for any of the remaining holes, as 73 for the links is the best that has been done at Plainfield this year.

There were forty-three starters, and provision was made for five flights of eight each, so that only two or three of those who handed in cards were not provided for in the match play. The entry was the largest since the tournament was first held, and the links of the club has been materially stiffened in the last year. The scores:

Qualifying Round—Philip V. G. Carter, Nassau, 77; H. W. Maxwell, Nassau, 80; Osborne Lawes, Upper Montclair, 86; E. Nash, Apawamis, 87; Vincent Hilton, Hackensack, 88; Leonard S. Church, Plainfield, 88; J. W. Stafford, Hackensack, 89; H. Hutchinson, Forest Hill, 89.

Second Eight—E. C. Stevens, St. Andrews, 89; A. L. Pierson, Jr., Montclair, 89; D. J. McGrath, Yountakah, 90; J. D. Beals, Jr., Wykagyl, 91; Richard Goldman, Ocean City, 92; E. A. G. Porter, Moylan, 92; Harold Downey, Canoe Brook, 95; R. A. Haight, Massapequa, 95.

Women to Play Golf at Shawnee.

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Penn., June 23.—Women golfers from various sections gathered on the links of the Shawnee Country Club today for the invitation tournament which begins here tomorrow. Mrs. R. H. Barlow of Merion, former champion of the Women's Eastern Golf Association, and Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, practiced over the course this afternoon and found it in fine condition, though more difficult than ever. Mrs. Florian Krug and Miss Louise F. Krug of Englewood also had a round, as did Miss Mildred Caverly and Miss Ethel Campbell. The tournament will start with an eighteen-hole medal round, conditions calling for contestants to qualify in eights. There will be one round each morning, with an extra event in the afternoon. The tournament will end on Saturday.

PRINCETON NINE TRIUMPHS OVER YALE--ROWING TIME TRIALS END

TIGERS BEAT YALE IN FINAL GAME, 1 TO 0

Great Rejoicing at Polo Grounds When Princeton Downs the Elis.

Princeton's baseball team defeated Yale at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon in the deciding game of the series by a score of 1 to 0, and Princeton is now perfectly satisfied. At just 5:30 last evening thousands of lusty young throats were chanting "Old Nassau," which echoed above the din and shouting of the hilarious sophomores and old grads who surrounded the Tiger nine and patted them on the back. Yale was beaten fairly and squarely in a close, well played game, and the Yale team disappeared from the tumult of Princeton's triumph, sorely disappointed because they had victory ever so near their grasp and could not reach it.

It was a game of tight pitching and meagre hitting, which most of the old-fashioned graduates did not like. The men who played ball at New Haven and Princeton years ago like to see a game where the hits rain all over the field and the runs stream in so fast that it's difficult to keep track of them. Baseball is different now. The twirling was so good and the hitting so weak that the combination made the game monotonous for the old dignified boys who like a lot of fireworks in their ball game.

Bill Deyo, the Princeton pitcher, had the Elis swinging like windlasses in a high wind. The only Yale lad who hit the ball at all was "Home Run" Hanes, who last Saturday beat Harvard by slamming out a homer with the bases full. Hanes yesterday got three hits, one a two-bagger, but the support given to Deyo by the Tigers was so brilliant that the Elis appeared powerless before the Jungletown troupe.

Yale had the Tigers poised nervously on a banana peel in the third inning, when they jammed the bases to suffocation, with one out, and it looked as if the Blue was ready to send for the undertaker, when "Strong Armed" Green, the Princeton right fielder, clutched a long fly from Long John Reilly's bat for the second out, and whipped the ball to the plate in time to nab Middlebrook as he was sliding home.

Princeton knew just as well as anybody that they were all-fired lucky to scramble out of that deep hole, so the cheering section came to life. The Tiger cheer leader, who was none other than A. C. M. Azoy, who is also an editor, went through a lot of wild gymnastics, as if he was trying to reduce from 180 pounds to 150 in one afternoon.

But that flurry of excitement was a whisper compared to the way the Princeton students conducted themselves in the fourth inning, when this same Mr. Green coaxed Hanks over the plate with the lonesome run which won the game.

Hanks, who was the first Tiger up in that inning, singled to left. Laird sacrificed him to second, and he scampered to third when Gill was being exterminated at first. Green spanked a roller to first and Swihart, the Yale first baseman, got it, but no one was covering the base. Swihart tried to jump in ahead of the runner, but he was several moments late and Hanks scored.

"Hughey," the infant Princeton bat boy, was the first to grab Hanks and congratulate him. Before he reached the bench, however, Hanks was besieged on all sides, and by the time he sat down he had been congratulated so enthusiastically that he was all covered with black and blue bruises.

A crowd of more than 8,000, which included many pretty girls, saw the game and there was more Princeton noise than Yale could arouse, which showed that New Haven is not only backward about baseball but also voice cultivation. It was a strange crowd for the Polo Grounds because of the fact that all the rooters confined themselves exclusively to speaking the English language, instead of the Harlem dialect which is in vogue there at other times.

Umpire Paul Sternberg ought to thank his lucky stars that he was umpiring a college game. You see, college players never kick at the umpire, which makes the job perfectly safe. Sternberg, in the seventh inning, missed a couple of decisions on first base, which went against Princeton.

In a regular ball game conduct of this kind would necessitate a hurriedly written will on the part of Mr. Sternberg. He might live to tell it, but that's doubtful. The Princeton crowd could probably be criticised for what they thought, but martyr-like, they said nothing. It would be just as well, however, for Sternberg to stay out of dark alleys when he is out alone at night.

All the college boys had their hat bands with them. These hat bands are worn to distinguish the fraternity flock from the other students. Of all the flaring bands, those worn by the members of "Eye-ate-a-Pie" fraternity were in the majority. The game was largely attended by well-dressed men, who, at one time in the past, made life miserable for the fatherly old Professors, but who have long since gone to work for a living.

"Pie" Way, the Yale pitcher, gave Princeton only four hits and he had more movement than a dollar watch. His wind-up was a thing of beauty and he tied himself up like a pretzel before he delivered the ball.

Yale had splendid chances to score in the first and third innings, but Deyo, the Tiger flinger, rose to the occasion like his supporting players and checked himself before any damage was done. The score:

INDIANAPOLIS, June 23.—The local Federals made a clean sweep of the series at the expense of the Brooklyn Tip-Tops this afternoon by winning 12 to 3 and scoring their fourteenth straight victory. A double-header had been scheduled, but the first game was called off on account of rain after the third inning, when the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of the locals. Cy Falkenberg pitched airtight ball until the game was well in hand. The Hoosiers got away to a start of five runs in the first inning of the second game. Otto Peters was sent to the mound for the visitors, but lasted only the one round; five hits being gathered off his delivery. The score:

Fraternity Sides with Kraft.

Some difficulty is being encountered by the Baseball Players' Fraternity and the National Commission over the case of Clarence O. Kraft, who was with the Brooklyn National League team in the early part of this season, but who has been ordered to the Nashville Club of the Southern League. Kraft was released to the Newark Club of the International League by Brooklyn, but the National Commission ruled that the Nashville Club had a prior claim upon him and that if he went to the "minors" at all he would have to go to the Tennessee team. Kraft wants to play in Newark, where he expects to get a larger salary than he could in Nashville, and is said to have been advised by President David L. Fultz of the Players' Fraternity not to report to the Southern League.

The matter in dispute involved a conflict between the rules of organized ball and the concessions made to the Players' Fraternity last Winter. It is a question whether the minor leagues shall be bound as well as the major leagues by the agreement between the fraternity and the commission.

WHEAT'S SINGLE BEATS PIRATES

Victory Comes for Brooklyn in First Inning — Rucker Pitches Well.

President Charles H. Ebbets of the Dodgers received a bouquet of flowers and a baseball game yesterday. The bouquet was a gift from 1,000 Coney Island newsboys, who were at the game as guests, and who took that method of showing their appreciation of the club's kindness. The baseball game was not a gift, but was torn from the Pittsburgh Pirates by force by Zack Wheat and Ebbets's other baseball employes in what is believed to have been the shortest game of the season. The score of 2 to 1 represented only one hour and eleven minutes of play.

The game was won in the first inning, when Wheat singled and scored O'Mara and Daubert. "Nap" Rucker was pitching in his old-time form, but the Pirates were not willing to give up at this stage, as they might have done to be agreeable, but struggled through nine innings, with no particular results except that they sneaked a run over and gave Hans Wagner an opportunity to make a three-base hit. This latter event, worthy of great notice in view of the fact that Hans is batting under .300 for one of the few seasons in his career, came in the sixth inning. Wagner was later tagged out between third base and the plate on Konetchy's grounder, but the mere fact that he could still make a three-baser seemed to cheer the veteran up a whole lot. There was a smile on his face for the remainder of the game, and he hopped around the short-field position like a youngster.

The Pirates scored their lone run in the eighth inning. The run was made by Carey, who got to first by singling over second. Mowrey, who followed with another single, put Carey along to third base. The latter got an opportunity to score while Mowrey was being forced out at second on Viox's grounder to Red Smith.

Brooklyn would have had another run in the third inning had it not been that O'Mara was too anxious and left third base, in the opinion of the umpire, before Kelly caught Wheat's fly. O'Mara had got on base by a single to right field. Daubert followed with another single and Dalton walked, filling the bases. Rucker, who opened the inning, had popped out, and it looked bright for Brooklyn scoring again with three men on bases and only one out. Wheat followed Dalton by hitting a long fly to Kelly. O'Mara started home and crossed the plate with lots of time to spare. Kelly, in fact, did not even try to get him at the plate, but threw to second, where Daubert was caught off and doubled, making the third out. O'Mara had crossed the plate before the out at second, but the umpire ruled that he left before the catch and declared that the run did not count. The score:

Rixey Knocked Out of Box.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—St. Louis won today's game by knocking Rixey off the rubber in the third inning, the score being 7 to 5. Jacobs, who succeeded Rixey, did excellent work, but Steele, who took Hageman's place with the bases filled and one out in the second session, held the home team in check until the eighth, when a pass to Cravath, Luderus's single, and Paskert's triple scored three runs. Cleveland Defeats Detroit in Playing Postponed Game.

DETROIT, June 23.—Cleveland and Detroit played off a postponed game here today and by heavy hitting in the early innings the Naps won, 5 to 4. The batting of Wood, with four hits out of five times at bat, was a feature. Capt. Moriarty of Detroit will be out of the game for a few days because of injuries to his hand which he received when he stole home in yesterday's game. The score:

Dartmouth Defeats Amherst Again.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., June 23.—In the presence of a large crowd of commencement guests, Dartmouth won her final game of the season today, 6 to 3, downing Amherst the second time in two days. The game was slow and uninteresting, poor fielding by both teams being conspicuous. Low and Wanamaker were the stars of the game, the former getting a three-bagger, his fourth in the past week. After the game Clarence L. Wanamaker, 1915, of Melrose, Mass., was unanimously elected captain of the team for next year. He has played on the 'Varsity the past two seasons, and is considered the best college catcher in the East. He is also a member of the 'Varsity hockey team. Wanamaker is 22 years old, 5 feet 10 inches tall, and weighs 180 pounds. He is President of his class, a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity, and of the Sphinx senior society. The score:

Carpentier Wants Warrant for Cobb.

DETROIT, June 23.—William L. Carpentier, the meat market owner, who was attacked by Tyrus Cobb on Saturday night, today asked Prosecuting Attorney Allan H. Fraser to issue a warrant for the ball player's arrest. The Prosecutor told Carpentier he should appeal to one of the Police Justices for a warrant of that nature. Up to this evening, however, Carpentier had not appeared before any of the Police Court officials.

Michigan Blanks Pennsylvania.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 23.—Hitting at opportune moments and fielding in faultless style, Michigan defeated Pennsylvania today, 4 to 0. Ferguson of Michigan was found for five hits, but he kept them widely scattered and struck out eight men. Sayre was displaced by Weed in the seventh inning, having yielded four hits. Score:

COLUMBIA CREWS ROW TIME TRIALS

Coach Rice Gives Out No Figures, but Seems Well Pleased with the Results.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 23.—Columbia wound up the time trials for most of the crews before the races on Friday by taking all three eights down to the four-mile mark late this evening and sending them off under the watch. They had a fair flood tide and a slight breeze up the river, the conditions being excellent for good time. Jim Rice would make no official announcement as to the time of either of his two-mile crews or of his 'Varsity, but he seemed pleased with the result.

Announcements have come from both Wisconsin and Pennsylvania quarters that they will not row any more trials under the watch, and it is thought that the trial tonight is Columbia's last before the race.

Coach Courtney has made no statement for Cornell, but he is not likely to push his men hard from now on.

Wisconsin ran into bad luck today, when Coach Vail found that Webster's infected hand was so painful and serious that he would be unable to row at bow in the freshman eight. This is the climax of a series of misfortunes to the first-year crew which seems to put it hopelessly out of the race. Poppy will take his place in the freshman boat and row in the race.

Coach Vail had expected to take his 'Varsity and freshman eights over the lower course for a time row, but it was found that C. H. Cassberg was suffering from a strained back, and therefore no attempt at time was made. Cassberg is rowing at No. 5 in the 'Varsity. In order to nurse him back into shape, the work of the Badgers will be light tomorrow, and Coach Vail has definitely decided to send his eights into the races without further rowing under the watch.

Coach Vail does not hold out much hope of victory for either of his Wisconsin crews. He feels that the 'Varsity has gone back, and the unfavorable weather of last week has retarded their practice. During the morning practice Coach Vail's launch broke down, and he had a hard time getting back to the float. He had to take a hand with the paddle and work the launch back a mile and a half to the quarters.

The Cornell 'Varsity was sent down the course this afternoon, but no attempt at time was made. The crew did not raise the stroke above twenty-six at any point in the four miles except at the finish, when Coach Courtney let them raise the pace a few notches. The freshman and junior eights went to the two-mile mark and paddled down easily, not even creating any excitement by racing.

The Pennsylvania crews took a long paddle upstream in the evening, all three of the eights going up past Krum Elbow. The morning practice of the junior and freshman eights was more exciting, the two going off from the four-mile mark up with the tide to the two-mile mark. They were both working for all there was in them, and the freshmen won out by three feet. Coach Nickalls later in the day told Coach Courtney that the youngsters covered the two miles in 9:23, which is considered exceptionally good time under the conditions.

Coach Connibear took his Washington 'Varsity crew for a long row up past the head of the course this afternoon in their only workout for the day. They pulled a twenty-eight stroke and rowed five miles without a stop. After a short rest they were headed about, and came down practicing spurts on the way. They raised the stroke to thirty-five and then to thirty-six in these spurts, but they were splashing considerably. The Seattle lads are counting on their brawn to carry them through to victory, and they do not intend to play a waiting game this year.

There has been little evidence of betting so far, but this afternoon the Pennsylvania followers with some agility took a bet of 10 to 8 offered by the Washington men. The Seattle lads had $100 which the Quakers promptly covered with $80. The Westerners do not seem a bit daunted by the comparison of times which were made yesterday in their time row and that of the Quakers, and seem ready to cover most any bet that comes their way.

The Syracuse coach had a little scare this morning when Robins, who rows at No. 4 in the 'Varsity shell, awakened with a slight attack of tonsilitis. He was hurried to Poughkeepsie and given treatment and no trouble is feared. Robins rowed in the boat as usual.

There was some discussion this afternoon by local tide experts regarding the tide conditions on Friday, the day of the race. It was figured that the first race, which is called for 4:15, will be rowed on the last of the flood tide, the crews rowing down stream against the tide. The second race, set for 4:45, will be rowed ten minutes after the turn of the tide, thus giving the advantage to the inside crews. A south wind on Friday will, the tide experts say, delay the flow of the ebb tide over a half hour, and in this event the first two races will be rowed against the tide if the officials follow out the schedule.

HOW TO MOTOR TO REGATTA.

Best Routes to Poughkeepsie Described by A. C. A.

Of the thousands who will attend the boat races at Poughkeepsie on Saturday many are expected to make the trip by automobile. For those who wish to use the motor car to carry them to the six-cornered contest of Cornell, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Syracuse, Washington and Wisconsin, the Bureau of Tours of the Automobile Club of America has investigated the roads and reports the direct road in good condition save in a few places. This route and other satisfactory roads are described below:

The Albany Post Road is the direct route. From Columbus Circle on Broadway to Getty Square in Yonkers is all good asphalt. From Getty Square Warburton Avenue, the road nearest the Hudson River, is in fine condition to Hastings. Broadway is also in good condition to Hastings, and on through Dobbs Ferry, Irvington and Tarrytown to Scarborough. Here a detour is necessary, as the road is being rebuilt. The better way to go from Tarrytown is to leave the river road and go by way of Pocantico Hills, then turn left through Briarcliff, from which place go to Ossining.

In Ossining the road is a little rough, and then fair macadam leads through Harmon. Beyond this place are some worn stretches through Croton and Buchanan, followed by a good brick surface entering Peekskill. After leaving this town the State Road continues through Annsville to a point three miles beyond. Here the State Road is still under construction, and will not be completed for several weeks. This construction work necessitates using the old road by way of Garrison to Fishkill Village. From Fishkill Village good macadam runs north through Wappinger Falls to Poughkeepsie, except that the last five miles have become worn and bumpy.

An attractive way to make the trip is to use the Harlem Valley to Pawling. Here the night may be comfortably spent, and the next morning an attractive run of thirty-three miles may be made to Poughkeepsie. This Pawling route also follows Broadway north through Yonkers to Dobbs Ferry. Here, at a church, take the road to the right to Ardsley. Now turn left and follow the Saw Mill River Road, through Elmsford, Eastview, Briarcliff, Yorktown Heights, Amawalk and Baldwin Place to Lake Mahopac.

Continue north on State Road through Carmel and Paterson to Pawling, seventy-four miles from New York. The next leg of the journey is to follow a dirt road to the westward through a most attractively wild section of the country through Stone House and Poughquag to Green Haven. Here State road will be found for the balance of the trip by way of Stormville, East Fishkill, Wicopee, Brinckerhoff, Fishkill Village and Wappinger Falls to Poughkeepsie.

Roads through the country on the west side of the Hudson also afford a very delightful trip of eighty-five miles. Use the Forty-second Street Ferry to Weehawken. Follow the Hudson County Boulevard, south to Newark Avenue, then turn right and go toward Newark. Cross the railroad and at once take the road which forks to the right. It is in good condition through Arlington and Belleville to Montclair. At the top of the hill turn right and follow the road through Cedar Grove, Singac, Mountain View, Pompton Plains, Oakland and Darlington to Suffern.

This road from Pompton Plains is along the beautiful Ramapo River through an attractive section. Three miles, from Suffern through Ramapo, is bumpy, followed by good roads through Tuxedo to Central Valley. Continue through Highland Mills, Woodbury, Mountainville, Cornwall and Moodna to Newburg. This road is all in excellent condition and the section near Newburg has lately been refinished. This is a good place to spend the night or take luncheon.

A ferry may be taken to Beacon, formerly called Fishkill Landing, and then a good road will be found through Hughsonville and Wappinger Falls to Poughkeepsie. There are a few places north of Newburg on the west side of the river from which excellent views may be had of the races from the cliffs in the vicinity of Highland, right across the river from Poughkeepsie. There is a good road from Newburg by way of Marlborough and Milton to Highland and a ferry to Poughkeepsie.

BASEBALL IS BARRED.

International Congress Rejects It as an Olympic Game.

PARIS, June 23.—Baseball was today rejected as one of the sports at the Olympic games to be held in 1916 at Berlin.

James E. Sullivan, the head of the American delegation, at the closing meeting of the International Olympic Congress, requested that baseball be included, but the President, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, reminded him that it was necessary, in order to have baseball considered as an international sport, that six countries should play the game.

"Oh, there are six countries playing baseball," replied Mr. Sullivan, and he began to enumerate them as follows: "The United States, Canada, England—"

"But, my dear Sir," exclaimed one of the English delegates, "we do not play baseball in England."

Mr. Sullivan then gave up, and the congress did not admit baseball.

The congress passed unanimously a motion by the Rev. Robert Stuart de Courcy Laffan, Chairman of the English delegation, that:

"Each sport shall have an international jury of appeals to be appointed by the International Federation controlling that sport, and if no federation exists, by the Committee of Organization of the Olympic Games. Track judges shall be appointed by the country where the games are held."

The congress also during its closing hour decided that the number of entries must be notified to the committee a month in advance, and the names of the entrants fifteen days in advance.

Archery and Rugby football were adopted as permissible sports.

The congress limited the duration of the Olympic games to three weeks instead of two months.

Evert J. Wendell, an American delegate, expressed the thanks of those present to Baron Pierre de Coubertin for the skill and fairness with which he had discharged his duties as President. He also thanked the French committee for its hospitality. His speech was greeted with cheers lasting ten minutes.

James E. Sullivan, head of the American delegation, said today that the work of the congress would have a far-reaching effect, especially in the United States. In all the large cities preliminary games would be held, and the winners will meet in New York the first Sunday in June, 1916, for the grand elimination trials to decide the entries for the Olympic Games to be held that year at Berlin. The American Olympic team will comprise the men taking the first six places in big events, and the first three places in small events. The rules governing all sports will be published Sept. 1.

At a reception given this afternoon by Baron Pierre de Coubertin to the International Olympic Committee the petition of the American delegates that in each track and field event each country shall be allowed to enter twelve men, six to start, or to enter eight men, six to start, was discussed by the delegates, but no conclusion was reached. At yesterday's session of the congress a motion to this effect was rejected, but the reconsideration of the question later was allowed on motion of one of the German delegates. The matter is still in abeyance.

Germany is to be represented by fifteen men in the games to be held at the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915. This announcement was made today by Carl Diem, General Secretary of the Olympic Games at Berlin, and President of the German A. A. U.

All the officials of the International Amateur Athletic Federation, as well as Baron de Coubertin, President of the International Olympic Congress, will visit the exposition, and Baron de Coubertin will deliver lectures at New York, Chicago, and San Francisco.

Several European athletes, in addition to those announced yesterday, have decided to compete in the Panama-Pacific games. They include A. R. Taipale, Finland, discus thrower; J. Nicklander, Finland, weights; Hans Bie, Norway, and John Wieslander, Sweden, runners.

MURRAY DEFAULTS IN TENNIS MATCH

Western Player to Rest from Injured Shoulder—Rain Stops Middle States Tourney.

R. Lindley Murray, the metropolitan lawn tennis title holder, defaulted to Theodore R. Pell of the West Side Club yesterday in the first round of the Middle States championship on the South Orange Tennis Club courts at South Orange, N. J., thereby depriving the tournament of much of its interest. The University of California player sprained his shoulder on Saturday in the championship match with Frederick B. Alexander, and decided to rest this week. With the withdrawal of Murray the default put Pell in the second round with W. F. McKim, but the latter was outclassed, losing in straight sets. Pell started the second match with C. F. Watson, Jr., but when leading, 3 sets to 1, rain stopped further play.

The best match of the afternoon was between Karl H. Behr and Frederick C. Inman. The old Yale player was at his best, and won from Inman, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1. Behr played a strong cross-court game, and lobbed with good effect. He captured the first set after a hard fight. Inman rallied in the second and made matters even, but the effort appeared to tell on his speed, and Behr ran out the third set in easy fashion.

Charles M. Bull, Jr., Crescent Athletic Club, continued his good work, defeating Harold Throckmorton, the Princeton interscholastic champion, in the second round, and reaching the fourth round through an easy victory over H. Nickerson. F. T. Cooke and A. L. Bragaw played an excellent three-set match. The former led at the end of the first set, but fell away in the second, making the sets even. The third and deciding set went to deuce and vantage for a decision, but Cooke carried the match through to a successful conclusion. The summary:

Middle States Championship Men's Singles.—First Round—Karl H. Behr defeated Major J. H. Randolph, 6—2, 6—0; Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated F. Miller, Jr., by default; S. M. Manchee defeated G. A. L. Dionne by default; Dean Mathey defeated H. Rand by default; R. Booraem defeated P. Cumming by default; Theodore R. Pell defeated R. Lindley Murray by default; P. Chew defeated H. M. Rand, 6—0, 6—1; F. Doubleday defeated H. Gordon, 6—3, 6—8, 6—4; F. T. Cooke defeated A. C. Bragaw, 4—6, 6—3, 8—6; Walter M. Hall defeated L. Dunbar, 6—4, 1—6, 8—6.

Second Round—L. Vanderwenter defeated R. H. Kissell by default; Karl H. Behr defeated Frederick C. Inman, 6—4, 3—6, 6—1; E. F. Thomas defeated Dr. William Rosenbaum by default; R. F. Stoddart defeated P. M. Gilmore, 6—0, 6—0; Holcomb Ward defeated Dean Mathey by default; C. F. Watson, Jr., defeated R. Booraem, 6—3, 6—4; Theodore R. Pell defeated W. F. McKim, 6—2, 6—2; H. Nickerson defeated P. Chew, 6—3, 6—4; Charles M. Bull, Jr., defeated Harold Throckmorton, 7—5, 6—3; J. P. Waldron defeated R. Leedom by default.

Third Round—J. J. Armstrong defeated L. Vanderwenter, 6—2, 7—5; Charles M. Bull, Jr., defeated H. Nickerson, 6—2, 6—2.

Middle States Championship Men's Doubles.—R. H. Kissell and F. Day defeated J. J. Armstrong and partner by default; A. H. Coffey and T. B. Stickney defeated E. Read and H. Hardy by default.

Second Round—R. Booraem and Major J. H. Randolph defeated E. T. H. Prendergast and partner by default; T. H. Miles and L. D. Woodbury defeated E. Spencer Miller and partner by default.

BOXERS EASE UP IN TRAINING

Johnson and Moran Indicate Their Readiness for Bout Saturday.

PARIS, July 23.—Jack Johnson and Frank Moran, both began today to reduce somewhat their training activities with the approach of the date of the contest for the heavyweight championship of the world, which has been set for June 27.

The champion has cut down his long walks and has lightened his boxing and other work. Moran, who also had been training hard and steadily, similarly took things easy today at his quarters near Meriel-Sur-Oise. Moran, who has been full of confidence, was cheered by the receipt of a batch of letters wishing him success.

At the Velodrome d'Hiver, where the fight will take place, workmen today began arranging the seats in preparation for a large crowd, among which the nobility will be represented.

So far there has been little betting on the bout. The odds, on what money was offered today, were in favor of Johnson.

Ahearn to Box Carpentier.

LONDON, June 23.—It was announced here today that "Young" Ahearn of Brooklyn and George Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, had been matched to fight in London on Aug. 7 for a purse of $30,000. The money was put up by Horatio Bottomley, the English publisher and financier and former Liberal Member of Parliament.

DIONNE DEFEATS ARANYI.

Foreign Players Eliminated from the Bronxville Tennis Tourney.

With the defeat of Georges Aranyi all the foreign players have been eliminated from the open tennis tournament of the Bronxville Athletic Association. Aranyi was defeated yesterday by G. A. L. Dionne, Captain of the West Side Lawn Tennis Club in straight sets. The match was too onesided to be interesting as the West Side player always held the upper hand and won with little effort.

Arthur M. Lovibond, the Seventh Regiment crack scored an easy victory over W. D. Cunningham, Captain of the Yale Tennis team. The wet courts did not appear to suit Cunningham's style of play and he was far below his usual form. Lovibond won from Allan Tobey in the previous round in love sets.

Although the matches were limited owing to the rain, the results were according to form. M. I. L. Galvao reached the fifth round through an easy victory over E. M. Behar. Cedric Major also qualified for the fifth round, although he was forced to the limit by R. K. Crowley, with a 6—4, 11—9 score.

It was announced that Frederick C. Baggo had withdrawn from active competition for a time on account of a sprained ankle received at the Amacassin Club last Saturday. The summary:

Men's Singles.—Third Round—Dr. William Rosenbaum defeated Robert M. Stockwell, 6—1, 6—2; H. Styles defeated C. Bishop, 6—3, 2—6, 9—7; C. C. Chambers defeated George S. Groesbeck, 6—2, 7—5; Ingo Hartmann defeated Eugene Ashley, 6—1, 6—1; Arthur M. Lovibond defeated Allan Tobey, 6—0, 6—0; W. D. Cunningham defeated E. B. Jones by default; G. K. Gordon defeated C. N. Warren, 6—3, 6—0; G. A. L. Dionne defeated C. N. Jolliffe, 6—2, 6—3.

Fourth Round—M. I. L. Galvao defeated Ely M. Behar, 6—2, 6—1; Arthur M. Lovibond defeated W. D. Cunningham, 6—0, 6—2; G. K. Gordon defeated J. H. A. Williams, 7—5, 6—1; G. A. L. Dionne defeated Georges Aranyi, 6—3, 6—0; Cedric Major defeated R. K. Crowley, 6—4, 11—9.

Stuyvesant Wins Tennis Title.

The high school tennis championship of Greater New York will be decided next Saturday by the teams from Stuyvesant and Erasmus Hall. The former won the championship of Manhattan, Bronx, and Richmond yesterday by defeating Morris and Curtis, after a triple tie between the three schools. Stuyvesant won from Curtis 3 points to 2, and from Morris 4 to 1. The summary:

Stuyvesant vs. Curtis.—Doubles—Bodkin and Miller, Stuyvesant, defeated Mackin and Hamlin, Curtis, 6—3, 6—2.

Singles.—Gillespie, Stuyvesant, defeated Fisher, Curtis, 6—4, 6—2; Twombly, Curtis, defeated Blumenthal, Stuyvesant, 6—2, 6—4; Hamlin, Curtis, defeated Jacoby, Stuyvesant, 6—2, 7—5.

Stuyvesant vs. Morris.—Doubles—Bodkin and Miller, Stuyvesant, defeated Alcedger and Starchman, Morris, 6—1, 6—0.

Singles.—Gillespie, Stuyvesant, defeated Grubman, Morris, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3; Jacoby, Stuyvesant, defeated Folkoff, Morris, 6—3, 5—7, 6—2; Fercig, Morris, defeated Blumenthal, Stuyvesant, 6—3, 6—2.

Racing Cyclists in a Spill.

George Wiley, American middle distance champion, had a narrow escape from death at the Brighton Beach Motordrome yesterday, when training for the thirty-mile motor-paced race, which will be run there tonight. He was riding behind a motor when his handle bars twisted under him and he was thrown to the track and almost directly in front of a motor cycle which was pacing Jimmy Moran. Freddie West, who was pacing Moran, swung around Wiley, but Moran struck him and was thrown to the track. Both sustained several severe cuts.

The injuries to Wiley, however, will not keep him out of the contest tonight. Against him will be Bobby Walthour, Leon Didier, champion of France, and Clarence Carman, the Jamaica cyclone.

HOPE FOR THE RAILWAYS.

Wall Street is in that frame of mind which prevents it from seeing anything in the intermountain railway rate decision beyond the fact that shippers are asking the refund of $12,000,000 of overcharges. How is it possible that such a decision can be useful to the railroads? There are several reasons why the railways are not complaining as loudly as the Stock Exchange operators. In the first place, the lines of legality are made plain to the railways. As the situation stood, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Commerce Court took different views of the law, and the railways did not know which was right. It was impossible for the railways to adjust themselves to such a situation. With this decision, uncertainty upon this point disappears and hope revives for a favorable decision in the rate advance case. Indeed, it is possible that the Interstate Commerce Commission was delaying its decision in the 5 per cent. rate case in order to learn whether it could make rulings such as the Commerce Court had condemned. If by any chance the Commission had made a favorable decision in the rate case and the principle of fixing rates by great classes had been overthrown, the 5 per cent. case decision itself would have been discredited, and might have been ultimately overthrown. The decision in the intermountain case enables the Commission to proceed on the same principle in the case whose decision is now so eagerly awaited.

The intermountain case decision has direct bearing upon rates to intermountain points via the Panama Canal. Nominally, the decision applies only to all-rail overland rates. It does not fix the rates in figures, but only in relation of classes of rates to each other. The long-haul rate is not fixed, and is allowed to be low as necessary to meet water competition to the Pacific Coast. The rates to the intermediate points are not fixed, but they must be calculated by adding to the low long-haul rate an increase of 7, 15, or 25 per cent., according to zones in which points of destination may be situated. The dispute was over the right of the Commission to calculate rates in this way, and to divide the country into zones for the purpose, instead of fixing individual rates. The right to make rates by rule is established, and the relation of the zones to the through rate is fixed. The intermediate rates are reduced because the coast rate has been made so low in order to compete with water carriage. But the same decision which now reduces rates for that reason would enable them to be raised if the coast rates were raised and the zone increases were added to the intermediate points, as the decision requires. The railways are not by this decision compelled to reduce rates to whatever low figure the Panama routes may name. They may compete if they like, or they may abandon the competition and the traffic, and raise rates on the traffic which they retain westward from the Atlantic or eastward from the Pacific. The fact that the relation of these rates is fixed by the Commission makes it impossible to allege that it is the act of the railways.

The method of the Commission is the method of the railways, and it may be adopted just as the railways are about to change their method. The rates have always been fixed from East to West, for two reasons. There was much of that sort of freight, and little freight, comparatively, moving from West to East. Secondly, the rate from the Atlantic to the Pacific, across the entire breadth of the continent, was less than the rate to intermediate points because New York was "nearer" to San Francisco in transportation units of cost than it was to points inland from the Pacific Coast. The Panama Canal will change that. There will be two schemes of rates, one eastward and one westward, and somewhere they will overlap. The railways will seek to confine the low Panama rates to the fringe of the Pacific Coast. And it may be presumed that they will seek to favor traffic from the East by lowering rates which hitherto they have sought to sustain while reducing rates to the coast. There is no way of stimulating land travel without benefiting railways, and the one sure thing is that there is to be great growth of transportation throughout all the mid-continent area, regardless of the portion which goes via Panama in either direction. It is easy to criticise the decision in details. The zone rates are not proportioned either to distance or to other rates which the Commission has declared reasonable. But they are based on transportation conditions and are without malice against the railways. The railways can thrive under rates so made if the country thrives, and no rates which are injurious to the country can stand. The country is coming to understand that it and the railways are in the same boat and that neither can thrive at the expense of the other.

TARRYTOWN'S WAY IS BAD.

Tarrytown is fighting the anarchists by anarchistic methods, and that is poor policy. Throwing rotten eggs at speakers and drowning their voices by tooting automobile horns may be satisfying employment, for the time being, for men whose patience has been exhausted by the persistence of lawless malcontents. But the one potent way to deal with the lawless is by the strict enforcement of the law.

The more decorous this enforcement is made the better the effect will be. The anarchists know all about stale eggs and drowning noise with noise. Give them time and they will beat Tarrytown at that game. But the stern, quiet, untheatric enforcement of the spirit and letter of the law would soon render anarchy powerless in this country.

ART OF TREATY MAKING.

Discussion of the two treaties now before the Senate indicates that treaty making is an art to which our latter-day diplomatists would do well to devote more study. The folly of paying to Nicaragua the sum of $3,000,000 for the perpetual right to build a canal from ocean to ocean across its territory, while exacting no such concession from Colombia, seems obvious now that the nation's attention has been called to the oversight. Probably the proposed treaty with Colombia might easily be amended so as to correct that one grave error, but the objections to the treaty expressed in all parts of this country indicate that any action upon it at this time is unlikely. The protest against the expression of "regret" by the United States is general, and, although there is a common disposition to admit the righteousness of Colombia's claim for money damages, the sum of $25,000,000 named in the treaty is considered entirely too large. Obviously, therefore, the treaty with Colombia must be entirely recast.

On the other hand, the chief objections to the other treaty are that it would put Nicaragua under a protectorate and there would be a continual temptation to intervene. Perhaps a more valid objection to the Nicaragua treaty is that it might increase the ill-will other Latin-American countries have for us. This is important if true. It is to be noted, however, that nobody objects to paying Nicaragua $3,000,000 for value received, or to our acquisition of a naval base on Fonseca Bay and our lease of certain Caribbean islands. The Colombian is the treaty which causes the most dissension, though the Republican politicians probably understand by this time that they cannot make the alleged apology an issue in this Fall's campaign, as the purport and the very language of that paragraph in the treaty are their own.

TOUCHING MEXICAN POLICIES.

What is the Mexican policy of Representative MANN of Illinois? At Monday's session, loud Congressional laughter greeted his question touching President WILSON's Mexican policy. Has this able statesman and adroit politician a policy formulated which would serve better than the President's?

War between the United States and Mexico has been averted with no loss to our national honor, a cruel sacrifice of life and property has been avoided, and the worst of the difficulties which the mediation conference at Niagara Falls had to contend with have been overcome. By a very simple diplomatic arrangement, Constitutionalist delegates are to confer with the Americans and those representing the present Federal Government in Mexico. Current statements that CARRANZA or any other individual will not do this or that need give us no concern. Anybody who can still doubt that the outcome of the Niagara Falls conference will be all that the stanch supporters of President WILSON's policy have hoped must be deaf to conviction.

There is no danger whatever that the Constitutionalist leaders will not consent to accept the Provisional Government appointed by the conference. They well know how much they and their cause already owe to the United States Government. They know, also, that hereafter no Government can be set up in Mexico without the good will of the United States and the South American republics. That means simply that Mexico, now emerging from its long period of darkness, is to have better Governments hereafter. Its intellectual and industrial progress will be correspondingly increased. This result will be due, as enlightened Mexicans will freely acknowledge, to President WILSON's rejection of a policy of expediency and his patience and zeal in helping Mexico to help itself.

AN IMPOSSIBLE CANDIDACY.

Among the Chicago Democrats, it seems, the question has at last been raised, "If the Hearst people are "against the Democratic Administra-"tion, what right have they in Demo-"cratic councils?" Mayor HARRISON says he has been informed that the Hearst element is opposing for reelection the Democratic Congressmen from Illinois on the ground that they have voted to support the Democratic Administration. The Hearst element has a right to do so, but not at the same time to take part in the management of the party whose candidates it seeks to defeat.

Here in New York Mr. HEARST is believed to be seeking the Senatorship, and it is expected that votes will be cast for him in the Democratic primaries. He is vigorously opposing the Democratic Administration and all its policies, and virtually all the legislation of the Democratic Congress. Presumably, as a Senatorial candidate he would make his fight on that platform. The Democratic platform in this State will undoubtedly indorse the Administration. If he should be nominated, it would be a sight for the gods to see the Senatorial candidate of the Democratic Party repudiating its platform, its policies, and its President, and asking for Democratic votes as an enemy of all the party stands for. Its candidate for Governor would undoubtedly support the Administration, and the spectacle the two candidates would present in such a campaign would make the party a laughing stock the country over. Before the campaign was half over the Democratic half of it would be in chaos. It is not conceivable that the first application of the direct primary will result in such a farce.

HOME RULE VAGARIES.

The English Constitution, having survived divers and sundry legislative revolutions, will not be weakened by any amendments to the Home Rule bill, which, as Lord CREWE intimated yesterday, in introducing Mr. ASQUITH's identical amendment of last month, will be made whenever the Government thinks them necessary. The bill is not yet a law, and precedent is ignored in amending it at all at this time.

King CARSON rejected Mr. ASQUITH's proposal that the electors of each county in Ulster should be permitted to decide for themselves whether their county should be deprived of the privileges of home rule for a period of six years. Nevertheless, everybody knows that the amendment introduced in the House of Lords yesterday will suffice. There will be no civil war. There may, of course, be a great deal more talk, and precedent may be defied again from time to time, but Great Britain will get over its home rule trouble more easily than it will get over the troubles the extravagant socialistic ideas of the Chancellor of the Exchequer have forced upon it.

ATHLETICS FOR AFTER LIFE.

What can the muscled football or crew man do, when he quits college, to keep himself in trim? Confined to offices, his big heart grows fat and flabby, weight increases, and death comes early, unless he becomes expert in some sport that is played outside of college. The National Collegiate Athletic Association finds that tennis and golf, swimming, "hikes," social dancing, and bowling are beginning to be valued in the larger colleges, because the entire student body can participate in them and they may be continued in after life.

Some 65 per cent. of the institutions of higher learning afford the inexpensive equipment of tennis courts; 53 per cent. encourage the sports of baseball, handball, volley ball, tennis, and golf; 5 per cent. make swimming compulsory; 5 per cent. instruct in "hiking," and two colleges, including Yale, teach dancing. Out of 143 colleges reporting, there are still fifty-three, or over one-third, which do not encourage the forms of sport that will last beyond commencement. Among 111,000 students only one-half engage in systematized sports. The money spent on athletics by these colleges amounts to over $1,000,000 annually, but the average student gets less than a seventh of this to support the forms of physical activity that are most abiding.

Some of the big colleges are bestirring themselves to provide general athletic fields for the entire student body. Once the spirit of rivalry is systematically fostered in sports of lifelong value, a shift of emphasis should be noted away from the forms of specialized overtraining.

PEST-LADEN WATERS SURROUND OUR ISLAND.

The misguided persons who would reverse Health Commissioner GOLDWATER's order abolishing the bathing pavilions on the waterfront of this city should heed the statement of President SOPER of the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission that the germs and bacilli of every disease known to medicine are poured into the North and East Rivers.

Refuse from the great hospitals of one of the most populous cities in the world and from the homes of the sick is daily poured into the sewers and thence into the rivers. Every laboratory discards countless millions of disease germs in cultures. Men engaged in medical research, whose business it is to seek cures for every human and animal disease, have their headquarters here, and their waste material goes into the rivers. Then there is the prodigious disease-breeding product in the accumulated filth of this city, which oscillates back and forth between the harbor and the rivers. Everywhere the mouths of the sewers are to be seen at the waterfront. Public baths may be built and safely maintained inshore. Until the system of sewage disposal is reformed the rivers will not be safe for bathing.

"MODERATE SPEED" IN FOGS.

The Federal law for preventing collisions at sea reads:

> Every vessel shall, in a fog, mist, falling snow, or heavy rainstorms, go at moderate speed, having careful regard to the existing circumstances and conditions.

But what is a good definition of that very elastic term "moderate speed"? The moderate speed of a fast steamship might exceed the utmost speed of a slower boat. The rule is formed to prevent collisions, and Captain Commandant BERTHOLF of the Division of Revenue Cutter Service proposes that it be amended as follows:

> In a fog, mist, falling snow or heavy rainstorms, no vessel shall proceed at greater speed than will permit her being stopped within the range of visibility ahead of the ship, having careful regard to the existing circumstances and conditions.

That would be better. No matter how long or short the vessel, or how many knots its regular speed, she must go so slow in thick weather that she can stop within the space her Captain can see ahead; and if he cannot see beyond the bow, he should halt the boat. There is warrant in the decisions of the courts for the enactment of this definition.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Gunda's Case Deserves Consideration. It is not customary for us to differ with Dr. HORNADAY in regard to the treatment of animals, but when, to defend that which an elephant in the Bronx Zoological Park is getting, he can find nothing better to say than "Gunda is no worse off than any life prisoner," to join issue with him seems to be necessary.

In the first place, Gunda stands in chains year in and year out, not for any crime committed for which responsibility can be imputed to him, but because he has, or is supposed to have, a mental malady which makes it dangerous to give him even the carefully restricted liberties accorded to other elephants in captivity. Whether or not this justifies keeping the creature constantly in one position and posture depends in part on the amount and quality of discomfort his chains cause and in part on the possibility of protecting his keepers and the public by measures less productive of prolonged pain.

It is, of course, a mistake to ascribe to imprisoned animals all the emotions a man would have in like confinement; probably many of them are happier than when surrounded by the terrors and dangers which make their "natural" lives a fierce, and in the end a losing, battle for existence; but others remain obviously unhappy as long as they are deprived of freedom. The elephant is an animal that usually submits docilely enough to domestication, but Gunda is one of the not rare exceptions, and one does not have to be unduly sentimental to believe that he suffers constantly and severely as he stands there month after month, with a restless swaying of his huge body as the only relief from immobility. Dead and "stuffed," he would be a lesson in zoology as valuable, though not quite as interesting, as he is alive, but his present interest for observers at all sensitive is distinctively painful, and as a spectacle for children he can hardly teach anything except indifference to animal woes.

Dr. HORNADAY thinks that Gunda prefers being chained to being shot, but that is mere anthropomorphism, since Gunda cannot compare the two fates—he can only resist each when it confronts him, and the decision must be made for him if at all. Dr. HORNADAY believes in the maintenance of public menageries. He should therefore ponder well whether the chaining of Gunda may not strengthen the grave doubts which many of us already have on that subject and bring so many more to our point of view as to lead to the abolition of these prisons for wild animals.

A Social Equality Mystery. A truly curious manifestation of racial feeling has just occurred in Birmingham, Ala. At a theatre in that city there was recently given a performance in the course of which a white woman and a black man both danced, not, indeed, together, but in such quick succession that in the opinion of the spectators the two were brought into contrast or comparison. There was vehement hissing of the "act," and many people protested by quitting the place. On the following morning The Birmingham News reported the conduct of the audience with evident approval, and immediately the police compelled the elimination of the negro dancer. The next move was the withdrawal by the manager of the theatre of all advertising from The News, and now that paper makes serious editorial comment on the various phases of the episode.

The News holds that in the circumstances the appearance of the negro dancer was an assertion or admission of that social equality between the two races which cannot be tolerated in the South, and while it admits that the manager has a right to place or withhold his advertising as he pleases, it reads him a very sound lecture on his lack of right to get more than the space in the advertising columns for which he pays. That as further return for his money he should expect to influence either the news or the editorial columns The News quietly but very explicitly denies.

Of course that is the only position that an honest newspaper can take—the one that comparatively few papers, nowadays, fail to take. For a distant observer, however, there is difficulty in seeing how the question of social equality was involved in this instance. Nowhere else than on the stage are essential differences better preserved and recognized, and they are emphasized rather than lessened by contiguity. It at least seems supersensitiveness to object to the appearance of a negro dancer in a plantation scene, which is what was done by the man against whom the protest was made.

Both Are Eager for Peace. Between President WILSON and the new Turkish Ambassador there has arisen a very natural—and decidedly amusing—disagreement as to the reason why Greece wants to buy two of our old warships.

The Greek Government, through its representative in Washington, suavely assured the President that it proposed to make the purchase to preserve a state of peace. As the President loves peace and also would like to have the money which the old ships would fetch in order to build a new one with it, he has a double reason for accepting the Greek assurances, and does. The Turkish Ambassador, on the other hand, remembering that the present naval superiority of Greece to Turkey will disappear when the Sultan gets two big ships now building for him, strongly suspects that the Greek eagerness promptly to increase their fleet by two effective units has a purpose not wholly peaceful—is the reverse of peaceful, in fact.

His suspicion is not without a certain plausibility—which is not surprising, since the Turks and the Greeks both know by long experience a good deal about the mental processes of their neighbors. Each country is, indeed, passionately fond of peace, but the peace that each loves is that which follows victorious war—the desert of the familiar apothegm.

A simple way, whether or not a good one, for Turkey to keep the Greeks from getting our ships would be to make a higher bid for them than the Greeks have made. The President isn't part Scotch for nothing, and that would appeal to him, perhaps more than Pickwickian talk about peace.

Soldiers, Bearded and Other. The French trooper who has just been scolded and punished by his Colonel for shaving off his—the trooper's—mustache has excuse for feeling some indignation, if not some resentment.

The Colonel says that a man in the cavalry cannot have too much hair on his face, meaning, presumably, for military efficiency, but with equal truth he might have said that the cavalryman cannot be thus adorned too little.

In that branch of the military service, as in all the others, the shaven and the unshorn have risen to equal eminence and manifested equal incompetence. What men do in that respect doesn't seem to make any difference in their achievements. The mere fashion of their age decides whether soldiers shall be bearded or beardless, and the mysterious dictate alternates about once a century.

The leaders in our civil war on both sides were content to be trimmed now and then, and not too closely, with scissors, and they had many imitators. The conquerors who loom largest in history seem to have been uncompromising devotees of the razor, but the preference of sculptors and medalists may have something to do with creating that impression.

DO NOT NEED BALLOT.

Woman's Influence for Good Is Greater Without It.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Every one knows that the influence woman can exert for good is immeasurably beyond the boundaries of any power which the use of the ballot might confer. Her opportunity for the exercise of this influence in the preservation of the first principles of morality was never greater than at the present time; but if this influence were to be submerged in the ballot box society would be the loser of a far-reaching and potent auxiliary force for good. Our roll bears the names of many women known as leaders of the most advanced educational and philanthropic organizations. It is the broad knowledge gained by the experience in such work which makes them so very doubtful of the ballot as a means to a desired end.

It has been truly said that women cannot change politics, but politics can change women.

Could Mrs. Eno have done more humane work with the vote?

M. ELEANOR PHILLIPS,
Chairman Press Committee New York State Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.
New York, June 22, 1914.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Rheta Childe Dorr refers in a recent communication to "your ringing and eloquent editorial on 'Politics and Crime in Queens,'" which she "perverts" into an argument in favor of woman suffrage, and with true suffrage logic fails to observe the fact that Mrs. Eno has accomplished without the vote what the men of the community could not, or with their business obligations had not time to undertake. She also seems to have overlooked the following, culled from the same editorial: "In such a detestable alliance between crime and Government we see what the old system of Government by partisan officials is really capable of," and in her laudatory remarks anent suffragists insinuates the sex antagonism which is rapidly taking its place in the suffrage arguments in America.

While expressing my sincere admiration for Mrs. Eno's successful effort as a non-partisan and a woman, I also thank her for proving the futility of enfranchising woman, when she can already accomplish more along certain lines than enfranchised man. Take from her her non-partisan attitude and you lessen her power and reduce, instead of increase, her influence for good in politics. Have any of the present women agitators introduced and carried through the legislation for the benefit of women and children which is credited to Miss Louise Lee Schuyler and Mrs. Francis Kinnecutt, both ardent anti-suffragists? Pledged to do nothing for the public good till they get the vote it is exceptional that they do anything to prove themselves worthy of it.

Sensible Bathing Suits.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial concerning bathing suits hits the mark exactly, and in a few words. I have been a regular swimmer for years, and have tried all types of suits, striving to hit on one that would not offend and yet give me perfect freedom in the water. Last year I found a suit in an athletic supply house. The shirt is put on first, and by an arrangement in front is secured tightly to the body, and cannot slip up as in two-piece suits. The trousers are drawn on over the shirt, and are secured by side catches and belt to the shirt. This gives the appearance of a one-piece suit, as there is no absurd shirt dangling anywhere from the waist line to below the knees.

I am a middle-aged man, and would not go to dinner clad in pajamas, but when I go for a swim and put on a bathing suit which is correct for that purpose and cannot offend, I would like to be free from the thought that some officious policeman out for a record might cause me the discomfort that many suffered recently.

FOG WHISTLE SIGNALS.

A Device Which Registers Direction and Distance of Sounds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Both in the collision between the Empress of Ireland and Storstad and the Petronia and New York, as well as in other similar cases, the colliding vessels appear to have had timely and ample warning of their proximity to each other by the exchange of the usual whistle signals, yet while these were clearly heard, the signals were useless in the fog and merely added to the confusion and general excitement because of the lack of the one essential requisite, namely, the ability to judge of their direction and distance. It was not until these steamships were so close upon each other as to become partially visible through the fog, when it was too late to change their course or headway, that the last hurried yet unavailing directions could be signaled to the engine room.

The writer some time ago proposed a simple and effective plan by which the sound of a fog signal, or its echo reflected from an iceberg or other object, may be clearly received by vessels at distances many times greater than is now possible to the unaided ear. Not alone this, but it automatically indicates and registers the direction as well as the distance of the source of the sound. It will likewise detect and locate the position of distant bell buoys and all other sounds, such as the breaking of waves upon a distant beach, shoal, or rocky coast, when these are hidden from view by fog or darkness, in ample time to avoid all possibility of collision or grounding.

The apparatus consists of a pair of forwardly projecting microphones of special construction adjustably mounted at the extremities of a horizontal arm, the centre of which is pivotally supported at a point on the foremast just above the crow's nest, or upon a shorter vertical mast at the bow of the vessel, and the movement of which is controlled either by the lookout or by the navigating officer on the bridge. This arm constitutes a "base line" which is moved about from side to side in order to explore and focus its two widely separated microphones upon the source of any given sound. A telephone receiver responsive to both microphones is worn by the lookout and also by the navigating officer on watch during a fog. Whenever the arm is moved into a position where the two microphones are simultaneously impinged upon by the arc of an oncoming sound wave or succession of such waves (which, as is well known, travel in spherical circles that radiate outward from the point of origin as their centre) the fact is at once indicated by the receivers and also recorded upon an auxiliary instrument. The arm will, when in this position, form the base line of a true isosceles triangle, of which the distant, invisible source of the sound constitutes the apex. A pointer connected with the arm moves over a graduated scales which automatically shows in plain figures the exact direction and the distance of the sound transmitting vessel or object in miles and fraction of miles.

There can be no excuse whatever for collisions at sea in fog or thick weather, except for the reluctance of steamship companies to incur the expense of testing and equipping their vessels with available safety appliances and inventions of admitted value and importance, which they are not as yet compelled by law to install.

AN UNPROFITABLE TRADE.

After Eight Years Journeyman Finds His Experience Worthless.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having heard that THE TIMES is always willing to give advice, I take the liberty of writing this letter. I am a young man, 24 years old, and a public school graduate. When I left school I had a chance to learn the sterling silver spoonmaking trade. Every one I consulted said a trade was a fine thing, as it would be something to fall back on. So I took it up. After serving my four years' apprenticeship (at very small wages) and becoming a journeyman the work began to get very slack, and it was seldom we had steady work. When we did work it was piece work or by the hour. In all I stayed with this concern eight years, when they did away with my department. I have tried to get work for the last two months without success. If I want to follow my trade there is only one company in New York City that makes spoons, and they are very unsteady. I have tried all the silver companies up through Massachusetts and Connecticut, and if they are not slack they pay such small wages it wouldn't be worth while leaving home. I have tried to get into other lines of work, but in most all cases they ask: "What experience have you had?" As my experience has been limited to the silver business, it is hard. I am ambitious and willing to work hard providing I can get a start and the position would be permanent. I am the eldest of a family of eight, who depend on me, and it has come to a time when I must get a position and get it quick. I am willing to start for $14 or $15, have excellent references, use neither liquor nor tobacco, and belong to the Methodist Church.

Three years ago I took the Post Office examination in Mt. Vernon and passed, but the appointments are very slow here. I also tried for a position with the Pullman Company, but was a year too young. I have also tried the Y. M. C. A.'s and employment agencies without success. When I look back over the past nine years it makes me very discouraged, as it seems so many years wasted. Any advice regarding what I can take up or the best business to follow would be greatly appreciated.

PALISADES PARK.

Its Peace and Beauty Would Be Marred by a Trolley Line.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has been called to a communication from the Head Worker of the University Settlement, recently published in your paper and advocating a trolley line through the Palisades Park, in order, it is claimed, to make it easier of access. It would seem that those who are familiar with this most beautiful section along the Hudson, presenting, as it does, such natural advantages and so many attractions in every way to the true lovers of nature, would consider the approval and introduction of a trolley through this unique and wonderful strip of land by our Interstate Park Commissioners the very last thing that could benefit or help the masses whom your correspondent appears so anxious to serve.

Thousands of people, campers, canoeists, and pedestrians, during the Summer season now use and enjoy the Palisades Park, and thousands find there untouched nature in all the glory of its freedom, in addition to the peace, rest, and quiet that they so much crave and which can be obtained in no other place. If, therefore, the undisturbed shores of the glorious river, where the mighty cliffs tower above it and where all is so serene and beautiful, should be exchanged for a noisy trolley, with its clanging bell, would not our fresh air seekers find in this innovation much to make their day's outing somewhat of an unfortunate contrast to what they now enjoy? There are several trolleys from Fort Lee Ferry passing through woods and stretches of country abounding in beautiful views, and these surely could be used by any who prefer this form of rest and recreation. So let us keep our Palisades Park free from modern improvements and endeavor to preserve the uncommon features of our playground across the river, that it may remain, as many now find it, a haven of rest and a delight for the eye.

BRONX TREES

Not Butchered, But Saved If Possible, Mr. Whittle Says.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has been called to a letter to THE TIMES concerning street trees in the Bronx, and signed "A Member of the Woman's Municipal League"; also to a letter on the same subject, signed "Tree Lover." These two letters are not only couched in the most extravagant terms, but also misstate the facts. I dare say that the street trees of no other city in this country are kept in better condition than those in the Bronx.

When the duty of caring for street trees in the Bronx was placed upon this department a few years ago it was found that nothing had been done toward the proper care and maintenance of those trees; that is to say, in the way of pruning, spraying, planting, &c. The head gardener of this department, whose duty it is to supervise the care of these trees, informs me that on taking charge of the street trees in the Bronx he found that fully three-fourths of the trees were silver maples, poplars, with some Norway sugar; sycamore maples, ash, linden, willow, birch, locust, and various other kinds of trees indiscriminately scattered all over the borough. The majority were old and large, and in most cases full of dead and dangerous branches, caused by lack of care and attacks of insect pests. These faults have all been remedied; the trees have been pruned and sprayed, the larger maples and poplars have been pollarded or cut back, for the reason that when a silver maple reaches the age of thirty or thirty-five years it comes to the height of its value as a street tree, and after that it retrogrades from year to year until it finally dies.

If these trees are allowed to go on without being cut back, there is no safe way by which a man could be sent into them to remove dead or dangerous branches, and unless the dead and dangerous branches are removed, there is always the possibility that they may fall upon persons walking along the streets, inflicting injuries which would place the city liable to heavy damages. Poplars, as is well known by those familiar with these matters, are even worse than silver maples. The tendency of the poplar tree is to grow to a great height, with a consequent lack of stability; the branches reach out for some distance from the main stem, which, when in full leaf, become very brittle, thus causing them to break very easily; and for that reason the only safe and wise course to pursue is to cut these trees back and to keep them in as safe a condition as possible, or else remove them entirely.

Hardwood trees are never cut back, but are thinned from time to time to keep them in good growing condition.

The fact that the majority of the street trees in the Bronx are silver maples and poplars cannot be laid to the door of this department. They were planted in the streets of this borough before this department had any jurisdiction over the street trees in the borough, and, knowing the bad qualities of such trees, this department has consistently declined, and now declines, to grant permits for the planting of silver maples and poplars in the streets.

It must be borne in mind that the men necessarily employed in this work of trimming and caring for the trees in the city streets come to us through the medium of the Civil Service Commission, and practically all of them are ignorant of the proper methods of pruning when they come to us. It has, therefore, been necessary to train them for this work, and such mistakes as may have been made are for the most part to be explained by this fact. When it is considered that there are several hundred miles of streets in the Bronx, containing many thousands of trees, which are cared for by this department, one may readily understand that it would be a physical impossibility for the head gardener of this department, who is skilled in such work, personally to supervise the trimming and pruning of all these trees; and I want to say, too, considering the magnitude of the work involved, the number of complaints is so small as to become virtually negligible.

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT

A Futile Discipline Which Harms Both Parent and Child.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

One reads the letter in your issue of June 22 on the above subject with a certain bewilderment. One gathers that the Mothers' Club, of which the writer is Secretary, is trying to rationalize and standardize "spanking" while leaving undecided the primary question as to whether corporal punishment of any kind is a good or a bad thing. Even the Secretary herself, who, we gather, was the chief mover in the matter, is evidently uncertain in her own mind on the point. "If," she writes, "we must have corporal punishment at all," and leaves it at that.

I am hoping, Mr. Editor, that you will give me space to put before this Secretary and her club two reasons which, to many people, are sufficiently grave to convince them that we must not have corporal punishment at all.

Corporal punishment as an instrument of moral training is worse than futile. The idea underlying it is that a child shall learn to believe that if he sins he will be hurt. Very soon, however, he learns that he is hurt, not when he sins, but when he is found out. He can do wrong as much as he pleases, and provided he is not discovered nothing happens. The next step is inevitable—he takes care not to be found out. He becomes deceitful. The first result of moral training by the rod is to produce cowards and liars. The moral training of a child is only successful in so far as it inculcates in him a hatred of wrongdoing itself, so that he will not do wrong even when there is no chance of his sin being discovered. To keep a child from sinning by fear of being hurt is training not in morality, but in immorality.

The second reason is a still graver one. A passion for flogging is a well recognized form of sexual mania. I am far from suggesting that all parents who whip their children are flagellomaniacs or that all children who are so punished will develop into sexual perverts, but I do maintain that an unhealthiness of mind is produced in those children who undergo such punishment. With boys and girls of eighteen the danger is hideous. This, apparently, is what "Secretary" means when she refers to corporal punishment as "an unpleasant subject," for surely the moral training of children by any right means is noble rather than unpleasant. Let a mother remember that when she flogs her child, while injury to the child's body is temporary, the injury to his mind may last to the day of his death.

To strip off a child's clothes and hit it about the body with a stick is easy. To train a child morally is immensely difficult. Too often does a parent weakly indulge his child and then, appalled at the inevitable result and exasperated by his inability to control his offspring, resort to the cowardly expedient of terrifying the child into being "good" for the sake of gaining temporary peace.

MILK HAS ITS DAY IN BABIES' BIG WEEK

ALL NATIONALITIES HELPED

Levantine Infant with Penciled Eyes, and Wizened Wight, with New Hope, Hold Attention.

It was Milk Station Day of Babies' Week yesterday, and the most interesting feature was a visit to typical stations by a committee of men and women interested in civic and philanthropic work. This committee left the City Hall a little after 11 o'clock, with eight stations on its list—five in Manhattan, two in Brooklyn, and one in Astoria.

Among the visitors were Mrs. Henry G. Villard, President of the Diet Kitchen Association and of the Babies' Welfare Association; Dr. S. Josephine Baker, director of the Division of Child Hygiene of the city; Mrs. Charles D. Hirst, representing the City Federation of Women's Clubs and also a member of the Advisory Council of the Board of Health; Mrs. J. G. Norton, Dr. Haven Emerson, Deputy Commissioner of Health; Stephen G. Williams, Chairman of the New York Milk Committee; Garrett Smith, Secretary of the Babies' Welfare Association; Mr. Porter, representing the Merchants' Association, and M. M. Gillan of the Advertising Men's League. The visit was arranged too late for other city officials to be present.

The first station visited was the Health Centre under the New York Milk Committee, Dr. Miner C. Hill in charge, at 119 Washington Street. Here most of the people served are Syrians and Pollacks. The station, a little store which was first scrubbed out a year ago, was filled with little patients. There was a Greek baby with its grandmother, and most picturesque of all, a Syrian baby brought by its big, rosy-cheeked smiling mother. It was a typically dark-skinned little Syrian, whose wonderful dark eyes attracted the visitors; more than naturally dark, for they were penciled, a custom of its father's country.

This station is an experiment which is working out splendidly; a health and social clearing house, Dr. Hill calls it. There are two nurses, with a part-time supervising nurse and two interpreters. One of the latter speaks the Slav languages and another is a Syrian who was a teacher abroad where she learned English. She speaks Arabic and Turkish, and is studying French. The workers visit the homes of the people in the district south from Liberty Street to the Battery and west from Broadway to the North River. They direct patients who come there to the hospitals and dispensaries and have their own dental clinic. The fixtures for the clinic were put in by Dr. Julia Peary of Forest Hills, who gives her services at the station. Clubwomen of Forest Hills provided the money and eight women dentists of the city give their services free.

The station at 169 Mott Street, under the Diet Kitchen, works among Italians. One Jewish baby and one Irish baby were treated in the past year, said Dr. A. E. Neergaard, who was busy with the babies when the visitors arrived. There had been sixty babies before 12 o'clock yesterday. They make weekly visits to be weighed, to see if they have thrived on their prescribed diet. When the babies do not take the milk it is given to the mothers. It is certified milk, sold to them at 7 cents a quart, and they know well the difference between it and ordinary "store" milk. The women must bring clean pails or they get no milk.

"The Italians are good mothers," says Dr. Neergaard, "but must be told the value of their own milk for babies, and that they shall not stop nursing them for a whim.

"Though it is on Mott Street, never a Chinese baby has been brought to the station."

A little visitor who had been marked "hopeless" by Dr. W. Seckel when it was first brought to the Board of Health station at 108 Cherry Street was there when the visitors arrived yesterday, and had a record of a pound and a half gained in two weeks and a promise of life. It was less than a month old, and had the aged, wizened appearance of anemic babies, but its bright eyes showed its renewed grip on life. The Cherry Street station gets babies of every nationality.

A pretty young girl gives out milk at the Nathan Straus station at 54 Market Street. It was a neat little station, with signs regarding the required cleanliness of receptacles in all languages. A refrigerator at the front of the station was an object lesson to the tenement mother as to what she could have at little expense. From this station the visitors left for Brooklyn.

At the Nathan Straus stations in the parks and on the recreation piers yesterday free milk was given to mothers and babies.

At the end of its trip the visiting delegation announced that it found that there was need of more milk stations in the district around West Fifteenth Street, Coney Island, at Maspeth, in Queens; in the district around 2,416 Hughes Avenue, and around 138th Street and St. Ann's Avenue, Bronx, and around 134th Street and Lenox Avenue, Manhattan.

Dr. Emerson received yesterday a gift of $10 from a temporary resident of New York, a native of Santiago, who was educated in the United States, to be used for carfare for the mothers to take them to the ferry and excursion boat docks on Friday, where they will get free trips by water.

The really sick babies are the children of the hour today, and the hospitals and clinics all over the city invite visitors to come and see the work they are doing.

Another special delegation of citizens and officials will leave the City Hall today at 11 o'clock and will visit the Babies' Hospital, the Babies' Ward of the Post Graduate, Bellevue, and St. Christopher's in Brooklyn.

A special meeting will be held at the Babies' Hospital at 12 o'clock, to which the mothers of the neighborhood are invited to bring their babies. Special literature will be distributed, Dr. Abraham Jacobi, Dr. Holt, and Dr. F. H. Bartlett will be present, and Commissioner of Corrections Katharine B. Davis will speak.

The New York Foundling Hospital, the Long Island College Hospital, and Gouverneur Hospital are among those that are specially inviting visitors to their children's wards.

THE BABY FAIR.

"Come on with the youngsters and forth to the show!
If baby is small he will learn how to grow;
If baby is fat perhaps we can thin 'im;
If baby is freckled perhaps we can skin
'im.
So, along with the bald, the toothless,
the spare,
The chubby, the bawling, and bring 'em
all there:
The dimpled, the laughing, and those with a frown—
To better the baby's the cry of the

There's a baby fair in an old-fashioned street,
And the mother of him is gentle and sweet;
But stubborn she is, and she answered the plea:
"How ever could mine be better for me?"

SPRINTERS OF SIXTY AT POLICE CARNIVAL

Men Thirty Years in Department Will Show Their Speed in 100-Yard Dash.

TWO GOVERNORS TO SEE

Two Days' Exhibition at Brighton Beach Will Have 300 Competitors in Track Events Alone.

More than 1,000 men, nearly all of them policemen, will take part in the athletic carnival and police exhibition to be held under the auspices of the Honor Roll Relief Fund of the New York Police Department at the Brighton Beach Race Track on Friday and Saturday next. In the track events alone there will be more than 300 competitors, including veterans who made records a quarter of a century ago and now are "coming back," confident that their contests will be as spirited and as full of interest as those of the younger champions of the Police Department, some of whom have been crowned with Olympic honors.

Gov. Glynn has notified the General Committee that he will be there, accompanied by every member of his staff. Gov. John K. Tener of Pennsylvania, with his full staff and several prominent visitors from that State, also will be among the spectators. Mayor Mitchel, Honorary Chairman of the Honor Roll Relief Fund, will witness the contests and carnival, as will practically all the Borough Presidents, city department heads, and other members of the administration.

The purpose of the carnival is to raise a permanent benefit fund of $100,000 and more if possible for the widows and orphans of members of the police force killed in the performance of their duty. The burden heretofore had been assumed by the members of the police force themselves.

By placing tickets on sale in more than 500 places in every borough of New York, including all the leading department stores and hotels and many of the cigar stores, drug stores, and the like, the committee in charge of the affair has given every resident an opportunity to help the Honor Roll Relief Fund. The police are not selling any tickets themselves. The exhibitions of prowess by the picked men of New York's "finest" will be of unusual interest, and many persons who buy tickets which they may be unable to use will present them to their friends.

A wide interest in the carnival has been shown by many representative men of this city. Among those who have obtained boxes are George W. Perkins, Vincent Astor, Harry Payne Whitney, William K. Vanderbilt, William Randolph Hearst, Payne Whitney, Ralph Pulitzer, George F. Baker, Jr., Alexander M. White, Robert Bacon and J. P. Morgan & Co. The co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade and Transportation, Merchants' Association, Stock Exchange, Broadway Association, Fifth Avenue Association, and similar organizations, has been enlisted by the Committee of the Honor Roll Relief Fund.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., sent a check for $5,000 to Police Commissioner Woods yesterday with a letter commending the purpose of the carnival and wishing it success.

The two-day carnival and exhibition, under the direction of Deputy Police Commissioner Leon G. Godley, Inspectors Thomas Myers and Cahalane, and Acting Captain Thomas J. Tunney, co-operating with Commissioner Arthur Woods, will include an exhibition of police dogs, that will demonstrate how they trail and stop fleeing criminals. The supposed fugitives will be protected from the fangs of the dogs by padded clothing.

There will be exhibition drills by a battalion of recruits, showing the riot formation, the flying wedge and other movements employed in times of emergency. The recruits will do some fancy drilling, and similar exhibitions will be given by a battalion of mounted men of the Honor Legion.

Inspector Myers, in charge of the Traffic Division, which includes all the mounted men of the department, has arranged one of the most thrilling features of the carnival, when a fair and frightened lady is to be rescued from the back of a maddened runaway horse by a mounted policeman. While the runaway victim is lifted from her horse into the saddle of the first officer another mounted policeman will dash after her horse and stop it. Two young women will ride in an open carriage that will be dragged down the track by two runaway horses until they are stopped right in front of the grandstand amid the cheers of the throng of spectators. All these stunts will be pictured in the "movies" later.

More than sixty applications have been made by young women who wish to ride the runaway horse, and Miss Victoria Wolfe, a motion picture actress, living at the Hotel Gerard, has been selected.

The police will demonstrate the use of the aeroplane in the pursuit of criminals. The pretended burglar will be given a start in a high-powered automobile, and when he has had time to get far into the open country Policeman Charles Murphy, known as "Mile-a-Minute" Murphy, will start in search of him in a flying machine. A special novelty race will include a bicycle policeman competing with a mounted patrolman, racing against a motor cycle patrolman. The entrants will be started by the same pistol shot, but they will have big handicaps. The winner of this special event will receive a handsome trophy which has been donated by Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse.

A full list of track and field sports has been arranged for both days. The preliminaries will be held the first day, and the finals on the second. Some of the champion athletes of the Police Department who will compete are "Matt" McGrath and "Pat" McDonald, Olympic champions with the shot and hammer; Martin Sheridan, formerly all-around champion athlete of the world; "Jack" Eller, Olympic hurdler, and Edgar Erickson, another Olympic star, who made records in the high jump.

Eighteen veteran policemen, each of whom has been in the service for twenty-five years and more, will compete in a 100-yard dash for the championship of the department. It is intended that this race shall show the splendid condition of the older men of the police force, because the youngest one of these entrants is 46 years old and the oldest is 67. All say they will better the record made in the police games three years ago, and to do that these elderly athletes will have to run 100 yards in less than 12 2-5 seconds.

Commissioner of Correction Katharine B. Davis has given permission for a battalion of cadets from the New York City Reformatory to go down to Brighton Beach on the department's boat Correction on the opening day of the carnival and give some exhibition drills. The cadets, headed by their own band, will be under command of Capt. E. M. Dillon of the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

The track at Brighton Beach will be patrolled by a special squad from the United States Life Saving Corps. Music will be furnished by the bands of the Fire and Police Departments, assisted one day by the Reformatory Band. By order of the Police Commissioner each man in the department will have one day off to go to the carnival, and every one of them has bought tickets to it.

Tickets may be obtained at the headquarters of the committee, Room 654 [illegible]bridge Building, Broadway and Forty-fourth Street, as well as at hundreds of hotels, cigar stores, and other places.

Tourists for Bermuda and Panama.

Among those leaving today on the Caribbean for Bermuda are:

[illegible] N. Butler, Miss E. Conyers, E. G. [illegible], H. Curtis, Mrs. A. Eakins, Miss M. [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. H. Harnett, Miss [illegible] Jones, Miss A. B. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. J. Herrman, A. E. Payson, Miss Olive [illegible], G. H. Rayner, Mrs. C. R. Rickard.

[illegible]AGAPA, (Colon.)—A. H. Birdsall, W. A. [illegible], John Burke, C. E. Leaver, Miss [illegible] Sargent, H. W. Jarvis, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Raze.

THOMAS HASSETT MARRIES.

Ex-Secretary of Board of Water Supply Weds Miss Helen E. Clark.

Thomas Hassett, formerly Secretary of the Board of Water Supply and now President of the Hamilton Construction Company of this city, and Miss Helen E. Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Clark of Corning, N. Y., were married yesterday morning at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, in West 142d Street. The nuptial high mass was celebrated by the Rev. John Leo Miller, C. M., of Germantown, Penn.

The bride had lived for a few years at 501 West 141st Street and was the filing clerk in the Public Service Commission of the First District. Mr. Hassett was executive secretary to Mayor McClellan during that official's first administration. He is a member of the Catholic and Manhattan Clubs of this city and of the Fort Orange and Country Clubs of Albany.

MISS EMMIE WARREN WEDS.

Married to Louis W. Campbell of Dallas, Texas, at Her Home.

The marriage of Louis Wilbur Campbell, Jr., of Dallas, Texas, and Miss Emmie Leslie Warren, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emerson Warren, took place at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at the home of the bride's parents, 59 West Ninety-seventh Street, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Dr. Norris of the Church of the Holy Name, West Ninety-sixth Street.

The house was decorated with roses and peonies, and the bride wore a satin gown covered with lace, and carried lilies of the valley. Miss Marie Vogelius was the maid of honor, and wore a white lace frock and carried roses. The two flower girls were Virginia Sully, a niece of the bride, and Dorothy Harris of Galveston, Texas, a cousin of the bride. They were dressed in pale pink and blue, respectively, and both carried baskets filled with pink and white flowers.

Allen West of New York was Mr. Campbell's best man. There were no ushers. A breakfast for the immediate families and the bridal party followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Campbell have gone to the New Jersey coast for a few days, and will afterward go to Dallas, where they will make their home.

DINNER TO BRIDAL PARTY.

Miss Dorothy Wilde, Who Weds E. J. Moon Today, Entertains.

Miss Dorothy Violet Wilde, whose marriage to Earl Joseph Moon of St. Louis, will take place at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon in St. Thomas' Church, gave a dinner last night for the bridal party, and a few additional guests, in the garden room of the St. Regis, after the 6 o'clock rehearsal in the church of the ceremony. Dancing followed the dinner.

Those present included Mrs. M. V. Siegel, the mother of Miss Wilde; Joseph Moon, Sr., Mrs. Stuart MacDonald, Stanley Moon, Mrs. Thomas Carter, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Monteith Gilpin, Herbert Sierk, and the bridal attendants, who are to be the Countess Dentice di Frasso, a sister of Miss Wilde; Mrs. John de Koven Bowen, Mrs. Herbert Sierck, and the Misses Hilda Hiss, Mildred Dodge and Abby Morrisson; Stuart MacDonald, a brother-in-law of Mr. Moon, and who is to be his best man, and the ushers, John de Koven Bowen of Chicago; John Carroll, Jr., of Baltimore, Thomas Carter, Jr., and Ralph Morriss, of St. Louis, and Don Morrison Kelley, Lester Kafer and Russell Gardner of New York. The decorations were yellow foxgloves, sweet peas and daisies.

Mr. Gilpin, who is a cousin of Miss Wilde, will give her in marriage. A reception will be held at 5 o'clock at the St. Regis. There is to be a full choral service, and Daniel Filippi will be organist.

NEWBERRY—BAKER.

Mrs. Wolcott Ely Newberry of New Haven, Conn., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Doris Newberry, to Richard Wheeler Baker, also of New Haven. Mr. Baker was graduated from Groton School, Groton, Mass., in the Class of '09, and from Yale, Class of '13. He is now attending the Harvard Law School. No date has been set for the wedding.

KAHLE—VAN CLEES.

Mrs. Marcell Kahle of New Brighton, S. I., announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Illa Kahle, to William Carroll Van Clees, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Van Clees of West New Brighton. No date has been set for the wedding.

Son to Mr. and Mrs. W. Seaman.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodbury Seamans (Miss Alice Andreae) are being congratulated on the birth of a son last Sunday at Seabright, N. J.

SOCIAL NOTES.

MUSIC LEAGUE WILL AID SIXTEEN ARTISTS

Successful Candidates Chosen from 144 Singers, 34 Pianists, and 18 Violinists.

ENGAGEMENTS FOR THEM

Body Directed by Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, and Others to Give Concerts for Fund.

Definite progress has been made in the work of the Music League of America, an organization founded three months ago for the purpose of helping deserving young musicians to a proper public hearing. Among the officers and Directors of the league are Mrs. H. O. Havemeyer, Mrs. Willard D. Straight, Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. Linzee Blagden, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Dave Hennen Morris, and Alvin W. Krech.

As a result of the hearings of artists held in this city during the last two months sixteen artists have been selected. Engagements will be given them, and they will be helped to make a career in every possible way by the league. The list selected is the result of hearing 144 singers, 18 violinists, and 34 pianists, 196 performers in all.

The successful candidates are Mlle. Challet-Balme, Pauline L. Curley, Dora de Vere, Edna Dunham, Greta Torpadie and Helen Reusch, sopranos; Hilda Deighton and Christine Schutz, contraltos, and Robert Gottschalk, tenor; Marie Sakoff-Grunwaldt, George Halprin, Anna Pease and Sinaida Schafran, pianists, and Samuel Gardner, Sascha Jacobsen and Helen Jeffrey, violinists.

The judges who selected them were professional and amateur musicians, among them Andreas Dippel, Francis Rogers, Adriani Ariahi, Gustav Becker, Paolo Gallico, Maximilian Pilzer, Edouard Dethier, Max Karger, Michael Banner, and Mesdames Charles B. Foote, Kelly Cole, and Miss Florence Pease.

The league will now endeavor to obtain engagements for these artists at fees proportionate with their ability. Through the league several organizations, amateur and professional, have agreed to engage musicians for their programmes. These organizations include orchestras, choral societies, women's clubs, universities and colleges, seminaries and schools, and individuals giving private musicales. Howard E. Potter has been appointed business representative.

The league is also arranging to give a series of concerts in Boston, New York, Pittsburgh, and Youngstown, Ohio, next season. These concerts, which will enlist the services of artists on the list, will be extended to other cities. It is planned to add the appearance of artists of reputation in connection with them.

The profits from these concerts will be set aside in a fund to be used for the education of talented youg musicians residing in the towns or cities where the series takes place. The league will exercise close and constant supervision over the studies and work done by the students so selected.

BIGGEST LIGHTS FOR JULY 4.

5,000 Candle Power Incandescent Lamps to be Used.

At the Fourth of July celebration incandescent electric lamps of 5,000 candle power each, the most powerful ever made, will be used for illuminating some of the parks. They have been furnished by the New York Edison Company. They are so bright that they will be placed on the top of poles twenty-five feet high. They will be seen at Riverside Drive and Ninety-seventh Street and at the playground in 101st Street, between Second and Third Avenues.

Electric lights of 2,000 candle power each will be used in the band stand at City Hall Park, Grant's Tomb, and Washington Square. Park Avenue from 112th to 114th Street, under the New York Central Railroad tracks, where folk dancing will take place, will also be illuminated by these lamps.

Columbus and Tompkins Parks will not be illuminated, as originally planned, Mt. Morris and Isham Parks being substituted.

WILSONS MARRIED 29 YEARS.

Anniversary Will Not Be Formally Observed at White House.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Congratulations are due President and Mrs. Wilson tomorrow on the twenty-ninth anniversary of their marriage. There will be no formal observance of the day by even so much as a family party, as the two elder daughters of the house are absent from Washington, Miss Wilson participating in a convention at Madison, Wis., and Mrs. Sayre visiting in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. McAdoo, the youngest daughter of the family, and her mother's namesake, will probably be the only member of the family able to offer her congratulations in person.

FUNERAL OF MME. NORDICA

At Church in London Where She Married Mr. Young Five Years Ago.

LONDON, June 23.—A simple but impressive funeral service for Mme. Lillian Nordica was held today in the Kings Weigh House Church, Mayfair, where she was married just five years ago to George W. Young of New York.

The atmosphere of the church was heavy with the scent of flowers, which were banked in profusion around the peculiar shaped teak coffin, the altar, and the pillars.

A large congregation was present, including many of the artists with whom Mme. Nordica had performed. American Ambassador Walter Hines Page was represented by his secretary. Mr. Young was the chief mourner.

The Rev. Dr. Douglas Adams conducted the service, the music for which, including the hymn, "Onward, Christian Soldiers," was supplied by a surpliced choir. Dr. Adams in his prayer paid a tribute to the dead prima donna.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Among the arrivals on the Imperator today will be James K. Hackett and Victor Herbert. Mr. Hackett will go West soon to begin rehearsals of his production of "Othello," which will be put on at the Greek Theatre at the University of California. Victor Herbert comes to finish the score of "The Debutante," the new musical comedy in which John C. Fisher will star Hazel Dawn.

Paul J. Rainey will deliver a short talk to the newsboys of New York at the Casino Theatre this afternoon. The Newsboys' Home gets part of the receipts taken in by the Rainey pictures at the Casino this week.

Henry E. Dixie and Marie Nordstrom will appear at the New Brighton Theatre the week of July 20 in a one-act modern romantic comedy by Edgar Allen Woolf. Mr. Dixie will play a role on the order of Capicomico in "A Thousand Years Ago," in fact he will wear the costume. The finish will show Mr. Dixey in the white bridal costume he wore in "Adonis."

The Rev. John Henry Keiser, pastor of St. Ann's Church for Deaf Mutes, and 200 members of his congregation, together with Albert C. Ballin and 100 members of the Deaf Mutes' Union League, attended the Knickerbocker Theatre last night and witnessed the exhibition of "Cabiria."

Francis D. McGinn, the vaudeville actor, and the original Officer 666, will sail with his two daughters, the Misses Lorraine and Lila Frost, on the Philadelphia Friday for a tour through England, Scotland, and Ireland.

Two hundred and fifty blind children from schools in Brooklyn were the guests of the Luna Park management yesterday. The youngsters journeyed down to Luna in automobiles and were in charge of the class teachers and a delegation of women of the Council of Jewish Women.

WOMEN PASSED THEIR HATS

Removed Their Own Headgear to Make Suffrage Collection.

The suffragists held a meeting in front of the Sub-Treasury at noon yesterday under the auspices of the Women's Political Union. A collection is a feature of every good suffrage meeting, but yesterday the contribution baskets had been forgotten. Without a moment's hesitation Mrs. Norman De R. Whitehouse doffed her smart dark blue hat with a big, brilliant colored bow of ribbon. Miss Helen Todd, the California vote getter, had her Panama off in a jiffy, and no one had a chance to get away without contributing.

They were not unwilling givers, for when Miss Todd in her speech asked how many men in the audience believed in suffrage most of the hands in the crowd were raised. One that was not raised was that of young Isidor Siegel, who was peddling "protests" from the Anti-Suffrage Guidon Club.

The women had their usual march from Printing House Square with Miss Alberta Hill as the suffrage spirit which is going to vote in 1915. The women's request to speak from the Sub-Treasury steps had been refused by the Secretary of the Treasury, but while the speaking was going on from a big automobile in front of the building the marching squad of women in white stood at the base of the statue of the Father of his Country, one with the Stars and Stripes and others with party banners.

Mrs. Whitehouse in her address told the audience of men that there would never be militants in America, but that the action of the militants in England was a necessary result of conditions there.

After the party had returned to the Women's Political Union headquarters on Forty-fifth Street, Mrs. Henry Butterworth entered the rooms and presented the union with a large American flag.

LITTLE MOTHER FINDS AID.

Takes Her Starving Charges to Police Station to be Fed.

Gaunt and hollow-eyed, twelve-year-old Annie McGowan of 518 West Forty-ninth Street staggered into the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station last night with her tweny-one-months-old baby brother, James, in her arms, and two other brothers—John, 7 years old, and Perry, 4 years old—clinging to the ends of her short and tattered skirt. To Lieut. Clarken the little mother said:

"My mamma left home three days ago, and we're left all alone. Since mamma left we only had a loaf of bread and a bottle of milk that papa brought home two days ago. I'm not so hungry myself, but baby and the kids are almost famished. Won't you please let them have something to eat?"

Lieut. Clarken lost no time summoning Matron Mary Brown and giving the four tiny wanderers into her charge. The matron gave the children all the food and drink they required and then told them fairy stores until agents of the Children's Society arrived and took them to the society's rooms.

Meantime Lieut. Clarken sent Patrolman Hennessy to the address given by the little mother. The patrolman soon returned with the father of the children, Terrence McGowan, who said that he was 39 years old. He admitted that he was unable properly to care for the children, but denied that his brutality had driven the mother away from home. He was locked up on a charge of improper guardianship.

MRS. FLAGLER IMPROVING.

Nurse Says Mysterious Guests Are Better—Dr. Stone Wasn't There.

A nurse at North Brook Farms, Greenwich, Conn., the home of Mrs. John H. Flagler, said last night that the condition of Mrs. Flagler, who was thrown out of her automobile in an accident near Harrison, N. Y., on Saturday, was slightly improved. The two guests, who suffered minor contusions were also getting along nicely, she said.

No hint as to the identity of the guests has been given, and it was said at North Brook Farms last night that Mrs. Flagler had specifically ordered that the newspapers were not to have the information. Reports have had it that a Rev. and Mrs. Stone and also the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant were in the accident.

The Rev. Dr. J. Sumner Stone, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the Saviour, Lexington Avenue and 111th Street, has been mentioned as being the "Rev. Mr. Stone." Dr. Stone lives at 155 Pelham Road, New Rochelle. Last night a woman called THE NEW YORK TIMES and said that she knew for a fact that the man who figured in the accident was this Mr. Stone.

"This is getting to be a joke in my home," said Dr. Stone last night, when a TIMES reporter asked him for the second time what he knew about the automobile accident. "I have received many letters of sympathy, and I don't even know Mrs. Flagler. I had nothing to do with this case, and I'd like to know how my name was brought into it. But I must compliment you newspaper men for persistency. I confess I'd like to know myself now who Mrs. Flagler's guests were."

HOLMAN SUIT NEARS END.

Court Rules Out Testimony of Last Hour Woman Witness.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 23.—The taking of testimony in the $50,000 conspiracy suit brought by Mrs. Elizabeth C. Holman against her former husband, Prof. Cranston Brenton, and Dr. O. C. Smith and Dr. Paul Waterman of this city in the United States District Court was completed to-day and the lawyers began their arguments.

Mrs. Holman alleges that the three men conspired to place her in a retreat against her will.

When Judge Thomas opened court this morning he announced that the testimony of Grace Hemenway of New Haven, who, it was said, had been the housekeeper of two places in Hartford which had been closed by the police, was excluded.

David E. Fitzgerald of New Haven, counsel for Mrs. Holman, yesterday had Prof. Brenton stand in the courtroom. While pointing at him he asked Grace Hemenway, "Have you ever met this man before?"

Counsel for the defendants objected to the line of inquiry.

Judge Thomas today ruled that the question was irrelevant and not proper rebuttal.

MRS. WESTINGHOUSE DIES OF PARALYSIS

Widow of Noted Inventor Succumbs at Erskine Park, Her Beautiful Lenox Estate.

HER DRESS ALWAYS WHITE

The Color Paramount in Villa and Gardens of Her Design—Social Leader and Philanthropist.

Special to The New York Times.

LENOX, Mass., June 23.—Mrs. George Westinghouse, widow of the noted inventor and manufacturer of Pittsburgh, Penn., died at Erskine Park, her country residence, at 6:22 o'clock this morning.

Mrs. Westinghouse had been in poor health since September, 1912, when she suffered a paralytic stroke at Overlee, the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Frothingham, in Lenox, where she was attending a meeting of the Lenox Garden Club, of which she was a founder. Last Monday another attack of paralysis gave warning of her approaching end and her immediate relatives were summoned. When she passed away there were present her only son and the heir to the Westinghouse fortune, George Westinghouse, Jr., his wife, the daughter of the late Lord and Lady Thomas Brocklebank of England; Mrs. Westinghouse's sisters, Mrs. Paul Wadsworth of Albany, N. Y., and Mrs. A. Garrison Holmes of Pittsburgh, and a niece, Mrs. William M. Graff of Albany; also H. Herman Westinghouse, a brother of the late George Westinghouse, and Alexander G. Uptegraff, secretary for Mrs. Westinghouse.

Mrs. Westinghouse had been at Erskine Park since March, following the death of her husband in New York.

For twenty-six years Mrs. Westinghouse had been identified with Lenox country life, and for more than twenty years in a prominent way. Mr. and Mrs. Westinghouse first came to Lenox in 1888.

During their stay in Lenox in 1888 Mrs. Westinghouse began the foundation for her attractive estate by the purchase of three or four small farms on the west and south sides of Laurel Lake. These properties included the Schenck farm, noted for Jersey cattle, the Clark and Hunt farms.

No country place in all the Berkshire region is so stamped with the individuality of its owner as is the property of Mrs. Westinghouse. Its white marble drives and white villa seem perfectly in keeping with the green lawns and shrubbery, trees, and artificial lakes, and bridges. There is harmony in the setting, and the landscape work, so complete as to be by common consent designated as the finest in the Lenox countryside, was the result of Mrs. Westinghouse's individuality and taste. She was her own landscape engineer and gardener. She laid out the roads, located the artifical lakes and the bridges, and she indicated the planting of trees and shrubbery and the locations for the various gardens.

Mrs. Westinghouse's love for white in dress often made her a conspicuous figure. She wore white in all seasons. Her automobiles were upholstered in white; her furniture in her homes in Lenox, Washington, and in Pittsburgh were covered with white. This color was paramount in her gardens, although other colors were not sacrificed there to produce effects.

Mrs. Marguerite Erskine Walker Westinghouse was the daughter of Capt. Daniel Lynch Walker and Eliza Smart (Burhans) Walker of Roxbury, Delaware County, N. Y. She was born in Roxbury. Mr. and Mrs. Westinghouse were married in Brooklyn Aug. 8, 1867. Soon after they established a residence, Solitude, in Pittsburgh. They had traveled extensively, and in Mexico were entertained as guests of former President Diaz. Their private car Glen Eyrie has made many continental trips, penetrating all of North America reached by railroad systems.

Mrs. Westinghouse's charities extended over a wide field. She was especially interested in hospitals. She was a member of the Board of Managers of the Children's Hospital in Washington and the Homeopathic Hospital in Pittsburgh. She was a large subscriber to Hillcrest Hospital in Pittsfield, an institution she thoroughly believed to be of great usefulness in Berkshire County.

She was a member of the Lenox Golf and Tennis Club, Lake Mahkeenac Boating Club, and was a pew holder in Trinity Church, which she attended while in Lenox.

She was a member of the Twentieth Century Club of Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Chapter, D. A. R., and the Presbyterian Church of that city. Also she was a member of the National Geographic Society, National Society of Fine Arts, American Social Science Association, Archaeological Institute of America, and American National Red Cross Association.

Mrs. Westinghouse's funeral will be held at Erskine Park tomorrow at 2:30 P. M., and the body will be taken to Woodlawn Cemetery, N. Y., where it will be placed in the Westinghouse vault until at a later time when the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Westinghouse will be buried in the National Cemetery at Arlington, Virginia, where, by reason of his prominence in the civil war, the body of Mr. Westinghouse will be laid with that of his wife.

Michael Dowling Dies at Sea.

News was received by wireless yesterday afternoon from the White Star liner Cedric, outgoing to Liverpool, that Michael Dowling, a first cabin passenger, had dropped dead on deck of heart disease. Mr. Dowling was born in Ireland sixty-seven years ago, and was making his first trip back to see the village where he was born, with his wife and four daughters. Mr. Dowling amassed a fortune in the liquor business in New York, and for nine years owned the saloon bearing his name on the southwest corner of Forty-third Street and Seventh Avenue, which he sold for a large sum. He lived in West Seventieth Street, and had four sons and four daughters, one of whom is on her honeymoon on the Cedric.

Mrs. Clara E. Kingsley Brockway.

Mrs. Clara E. Kingsley Brockway, who was one of the first woman stenographers in this country, died yesterday at her home at 317 West Ninety-second Street. She was born in Syracuse in 1841 and married Leverett E. Brockway of Brooklyn. Upon his death in 1876 she took up the study of shorthand and was first employed in the law offices of Mann & Parsons. Mrs. Brockway was a stenographer for several years before typewriters had supplanted longhand in the transcription of notes. In 1888 she became stenographer to the United States District Court, and held that position in the Southern and Eastern District Courts until her illness this Summer. She is survived by two sons, A. L. Brockway, an architect of Syracuse, and Howard Brockway, musician and composer.

Thomas W. Entwisle.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—Thomas W. Entwisle, Philadelphia correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES, died today at his home in Chester, Penn., after an illness of five weeks. Mr. Entwisle's death resulted from blood-poisoning, due to a slight wound in his foot. Mr. Entwisle was born in Chester and educated in the schools of Pottstown. He began his newspaper career on The Pottstown Ledger. For several years he was editor of The Chester Times. Ten years ago he joined the staff of The Public Ledger and served in many capacities. Mr. Entwisle was the author of several books, the best known being "The House of La Cromie." He was a member of the Madison Street Methodist Church in Chester, for many years Superintendent of its Sunday school, and was also a preacher of the Philadelphia Conference.

OUR STREET CLEANING BAD.

Commissioner Says City Has Stood Still Since Waring's Day.

The Street Cleaning Department has stood practically still since the days of Col. Waring in 1897, it is far behind the departments of other cities, and its equipment is old and in very poor condition, according to a report received yesterday by Mayor Mitchel from Street Cleaning Commissioner John T. Fetherston.

"The open ash can, partly covered garbage can, open ash cart, open water front dump, and open system of refuge disposal are all in full operation, as they were seventeen years ago," the report says, "although the people of the city have voiced time and again their demands for better street sanitation. Radical changes in equipment and methods of cleaning have been devised and have been presented to the Board of Estimate for approval."

The report says that 24 per cent. of the employes of the department have been charged with violation of the rules. The Deputy Commissioners have heard 1,655 charges and 172 employes have been dismissed in four and a half years.

"In a properly managed organization no such conditions should exist," the report adds, "and the contrast leaves no doubt of the deplorable state of the department."

Although no radical changes in personnel and equipment can be made this year, the following improvements are recorded in the report:

An economical cover for ash and garbage cans has been found successful. While no provision was made in the budget for this improvement, transfers from other funds saved in other ways will allow a number of carts to be covered as a temporary expedient, pending the installation of automobile equipment.

A new method of hose flushing has been tested and is now in progress, with the co-operation of Water Commissioner Williams.

A much more extensive schedule of streets to be flushed is in operation, and if the water supply proves sufficient during the Summer all streets in need of washing will be flushed three times a week.

Sisters Meet After Sixty Years.

Two sisters who had been separated for more than sixty years have been reunited in Newark. Miss Emily Mayo, 74 years old, came here from London on May 30 to meet her sister, Mrs. Sarah Mayo Glasgow, 76 years old, of Galena, Ill. The reunion took place at the home of their niece, Mrs. Charles Comes of 40 Newton Street. Both sisters traveled alone. In a few days the sisters will leave for Mrs. Glasgow's home in Galena, where they will spend their remaining days together.

Dr. Edward T. Corwin Dies at 79.

Dr. Edward Tanjore Corwin, clergyman and author, died yesterday at the home of his son, the Rev. Charles E. Corwin, at North Branch, N. J., in his 80th year. Dr. Corwin was born in this city and was graduated from the College of the City of New York and from the New Brunswick Theological Seminary. He was ordained in the Reformed Church in America in 1857 and held pastorates at Paramus, Millstone, and New Brunswick, N. J., and in Greendale, N. Y. Dr. Corwin was the author of "Manual of Reformed Church in America," "The History of the Reformed Church in America," and "Ecclesiastical Records of New York."

Earliss P. Arvine.

Earliss Porter Arvine, a lawyer of New Haven, Conn., died at his home there on Monday night from apoplexy. He was born in Woonsocket, R. I., April 19, 1846, and was graduated from Yale at the age of 23 years. Since 1871, he had practiced in New Haven, where he was a member of the firm of Arvine, Beers & Woodruff. He was the Vice President of the F. E. Spencer Company of New Haven, and a Director of the Ball and Socket Manufacturing Company.

Samuel Hume Blake.

Samuel Hume Blake, a prominent Canadian lawyer and former Vice Chancellor of Ontario, died yesterday at his home in Toronto. He was born in that city on Aug. 1, 1835, and was educated at Toronto University. Mr. Blake served as Vice Chancellor of Ontario from 1872 to 1881.

DECISION ON RATES PLANNED FOR JULY 3

SOME INCREASES LIKELY

But No General Horizontal Elevation of Rates Expected—Philadelphia Hears Circumstantial Rumors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—It was reported tonight on apparently good authority that the Interstate Commerce Commission would hand down its order in the 5 per cent. rate increase case on Friday, July 3, after the closing of the Stock Exchanges. This would allow business men from Friday afternoon until Monday morning to study the effect of the orders, as the exchanges would be closed on Saturday, July 4.

A great many forecasts of the orders have been made, but it is only safe to say that the commission will grant increases in particular rates and deny them in others. The petition of the railroads was far from asking a horizontal 5 per cent. increase, though that phrase has become popular. Several hundred specific rates are involved, and the commission is expected to dispose of each by itself. The commission's order in the case went to the printer more than a week ago.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—Reports received here from Washington are that a 5 per cent. increase in freight rates will not be granted to the Eastern roads, but only a slight increase in the rates on first class freight. It is said that 66 per cent. of the traffic will not be affected, while on the remaining 34 per cent. the increase will not average more than 3 per cent. The railroads will be advised to abolish all free siding service and spotting charges. The abolition of this free service, it is estimated, will result in an increase return to the carriers of $35,000,000. The increase to be allowed in traffic, it is estimated, will bring the increased returns to about $50,000,000, which will be equal to about a 3 per cent. increase, instead of 5 per cent.

No increase in the rate on carload lots will be allowed, according to report. This applies to coal, iron ore, wheat, and corn. The rate on these things, it is declared, is now as high as the tariff will warrant. If anything, the rate on commodities should be lowered, it is argued, and only six months ago the rate on iron ore from the lakes to Pittsburgh was reduced greatly.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has had a hard time to arrive at a decision. There has been a division on the subject, it is understood, and indications are that Commissioner Harlan will file a dissenting opinion. The majority opinion contains more than 300 pages, presenting much of the testimony given by experts and hundreds of statistical tables.

RATE REBATES $12,000,000.

Due to Shippers as Result of the Intermountain Decision.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Seventeen railway companies constituting transcontinental freight routes are liable, under the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the intermountain rate cases, for many millions of dollars in reparation on shipments made since the institution of the cases.

The precise amount involved in claims already filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission has not been tabulated, but it approximates $12,000,000. One batch of claims alone, filed by a single attorney, aggregates more than $2,000,000. Scores of cases involving amounts ranging from a few hundred dollars to hundreds of thousands have been filed by individual shippers and by commercial and shippers' organizations acting for their members.

Neither in the original order of the commission nor in the decision of the Supreme Court was the question of reparation to shippers discussed. From time to time, however, in the last two years petitions setting up claims for reparation have been submitted to the commission. All of them have been held up pending final determination of the several cases.

It will be necessary for the commission now to consider these claims and such others as may be filed, and to pass upon them as upon original cases. To a large extent the commission may exercise discretionary authority in the matter. The law in respect to reparation does not act automatically. Each case or claim is a subject of adjudication.

Since the granting of about $2,000,000 to shippers in the "yellow pine" cases the commission has been extremely chary in allowing reparation. Nearly if not quite 50 per cent. of the yellow pine reparation was absorbed by court expenses and attorneys' fees. Two or three firms of lawyers are said to have cleaned up independent fortunes from the yellow pine reparation for doing little more than filing the claims of their clients. The contracts called for a large percentage of the collected claims, and in some instances they received also liberal allowances for expenses.

In those cases the commission fixed the amount of reparation at 65 per cent. of the proved claims. At that time it was pointed out that the reparation went to the shippers and their attorneys, none of the money reaching the consumer, who had been the real loser through the increased rates.

INVOLVES CANAL BENEFITS.

Under Intermountain Decision Commerce Board Will Be Arbiter.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—That the distribution throughout the country of the benefits of the Panama Canal will rest with the Interstate Commerce Commission and not with the transcontinental railroads is one of the conclusions being drawn from the Supreme Court's decision in the intermountain rate cases.

It has been generally asserted that the Panama Canal would reduce freight rates from Atlantic seaboard points to Pacific Coast cities, and vice versa, but the question as to what extent the railroads might allow interior points to share in the benefits of water competition enjoyed by the seaboard cities was in dispute. The decision of the court is that the commission will answer those problems and that the railroads may simply proceed to haul the freight.

The railroads fought for the right to adjust the trade balances among various sections of the country. The court found an answer to the whole controversy in the holding that Congress conferred on the railroads themselves the right to make discriminations in favor of a long haul, and hence had the right, and did in 1910 take this right from the railroads and give it to the commission. Had the decision been to the contrary, it would have rested in the judgment of the railroads as to how far interior cities should share with seaboard cities in the benefits of water competition.

Applications from railroads to put into effect long and short haul rates throughout various sections of the country have been held up pending the court's decision. It is expected that the commission will at once take up those applications, pass upon them, and if they are found reasonable, determine by how much it is right for the railroads to allow certain hauls to exceed others of longer distance.

NEW ENGLAND LINES VICTIMS.

Vermont Conference Delegates Report That Interference Is Chief Cause of Loss.

MONTPELIER, June 23.—The Vermont members of the New England Railroad Conference, Percival W. Clement and Willard B. Howe, have just submitted their report to Gov. Fletcher on the best modes of developing and operating the New England railroad systems. It is apparent that they believe that the misfortunes of the roads in question have been less the result of mismanagement than of interference.

There have been mistakes in the management of the Boston & Maine Railroad, they admit, but by consolidation with the New Haven it was hoped by the management to keep pace with the development of business. But this opportunity was denied.

"An attack upon New England railroads," they say, "for which some mistakes afforded a pretext, and which seems to have gathered inspiration from political and personal, and, possibly, stock-jobbing interests, was made with vigor and animosity, resulting in a hysterical condition of public opinion and a feeling of hostility toward the railroads, making any improvement of financial or operating conditions impossible.

"President Roosevelt recognized the advantages of consolidation and the impetus thereby given to the development of New England industries and commerce, confirming his language to Congress that nothing could be more foolish than to administer the law as to 'unnecessarily interfere with the development and operation of our railways.' Nevertheless, the Department of Justice has invoked the law against this combination and insists that it shall be dismembered."

It is apparent, the committee goes on, that while the Sherman law was invoked, the desire that law was not the motive behind the action.

"It is useless for us to speculate," the report states, "as to the true reason. Whether it was the wish of the Administration to punish some great banking house in New York, or to reduce the market value of New England railroad securities looking toward Government ownership later, or to prepare the public mind for more drastic railroad legislation, is immaterial. The result we all know and feel. New England has suffered a loss of more than $200,000,000 and no one has been the gainer."

It is not the desire of, and it is not to the interest of the people of New England that its railroad systems should be owned by the Government, either State or Federal, the reports hold.

"The disregard by regulative bodies of the principle that regulation should not prevent a fair return upon the capital invested," it says, "affects more than the owners of the property. If not permitted to earn a fair return their property is confiscated. Such a result is an insuperable barrier to railroad development.

"Legislation is not a panacea. Our public service doctors may be called upon too frequently and exercise their functions so as to create a mischief when no interference was required."

CONDEMNS SPEER AS TYRANT

But House Sub-Committee Does Not Recommend Judge's Impeachment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—At the conclusion of a report that sustained many of the charges filed with the Department of Justice against Judge Emory Speer, of the Federal Court for the Southern District of Georgia, a special sub-committee of the House Judiciary Committee today recommended that the case against the veteran jurist be dropped, so far as Congress was concerned. The committee's action is thought to foretell the end of impeachment proceedings against the Judge.

Members of the House who familiarized themselves with the findings of the majority of the special sub-committee today regarded the report as remarkable. Its contents appear to have been based upon the proposition that Judge Speer, through his thirty years of service on the Federal bench, had approached the boundary line of official impropriety, but had never overstepped it. The report said:

"An examination of the record in this case is suggestive of the fact that early in his judicial career Judge Speer ascertained the limit to which he could go before liability to impeachment for official conduct would accrue and went as close to the line upon many occasions as safety would permit.

"Having literary attainments, oratorical ability and a keen intellect, knowing the privileges of a Judge sitting in the trial of cases before a jury, it was rare, indeed, that a jury was permitted to return a verdict contrary to his wishes, regardless of all the facts."

The verdict of the sub-committee follows:

"The sub-committee regrets its inability to either recommend a complete acquittal of Judge Speer of all culpability so far as these charges are concerned, on the one hand, or an impeachment on the other. And yet it is persuaded that the competent legal evidence at hand is not sufficient to procure a conviction at the hands of the Senate. But it does feel that the record presents a series of legal oppressions and shows an abuse of judicial discretion which, though falling short of impeachable offenses, demand condemnation and criticism.

HERR REBUFFS STRIKERS.

Refuses to Take Up Westinghouse Men's Grievances While They're Out.

Special to The New York Times.

JITTSBURGH, June 23.—Hopes of an early settlement of the big Westinghouse strike went glimmering this afternoon when President E. M. Herr of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company flatly turned down the demands of a committee of strikers. President Herr not only told the members of the committee "the Westinghouse shops will always be open shops," but he also declared that he would take up none of the grievances the strikers complained of while the employes remain out.

After the conference the Strikers' Committee went into session with the General Strike Committee late this afternoon. Just what the next move of the strikers will be cannot be foretold tonight, as they refuse to make known the result of their conference with the General Committee.

The feeling among the strikers and many of the business men of the Turtle Creek Valley is bitter tonight. Great hopes had been placed on the committee which visited Mr. Herr today. This committee had been picked at random from among the striking workmen on the suggestion of President Herr, and it was believed that much would be accomplished at the conference.

After voting to go out on a sympathetic strike today, the 600 employes of the Westinghouse Foundries Company are reconsidering the matter tonight.

President H. T. Prout of the Union Switch and Signal plant at Swissvale tonight submitted his answers to the list of grievances presented to him. They will be taken up and considered by the strikers in mass meeting tomorrow.

President E. M. Herr and Vice President L. A. Osborne of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company left here for New York tonight, where they will attend a meeting of the Directors of the company tomorrow.

Brooklyn Man Thinks Body May Be His Daughter's.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, June 23.—Believing that his daughter, who disappeared from her home in Brooklyn several weeks ago may be the victim of the Mohawk River tragedy, Albert Engel of 1,197 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, communicated today with the police here. Engel's daughter, aged 24 years, left home several weeks ago accompanied by Charles Hooper, who, according to the father, answers the description of the man who rented a boat from Claude Hanlon on the night of May 20 and rowed away with a burlap bag and a block of concrete.

The letter was accompanied by photographs of Hooper and Miss Engel. Detectives were detailed to submit the picture of Hooper to Hanlon for identification. Hanlon at first thought there was a resemblance between the man of the picture and the renter of the boat, but when questioned by the detectives admitted that the man he saw appeared to be heavier.

The District Attorney's office has almost despaired of finding the head, believing that it was not thrown into the river.

Chairman Merriam of the County Board of Supervisors, said today that he has issued a call for a special meeting of the board for Friday for the purpose of offering a reward of $500 for the recovery of the head.

SAYS GERMANY BIDS FOR A CANAL ROUTE

Nicaraguan Minister Says That Others Would Pay More Than $3,000,000 We Offer.

ADMITS MARINES' PRESENCE

Not Asked For, but Welcome—Bryan Would Indemnify Costa Rica, Too.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—In an interesting departure from diplomatic custom, Gen. Emiliano Chamorro, Nicaraguan Minister to the United States, today appeared before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations in support of the proposed treaty with Nicaragua and declared that Germany stood ready to pay more for a monopoly of the Nicaraguan Canal route than the $3,000,000 which it was proposed that the United States should pay.

Minister Chamorro's statement that in some quarters the $3,000,000 suggested was regarded as too small, because Germany was willing to pay a larger sum, puzzled the members of the committee, as the German Foreign Office long ago officially denied any desire for a canal right of way across Central America. Members were uncertain whether to accept the statement as part of a game to enhance the apparent value of the right of way or as an official declaration that Germany was angling for control of one of the three Isthmian canal routes.

While judgment has been suspended pending the receipt of additional information, some members of the committee appear to regard the information given by the Nicaraguan Minister as an attempt to bolster up the treaty by extraneous matters which had a foundation in fact none too solid.

Coincidentally with the information obtained respecting the session of the committee held today, it was learned that Secretary Bryan had proposed that Costa Rica's protest against the ratification of the proposed convention with Nicaragua should be satisfied by the payment of money. The Secretary of State recommended that after the treaty with Nicaragua had been concluded, the United States should pay Costa Rica to relinquish her claim in the San Juan River. As to Costa Rica's political objections to the establishment of an American protectorate on her border, nothing was said.

When Secretary Bryan was before the committee, inquiry was made whether other Central American countries had protested against the ratification of the proposed treaty, and admitted that Costa Rica had filed a protest based upon her claim that she was equally interested with Nicaragua in matters affecting the San Juan River. The Secretary of State appeared to accept this claim as valid.

He was asked what should be done to satisfy Costa Rica, and it was then that he proposed that the United States, after paying Nicaragua $3,000,000, should continue its expenditure of money among Central American republics and purchase Costa Rica's right in the San Juan River so that the title of the United States to the Nicaraguan route should be clear. The Secretary of State was asked if Salvador had not filed a protest, and the further inquiry was addressed to him why the protests of Costa Rica and Salvador should not receive the same consideration as the reported readiness of Nicaragua to accept such a treaty as had been proposed.

In the course of his remarks Minister Chamorro admitted that the American flag floated over the White House at Managua, and that American marines were posted in and about the seat of Government, where they would do the most good if called upon to act. Another body of marines is camped on a hill beside a stretch of the Nicaraguan railroad, guarding the property, part of which is owned by American bankers and the balance held as collateral for a loan of $1,000,000 made by Brown Brothers & Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co. of New York.

How American marines came to land in Nicaragua Minister Chamorro left as a mystery. He said he did not know who asked to have the marines sent there.

In response to a series of questions, he said that the presence of the marines was not distasteful to the governing powers of Nicaragua, and that while no request had been made for them to stay, no request had been made that they be removed.

"Do you think President Diaz wishes them to leave?" he was asked.

"I do not," replied the Nicaraguan Minister.

It was stated in the Senate on one occasion that the Diaz Government was maintained solely by the presence of American marines, and that it would collapse in a short time if their support were withdrawn.

The committee was interested in Señor Chamorro's statement that former Minister Weitzel, representing the United States in Nicaragua, participated in the councils of state of that republic and had a hand in framing the ticket headed by President Diaz. It is said that this ticket was so manipulated that other candidates were eliminated, and during the succeeding election President Diaz was elected to office by only a small minority of those qualified to vote.

The Nicaraguan Minister said that the people of his country favored the proposed treaty and would like to see it ratified. He was pressed for the facts upon which he based this statement, and replied that it was made from his own observations and from comment he had heard after the publication of the proposed treaty in Nicaraguan newspapers. Members of the committee who are inclined to be hostile to the treaty were not convinced that the grounds for the statement were sufficiently broad to permit them to conclude that all Nicaragua favored the proposed convention.

Minister Chamorro, while giving the committee much information, showed a capacity for not understanding English when questions were addressed to him that might place him in an embarrassing position. At times he proceeded without interruption for fifteen minutes, and so much time was consumed with his statement and the questioning of the committee that Rafael Cuadra, Nicaraguan Minister of Finance, who was present, was not heard. Señor Cuadra will be heard on Thursday morning, when the inquiry into the Nicaraguan treaty will be resumed.

Chairman Stone, of the Committee on Foreign Relations, today addressed letters to Ernest H. Wands, appointed fiscal agent in Nicaragua to look after American interests, Charles H. Conant of New York, who made a trip to Nicaragua to examine Nicaraguan finances, and members of the banking houses of Brown Brothers & Co. and J. & W. Seligman & Co., asking them to appear before the committee.

The Senate has not yet passed the Smith resolution providing for an investigation of Nicaraguan affairs, and the letters sent out by Senator Smith today are not in the nature of subpoenas, but are merely requests. If the resolution of inquiry is passed the committee will be empowered to subpoena witnesses and examine them under oath.

Secretary Bryan today expressed his belief after leaving the Cabinet meeting, that both the Nicaraguan and the Colombian treaties would be ratified by the Senate.

RACING DEATH FROM ALASKA

Capt. Ubbereth Starts for His Wife's Bedside in Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—With his wife hovering between life and death thousands of miles away from him, Capt. P. H. Ubbereth of the Revenue Cutter McCulloch, now at Unalaska, Alaska, was expected today to start a two-weeks race for her bedside in Philadelphia. Every means at the command of the Revenue Cutter Service here was employed in an effort to get word to Capt. Ubbereth of his wife's serious illness, but without avail until Saturday, when the McCulloch arrived at Unalaska. Wireless dispatches were sent, but they failed to reach Capt. Ubbereth's ship.

Capt. Ubbereth was expected to leave Unalaska on the steamer Dora for Cordova, today. Three days will be occupied in making this first jump. He will transfer at Cordova to a steamer bound for Seattle, a five-day trip. At Seattle Capt. Ubbereth will board the first train East and probably will reach Philadelphia five or six days later.

QUEENS SCANDAL TO GLYNN.

Carmody Investigates District Attorney Smith's Conduct.

The official conduct of District Attorney Matthew J. Smith of Queens in connection with the cases of James Heffernan and Harry Scanlon, convicted of an attack on Mrs. Clara Ellert in the Long Island City Democratic Clubhouse, is to be brought officially before Gov. Glynn by Attorney General Carmody.

The Attorney General came here yesterday, and after a conference with Deputy Attorney General McQuaid in the New York Bureau, at 299 Broadway, an official statement was given out, in which it was stated that careful consideration had been paid to the conduct of the District Attorney in the Ellert case, "both while it was in his charge and after its removal from his hands by Gov. Glynn."

"At the end of the conference," the statement went on, "the Attorney General instructed Deputy McQuaid to collect all the court records bearing on the case, including the stenographer's minutes of the Heffernan and Scanlon trials, for submission to the Governor."

Justice Townsend Scudder of Brooklyn wrote yesterday to Mr. McQuaid to apologize for having omitted to mention in court his work in connection with the cases.

"I appreciated," he wrote, "from the beginning, how great were your disadvantages, ignorant to a large extent of local conditions and handicapped by a lack of sympathy, if not actual hostility. In so far as it is possible at this late hour to make amends for my thoughtlessness, please accept this statement now as a recognition of your painstaking, earnest work."

District Attorney Smith was elected to office in November, 1911, and his term of three years will expire on Dec. 31 of this year.

K. OF C. DANCE AND DRILL.

Charles Carroll Assembly Holds Patriotic Celebration.

The annual patriotic celebration of the Charles Carroll General Assembly, Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus, was held yesterday and last night in the Manhattan Casino, 155th Street and Eighth Avenue. During the day there was a children's picnic, with outdoor games, in the park adjoining the Casino. In the evening 1,000 persons filled the Casino and grounds for a dance and drill by the uniformed color guard, composed of fifty knights of the Fourth Degree.

The drill was reviewed by Dr. F. A. Chicherio, master of the degree. At its conclusion Lieut. William H. Patton of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, who is a Captain of the color guard, was presented with a testimonial sword in the name of the guard by W. J. Boyd, Vice Master of the Second New York District of the Knights of Columbus. The guard drilled under their Colonel Commander, Capt. Costigan of the Sixty-ninth Regiment.

Dr. John G. Coyle delivered an address on the flag after the drill. Mayor Mitchel and Public Service Commissioner McCall were expected, but sent word at the last minute that they were kept away by business engagements.

The dance, which took up most of the evening and early morning, was the really important part of the celebration to the majority of those who attended. For the most part the dancing was strictly "old-fashioned," which did not seem to interfere with the pleasure of the dancers at all.

The committee Chairmen for the evening were: Floor Committee, William W. Smith; Reception Committee, William P. Myhan; Arrangement Committee, J. A. Westhauser.

POWERS THREATEN HAITI.

France and Germany to Seize Custom Houses Unless Debts Are Paid.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—News has reached Washington from unofficial sources that France and Germany have warned Haiti that her custom houses will be seized unless arrangements are made to meet the outstanding Haitian financial obligations.

Secretary Bryan said today that no notice that such a step was contemplated had come to the United States from the European powers, but reports of the serious situation in the island republic, torn within by revolution and besieged by creditors from without, was the subject of a long discussion at today's Cabinet meeting.

What the attitude of the United States might be was not indicated. Officials pointed out, however, that there was no treaty or arrangement under which the United States might assume charge of Haitian customs as it did in the case of Santo Domingo.

It was also recalled that the Washington Government did not object when a British warship recently enforced upon twelve hours' notice the payment of a Haitian debt.

There are now four American war vessels in Haitian waters, including the battleship South Carolina. They have been kept busy protecting foreigners in the places near which the Government and rebel forces have been fighting.

The German cruiser Strassburg is now in Dominican waters, within a few hours' sail of Port-au-Prince.

BLACKMAIL BY AIR LINE.

Burton Hoped to Collect from the Cunard Line by Carrier Pigeon.

Henry J. Burton, the nineteen-year-old negro boy who was arrested several weeks ago in a sensational manner by New York detectives near Hackensack while trying to collect blackmail on his threat to put dynamite in the hold of one of the Cunard liners, was brought here yesterday from Hackensack on a Governor's warrant and locked up in the Mulberry Street Station. He spent fifteen months in Elmira two years ago after having been convicted of having stolen goods in his possession.

The detectives say that since his arrest they have received letters written to several railroads by Burton, demanding money on the same terms in which he threatened the Cunard officials. They say he wanted $35,000 from the New Haven, $10,000 from the Pennsylvania, and $10,000 from the Ontario & Western.

Burton told the detectives, they say, that he had invented a brand-new device for getting blackmail money without leaving a trace of his whereabouts. If no attention had been paid to his demand to have money thrown from a West Shore train, he said, he would have procured some carrier pigeons, taken them several times to the building where the Cunard offices are, and liberated them. He would have repeated this until the birds knew the air line to his home from that building, and then would have sent a demand for money with one of the pigeons by parcel post, with instructions that the money or communication should be tied to the leg of the bird.

Special Act for War Veterans.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Senate today passed a bill to allow Federal and Confederate veterans of the civil war to take the fourth-class postoffice examination regardless of their age.

CONGRESS VOTES SALE OF WARSHIPS

House Concurs with Senate, 174 to 87, to Let Greece Have Mississippi and Idaho.

Covers Full Original Cost—Dreadnought to be Built with the Proceeds—Republican Opposition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Despite Republican assertions of a possible "entangling European alliance" and constant antagonism on the part of the "small navy" men of the Democratic side, the House today accepted the Senate amendment to the Naval Appropriation bill which permits the sale of the battleships Idaho and Mississippi to Greece and the construction of a dreadnought with the proceeds. The vote was 174 to 87. Five members answered "present," and 168 were absent or not voting.

The large majority is accounted for on the ground of exertion of Presidential influence. Once before, when this same proposal was before the House, although it did not arrive at the stage of a vote, there was an apparent and overwhelming sentiment in opposition. Secretary of the Navy Daniels declared tonight that the sale of the ships and the building of a dreadnought would be a great thing for the navy.

While the House accepted the battleship proposal, two other Senate amendments to the naval bill were rejected. These provided for the construction of a $3,000,000 dry dock at Norfolk, Va., and a $500,000 breakwater at Key West, Fla. The naval bill was then sent back to conference. It is likely that action will be taken in the Senate tomorrow which will close up all matters in dispute and thus make the bill ready for the President's signature.

The amendment which will make it possible for Secretary Daniels to sell the Idaho and the Mississippi follows:

The President may, in his discretion, direct the sale, in such manner, at such price no less than the original cost price and upon such terms as he may deem proper, of the two battleships Idaho and Mississippi. All moneys received from the sale of said vessels shall be deposited by the Secretary of the Navy in the Treasury. After said sale is, in addition to the two battleships hereinbefore authorized, the President is hereby authorized to have constructed a first class battleship carrying as heavy armor and as powerful armament as any vessel of its class, to have the highest practicable speed and the greatest desirable radius of action, and to cost, exclusive of armor and armament, not to exceed $7,000,000. Out of the money, when so deposited in the Treasury, there is hereby appropriated toward the construction of said battleship on account of increase of the navy: Cost construction and machinery, $2,000,000; armor and armament, $2,500,000, and equipment, $100,000; provided, that no vessel shall be sold under this authorization unless such sale or the agreement therefor shall have been made prior to July 1, 1915.

Representative Mann of Illinois, the Republican leader, offered an amendment that the money derived from the sale of the vessels be placed in the Treasury without regard to the increase of the navy. This was lost, 103 to 154.

Chairman Padgett of the Naval Committee said that the two vessels were excellent ships of their class, but were "misfits" in the United States Navy.

"They are ships of 13,000 tons displacement," he said. "They are undergunned and slow of speed, and in maneuvring with the rest of the fleet they cannot keep up. They impair and destroy the efficiency of the whole fleet, the other vessels having to adjust themselves to the capabilities of these two. Already we have had experience in trying to keep these two ships in line with the others, and the effort broke their mainshafts."

Formal protest from Turkey against the proposed sale has not altered the plans of the Administration, and the two warships probably will be in the hands of agents of the Greek Government within a week. As soon as the necessary preliminaries are arranged representatives of the Newport News Shipbuilding Company and the Bethlehem Steel Company, who have been acting as intermediaries in the negotiations, will call at the Navy Department and hand to Secretary Daniels a certified check for about $12,000,000, the price agreed upon.

Secretary Daniels issued this statement:

This is a splendid thing for the navy, and I am naturally much gratified that the House concurred with the Senate in accepting the department's recommendation, thus taking advantage of this unusual opportunity. In the stead of these two vessels the navy will obtain a superdreadnought or the most advanced type, such as the Pennsylvania, and equal to four vessels of the type of the Mississippi or Idaho.

This ship will carry a main battery of twelve 14-inch guns as against the eight 12-inch guns carried by the Mississippi and the Idaho combined. She will have a speed of 20.5 knots as compared with the maximum of 17.17 knots attained by the Mississippi and Idaho. Through the concentration of her big guns in four turrets and use of oil for fuel she will require a crew of about 800 men, whereas each of the old ships required a crew of 700 men.

For one reason, Secretary Daniels is anxious to forward the sale of the battleships because Greece would pay $12,000,000, which is the full cost price for vessels that are ten years old. In the ordinary course, the two ships would be consigned to the scrap heap or be used as targets, like the old Texas, afterward the San Marcos.

MEDALS FOR FIRE HEROES.

Mayor Mitchel Will Present Them Today on City Hall Steps.

Fire Commissioner Adamson announced yesterday that the annual presentation of medals to the men of the department for heroism and efficiency will take place at 11 o'clock this morning on the steps of the City Hall. Mayor Mitchel will pin the medals on the firemen. Commandant Albert Gleaves of the Brooklyn Navy Yard and Col. William A. Hazin, Chief of Staff of the Department of the East, will be present.

Ten medals will be presented, eight for heroism, one to the Captain of the best-disciplined company from the School of Instruction, and one to the company from the same school having the best record for efficiency. Two hundred firemen selected from eleven divisions will act as a guard of honor. The Fire Department Band will furnish music.

JAPAN FIRM ON LAND CASE.

Formal Note May Not Be Answered —Arbitration Talk Revived.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—The Department of State has practically decided not to answer the Japanese note of last August in regard to the California land laws. This decision would seem to indicate not only that the less formal exchanges of the last ten months have been abandoned, but that in spite of recent reports to the contrary, the correspondence may not be taken up at the point where it was left off last August. The suggestion that the whole subject be submitted to arbitration is again presenting itself.

The department is convinced that the American side of the case would win an easy verdict in any impartial international tribunal. The whole dispute hinges on the question of treaty rights and the Administration is convinced not only that it has observed the spirit and letter of the treaty with Japan, but that it could prove that no violation had been committed. The American case, in fact, is so strong that the Administration thinks the Senate would impose no insuperable objections to a convention submitting the question to arbitration under the general arbitration treaty with Japan, which was extended last Summer for a period of five years from August 24, 1913.

Unique and without parallel

The Equitable Building will have a wonderful foyer and spacious arcades, and whoever enters it will realize instantly that he is in a building of character, unique and without parallel even in a city which has long been famous for the magnitude and munificence of its commercial structures.

As a building the Equitable will stand alone—as a business proposition it stands there also.

Leases now being made from May 1, 1915. The building, however, is due to be completed 2 or 3 months ahead of that date.

ROOSEVELT a question

"What are you going to do?" This is the leading question propounded to Colonel Roosevelt in an article by Colonel George Harvey which will be published in The New York Times next Sunday. The question is direct and to the point. The argument outlining the answer expected covers the entire field of present, past, and anticipated political conditions. "Macedonia cries to Armageddon for help from Gideon's band."

"Vodka" is the Russian for brandy. Mr. Kurt Aram gives an entertaining description of the influence of this Russian monopoly upon the peasants, who, he says, are the most sympathetic and best-hearted people in the world. "Nowhere," he says, "are the police officials so amiable as in Russia, nowhere can one live and travel so pleasantly—if one has the necessary bribe money."

The "biggest" thing at the last Salon in Paris was the work of an American artist, Mr. Gilbert White; mural paintings, which were accorded the place of honor in the grand stairway. These colossal decorations were made for an American Court House. A description of them and a most delightful interview with Mr. White will be one of the magazine features next Sunday.

Max Nordau, the famous sociologist, writes on "Sovereign Woman and Vassal Man"; an article in which he declares that, though American men constantly appear as characters in European books and plays, American women do not, because the only thing they know how to do is spend money.

There will be another unusually attractive picture section next Sunday; photographs of the Yale-Harvard Regatta; the Kaiser's Regatta at Grunau; the American College at Constantinople; a page of June brides; the Vanderlip garden party at Beechwood; and a score of other interesting pictures.

"CLOVER TIME"

The spirit of June is beautifully expressed in this delightful painting by Mr. C. Bergen. It bubbles over with joy and abandon and freedom. Mr. Bergen is a sympathetic painter of child life, and his "Clover Time" is filled with the sweetness of blossoms and the merriment of childhood. The reproduction is by the rotogravure process of art printing recently introduced by The New York Times. This picture will be given free with every copy of next Sunday's New York Times.

You Breathe Through Your Skin!

An ancient form of punishment for crime was varnishing the skin with a substance which closed the pores. The result was always fatal. This proves how necessary it is to keep the pores open and allow them to "breathe."

The oils of perspiration and the scaly particles from the skin, clog the pores and prevent sufficient entrance of air. Keep your skin clear and clean by the use of

NO HARD TIMES IN WEST, SAYS GARFORD

Ohio Progressive Is Interested in Six Lines of Manufacturing.

ONE IS RUNNING 20 HOURS

Says Wool Prices Have Advanced and Is Hopeful of Currency Bill—Gives Administration Credit.

When a candidate is running for office on some ticket other than that of the party in power it is not unusual for him to blame the Administration for all the ills, real and imaginary, with which the country is said to be afflicted. A. L. Garford of Elyria, Progressive candidate in Ohio for the United States Senate, who arrived at the Waldorf yesterday, doesn't believe in this. Mr. Garford is a business man and yesterday he talked from the viewpoint of a business man. He insists that the Administration should have full credit for whatever good it may have accomplished.

His talk yesterday seemed to come from the nearest to a neutral viewpoint that has been discovered in the Waldorf lobby since grape juice wandered out of the advertising and into the news columns of the papers.

"I am not a Democrat and I am not in favor of free trade," said Mr. Garford, who is interested in six different lines of manufacturing in Ohio, "but the Administration has got to have a square deal. It has accomplished some things that somebody or something had to bring about. Lots of people complain that the operation of the wool schedule of the new tariff has worked harm to the country. As a matter of fact the price of wool has gone up.

"Perhaps the operation of the regional banks will diminish the importance of New York as a financial centre; but they will benefit the country as a whole. The New York banker, when times look a little hard, will no longer be able to say to the small inland manufacturer, who is a little 'extended,' 'You may not be able to weather the gale; pay up what you have borrowed.' Under the new system, if a man's credit is good, he will not be put out of business by a sudden demand of the banks from which he has borrowed money.

"I do not agree with the view of President Wilson that the 'hard times' are psychological. I believe they are real, but at the same time they are local in extent. I believe they are confined to the country east of Pittsburgh. They are industrial in character, and they are more or less dependent upon the reluctance of the Interstate Commerce Commission to reach a decision of one sort or another in the railway rates increase matter. As soon as a decision is reached, whether it is for or against the railroads, there will be an improvement, because the roads will be able to determine upon what basis they stand. The moment the railways are able to give orders for the rails and rolling stock in which they stand in such great need there is bound to be an improvement in the steel industry, and then all the industries will benefit.

"I was talking the other day on the train to a salesman for a big New York concern who had been making a five months' tour of the West. He told me he had done the biggest business he had ever done.

"There are four great lines upon which the prosperity of this country is based—agriculture, industry, finance, transportation. As for the first, the crops this year are going to be the biggest ever; and the farmers are going to make a lot of money because they will find labor plentiful. As for finance, the banks are full of money. As for transportation, the situation is in the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission. All those lines I have mentioned are closely related. As for industry, in the Middle West that is prospering. You don't hear talk of hard times in Cleveland, for instance. You hear nothing else in New York. But many manufacturing concerns are very prosperous. Those I am interested in are making money. A lace factory, for instance, is making more money than ever, and it has to run twenty hours a day to supplyy the demand for its product.

"I have not been talking from the standpoint of a politician; I am giving the views of a business man who has studied the situation. Naturally there is a good deal that is being done in Washington which is of a character that no business man could possibly indorse. But that is because too many of our legislators are lawyers, and know nothing about business, and it goes to show that Congress needs a leaven of good business men who are in a position to judge better what a business country needs in the way of legislation.

"The Progressive Party out in Ohio is thoroughly organized," said Mr. Garford in answer to a question. "We shall have a full State, legislative, and Congressional and practically a full local ticket in every county. The organization is stronger than ever. The Republicans have plenty of candidates and many contests. Some of the candidates are in a hole over the liquor question.

"The platform of the Progressives insists upon strict enforcement of the law, whatever it may be, and it is in favor of the submission by Congress of an amendment to the voters of the States, giving Congress powers to deal with the question—in other words, of putting the liquor trade under Federal supervision and control. We look upon the liquor business as a 'big business,' and there is no reason why this should be side-stepped. If liquor is an evil, it is a national evil; if it is merely a business, it is certainly a nation-wide business, and it is interstate in character. Without looking at the matter from a radical or a fanatical standpoint, we say the liquor trade is a big business, and should be under national control, just like the railways.

"The question of a Constitutional amendment would force the issue into the Congressional districts and take it out of crossroads or municipal elections. As matters stand, it stares us in the face every two year, because under our laws the question may be voted upon that often. I believe in taking liquor entirely out of politics. Why let a big business control public affairs? If the United States Steel Corporation undertook to build up a strong machine to control public affairs to the extent the liquor men have done, there would be open scandal and rebellion. If steel is a big business, what is liquor?

"We are expecting Col. Roosevelt to come to Ohio, and he will undoubtedly do so if his health permits. I think ex-Senator Joseph B. Foraker will be nominated for the Senate by the Republicans over Warren S. Harding and Ralph Cole, and that Timothy D. Hogan, Attorney General of the State, will be the Democratic nominee. The situation is at least interesting."

FOG HALTS LUSITANIA IN BAY

Guy Nickalls, a Passenger, Praises Yale's Boat Crew.

The Cunarder Lusitania sailed for Liverpool promptly at 6 o'clock last night and proceeded as far as Stapleton, where she had to anchor in the fog for the night. On board were 451 first, 450 second, and 990 steerage passengers, and 3,850 sacks of mail.

Guy Nickalls, the English rowing coach, was was a passenger on the Lusitania, said that English style and rig was the reason that the Yale crew turned seeming defeat into victory.

"I shall come back in the Fall," he added, "for six weeks to give the boys some work, and will then go home and return next Spring. I believe that the crew of next year will make a bteter show than this one did, for several promising men were nt in the boat."

Other passengers on the Lusitania were Sir Charles and Lady Fitzpatrick, Townsend Martin, Mr. and Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge, Mrs. M. Dwight Collier, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Turnbull, and Mrs. G. W. Woolsey.

NEW HALL FOR DARTMOUTH.

$100,000 Home for Non-Athletic Activities Dedicated.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., June 23.—Robinson Hall, Dartmouth's new $100,000 building, which was presented to the college by Wallace Robinson of Boston, was dedicated today. The presentation speech was made by Mr. Robinson, and the building was accepted by President E. F. Nichols on behalf of the Trustees. Gov. Samuel D. Felker of New Hampshire was present. The building will be devoted to all forms of extra-curriculum activities outside of athletics, the purpose of the donor being to give these college organizations a home as spacious and complete as is the alumni gymnasium.

A parade of the classes holding reunions was held today before the Amherst game, nearly 1,000 being in line. Tomorrow morning the class of 1914 will pay its last farewell to the college as undergraduates, when the degrees in course will be conferred. Honorary degrees will also be announced at this time.

The Warren Prize Scholarship, offered to the member of the senior class standing highest in scholarship throughout his college course, was awarded to W. H. Loveland of Hyde Park. P. W. Loudon of Troy, who won his letter in football, baseball, and basket ball, receives the Kenneth Archibald Prize as the best all-round athlete in the senior class. The Spaulding Mechanical Drawing Prizes went to R. F. Evans of Worcester, Mass., and E. H. Gumbart, Jr., of South Norwalk, Conn.

Among the appointments announced was that of Frank N. Anderson as Professor of History. He is a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

Warrants Issued for Sanden Electric Company Men.

Gideon H. McIvor, General Manager of the Sanden Electric Company of 1,261 Broadway, was arrested yesterday on the charge of using the mails to defraud. The premises of the company were closed by order of Postmaster General Burleson and warrants were issued for two more men. Commissioner Houghton held McIvor in $1,500 bail for examination on July 3.

Post Office Inspector Edmund Honvery accused the defendant of having represented through advertisements, which were sent through the mails, that the electric device known as Herculex was designed especially for the cure of nervous diseases, lumbago, rheumatism, kidney and bladder trouble, paralysis, and kindred complaints. These representations, the Inspector alleged, were fraudulent, and were made to sell electric belts.

Assistant United States District Attorney Kenneth M. Spence said the Sanden Electric Company, which was a trade name for the business conducted by Albert T. Sanden, had been in existence for twenty-two years. It has been sending belts costing as much as $40 each, to patients all over the United States, to Canada, France, Sweden, Germany, Poland, and Finland. It was reckoned by the Federal authorities that the annual profits averaged $50,000, and that the alleged frauds had yielded nearly $1,000,000.

One of the other men mentioned in the other warrants is now summering in Maine, and the other, a medical man, who is accused of answering leters of possible patients by prescribing the use of electric belts, even though sometimes the symptoms described prove the writers perfectly healthy, is a resident of Brooklyn.

FIELD FOR EXPORT TRADE.

W. F. Saunders Discusses Opportunities in South America.

William F. Saunders, Secretary and General Manager of the Business Men's League of St. Louis, Mo., arrived here yesterday on the steamer Tenadores of the United Fruit Line after a three months' trip through the South American republics. He said he had headed a party of business men on the trip, and he thought that their joint report would be of great interest to manufacturers all over the country.

"At present," said Mr. Saunders, "the English and German merchants and manufacturers have the bulk of the trade with South America, but they will not have it long if our business men once make up their minds to go after it. It is incorrect to say that there is antipathy toward the United States through Latin America. We were warned before leaving home that we should find this to be the case, especially in Uruguay. The only thing we heard in the way of an anti-American demonstration was in Montevideo, where a few students were singing ballads against the policy of the United States in Mexico."

Mr. Saunders said one of the old excuses for the United States not getting her share of the trade of the Latin republics was because the European merchants packed their goods better. This was not the reason, he asserted, but it was on account of American merchants not sending their own men to study the South American market and give the people what they needed. He also thought that there was plenty of room for a chain of god American banks to compete with the English and German banks which had held the field there for years.

SEEKS THE KODAK "BIBLE."

Federal Attorney Hears of Card Index of 13,000 Customers.

BUFFALO, June 23.—John Lord O'Brian, Federal attorney, continued today to lay the foundation of the Government's suit seeking the dissolution of the Eastman Kodak Company. The company's policy toward dealers was the line followed today.

John J. Guthrie of Rochester, a former sales manager for the company, said during the eleven years he had been with the Eastman Company he had kept a card index of the 13,000 customers which showed quantities and brands of papers and plates used. Later the Government expects to show that this card index formed the basis of the alleged blacklist known in the company's office as the Bible.

R. G. Blackmore of Bloomfield, N. J., a dealer in photograph supplies, testified that he could not get any Eastman supplies until he threw out all other lines.

Frederick J. Harrison of Newark, N. J., said that when he lost his agency for the Eastman products he devised a scheme to get them through druggists.

"But the druggists were discovered," he said, "and I didn't finance them any longer."

His contract was terminated, Mr. Harrison said, because he supplied some cameras to an independent dealer at less than the list price. Since then he had been unable to buy Eastman supplies direct, he said.

Bill to Punish Mashers Advanced.

BOSTON, June 23.—The Senate by a vote of 18 to none, passed to a third reading today the so-called masher's bill, which would punish with six months' imprisonment any man who accosted on the street a woman or girl with whom he was not acquainted.

JONES EXPLAINS HARVESTER PLACE

Was Invited on Board by Friends, He Wires, But Says Nothing About Reforming It.

OPPOSITION IS STRONGER

Senators Take Keen Interest in Perkins's Letter About Chicago's Reserve Board Member.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—George W. Perkins's letter describing the circumstances under which Thomas D. Jones of Chicago, nominated by President Wilson to be a member of the Federal Reserve Board, became a Director of the International Harvester Company, awakened the keenest interest among members of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency today. This new interest threatens further to impede Mr. Jones's progress toward confirmation.

In his letter Mr. Perkins declared that Mr. Jones was selected for the directorship by Cyrus McCormick and was in accord with the policy of the corporation, and that President Wilson was in error in asserting that Mr. Jones joined the board as a reformer. In addition, Mr. Perkins said that personally he approved the nomination of Mrs. Jones as a Reserve Board member. These statements have done much to solidify the opposition.

Mr. Jones has sent a telegram to Mr. Owen, Chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency, explaining his connection with the Harvester Company. In that telegram he declared that he was invited by a number of friends to become a director and had no large pecuniary interest. Mr. Jones says nothing in his telegram, however, to indicate that he intended to attempt to reform the corporation. It was believed today that a request to Mr. Jones to appear before the committee in person would be made within a few days.

The sub-committees to which the nominations were referred are proceeding independently in their search for information. Members of the sub-committees meet informally and discuss what they have heard as fact or rumor, and it is probable that formal meetings will not be called before next week.

W. P. G. Harding of Birmingham, one of the President's appointees, has been invited to send an autobiographical sketch to the sub-committee to which his nomination was referred. So far its members have been unable to learn morn than the most casual facts about Mr. Harding and his business connections.

Voting for nominees for Directorships in the twelve new Federal Reserve banks was concluded yesterday. The Organization Committee was showered with belated ballots from the various member banks and it will be sereval days before the committee will be able to supply lists of nominees to electors.

A statement was issued some time ago that June 22 would be the last day the committee would receive nominations. Each bank belonging to a Federal reserve bank has selected an elector through whom it will cast the vote for Directors in the Federal reserve bank of its district.

A list of the men placed in nomination for the directorships will be supplied to the properly accredited electors, and they will indicate to the Organization Committee their choice for Class A and Class B Directors. There will be three Class A and three Class B Directors for each Federal reserve bank. The three Class C Directors of each bank will be selected by the Federal Reserve Board after its organization.

It has been made clear by the Organization Committee that absolute secrecy will be thrown about the ballots of electors. This assurance was given to prevent any group of financial men from dominating the banks of their sections.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 23.—"I haven't had a word of any kind from President Wilson since my appointment to the Federal Reserve Board," said Thomas D. Jones today. "My information is gleaned largely from the newspapers, and from them I learn that my name has gone in to the Senate for confirmation.

"Regarding any communication I may have had from the Senate concerning my appointment I cannot make any statement. It would not be courteous to the members of the committee considering my name. If that committee wishes to make public any communication which may have passed between us I am willing, but my attitude is positive silence on this subject."

Mr. Jones still declines to make any reply to or comment on the statement made by George W. Perkins yesterday that Mr. Jones went on the Harvester board at the express invitation of the men who organized and managed the company and not as a reformer.

NEW CONSULAR RULES.

Why They Are Objected To by Importers in This Country.

The American Importers' Association, U. S. A., Inc., it was announced yesterday, will take up with the Treasury Department complaints of merchants that American Consuls abroad are making unauthorized regulations to govern the invoicing of foreign merchandise under the amended Consular regulations proclaimed by President Wilson and effective July 1. Members of the association claim that some features of the regulations will cause great hardship to manufacturers abroad as well as importers here.

Importers here have been advised from factories with which they do business in Europe that the Consuls at Budapest, Vienna, and Berlin have sent out notices to the manufacturers exporting merchandise to America that unless a change in accordance with their published circular is made in the execution of invoices they will refuse to certify such invoices.

A copy of the circular issued by the Consuls received in this city shows that they require designations of weights and measures in the units of this as well as the foreign country; the designation which the United States is using in the classification of the goods, and, in case the same article appears more than once in an invoice, a summary must be given showing the total amount of the article.

Ex-Judge Sharretts, counsel for the association, gave an opinion yesterday, at its request, in which he said that Consuls have no authority to issue regulations specifying upon what terms invoices shall be certified. He held it is mandatory on a Consul to certify an invoice properly produced before him unless he has reason to believe that the statements in the paper are untrue. It is probably true that the Consuls have the authority to make notations on invoices by way of correcting what they deem erroneous, but it is not the policy of the law that Consuls should decide whether or not merchandise is properly classified.

Judge Sharretts advises the association that the Consuls exceeded their authority in issuing the regulations, and that their requirements are not justified by the law and are therefore illegal and void. The counsel also holds that Consuls have no legal right to refuse to certify invoices because they do not contain the information specified in their circular. The whole matter will be brought to the attention of President Wilson, who it is hoped will remove any misinterpretations which it is thought the Consuls may have regarding the working of the regulations. It was also said that the foreign Governments may make representations on the subject.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday...3½@4 per cent. for the best names
Monday.....3½@4 " " " "
The quotation is for six months' paper.

To Sell Our Shoes in China.

According to Consul General Thomas Sammons, who is stationed at Shanghai, China, recent investigations made in that country by the representatives of American shoe machinery concerns and American shoe manufacturers have resulted in the decision to establish retail stores at Shanghai, Hankow, and Tientsin for the purpose of handling American-made shoes exclusively.

Embroidery on Shirts.

Shirts with embroidered effects are selling well, both for immediate and Fall delivery. In some cases the white expanse of bosom front is relieved by small figures embroidered in black, placed between the buttons or run up and down between the plaits. St. Gall work, however, is shown in some styles, and rather an elaborate appearance obtained thereby. It takes the memory of some of the oldest salesmen in the business to remember the use of embroidery in shirtmaking.

Clothing and Piece Goods.

Little activity prevails in the clothing trade at the present time. Some slight improvement in the overcoat situation is noticed in spots, but the change is by no means general. The clothiers believe, however, that buyers visiting this market to place supplementary orders will add to their overcoat stocks. There is little interest manifested in piece goods prices for Spring, and while it is generally agreed that there will doubtless be advances, from present indications no rush will take place to buy at opening quotations.

Marking Time in Men's Wear.

The men's wear primary market is marking time, with little to feature operations. There is an indication, however, that the Fall season will be completed on various shades of gray. The reason assigned for this is that gray as a color affords a welcome change from the numerous combinations of blues and greens featured in tartan checks. While business is dull, producers are actively engaged in discussing prices for the coming season. Outside the fact that large operators in the clothing trade expect to gain some information on this score from the prominent factors in the market within the next few days, very little else but generalizations are indulged in.

Exports of a Week.

General exports, exclusive of specie, from the Port of New York last week were valued at $11,920,039, compared with $14,768,234 the week before and $14,013,164 the week before that. The exports the corresponding week one year ago aggregated $15,903,227. The total value of this year's exports to date is $456,787,859, against $463,560,500 in the corresponding period of 1913. Exports of domestics and cotton duck from New York last week were valued at $497,818, against $335,321 the week before and $407,770 the week before that. The greatest amount shipped to a single country—$258,650 worth of cotton goods—went to the Philippines. The week before China led, with $243,498 worth.

Collar Men Catching Up.

The comparatively cool weather of last week enabled collar manufacturers to gain some headway on the large volume of orders placed with the advent of the previous hot spell. As an indication of the immense business done at the outset of the Summer season, one prominent house in the trade reports turning out 40,000 dozen collars within three days' time. The slight initial bookings on the soft variety of collar, made of such materials as pique and silk, has been followed by duplicates that assure a record season for the style. The sale of shirts with collars attached also shows that a number of men are more inclined than ever to waive style for comfort.

Those Palm Beach Suits.

The demand for Palm Beach suits continues very active. Manufacturing clothiers, who make a specialty of these garments, are daily receiving telegraphed orders for additional shipments. Some of the manufacturers were amply supplied with the desired fabric, but others cannot promise deliveries in less than three weeks. The surprising feature, from the clothiers' standpoint, about this business was the sudden nature of the demand. One man offered the explanation that those men who have attended conventions in the South and Southwest, because of the heat, were forced to discard their heavy suits for lighter apparel and bought the suits from the local dealers, who were, consequently, obliged to replenish their stocks.

Hard Coal Demand Picks Up.

"Production of anthracite continues on a heavy basis," The Coal Trade Journal will say today, "despite the quietness in the local market and the fact that trade in some sections is rather flat. As a rule, June tonnage is only slightly below that of May, and it looks as if that would be the case this year, although the May output was somewhat above normal. One or two companies are operating only three days a week, but the rest of the mines are practically on full time. Of the domestic sizes, chestnut is the weakest in price, with some lots available at 20 cents off the tidewater circular. It is hard to detect any signs of picking up in the bituminous market, but hopes are entertained that after the midyear turning point there may be a change for the better."

Crockery and China Quiet.

There is not much business being done in this market at present on fine china and crockery. This is normally a dull period for the trade, but, according to what one of the leading merchants said yesterday, this is the dullest spell that has been struck since the panic year of 1907. Spring business was generally smaller than that taken a year ago, and little activity is looked for now until the buyers begin coming in for Fall merchandise in August. With 90 per cent. of the salesmen in from the road, there is naturally little business coming from that source. Complaint is again heard of the pirating of patterns, and some of the larger houses in the trade are watching closely the progress of the bill now before Congress providing for the protection of commercial designs by registration.

Rubber Prices Lower.

There was only a fair demand for the offerings at the fortnightly auction of crude rubber which was held in London yesterday, and, according to cables received in this market late in the afternoon, only 400 tons had been sold. Prices were slightly lower than at the last previous sale, smoked sheets having closed at 2s. 3¼d. and pale crepe at 2s. 3¼d. The opening figure on pale crepe was given as 2s. 4d. Up-river fine was quoted regularly in London at 2s. 9¾d. for July and August delivery. Here the same grade was held at 69 cents for spot delivery, and in Para it was nominally quoted at 68 cents for spot. This figure is dangerously close to the lowest ever touched on this grade. A second auction was held yesterday at Antwerp, where 350 tons of plantation and Congo rubbers were sold at declines ranging from 1 to 3½ cents a pound.

Buying Active at Auction.

Between ninety and one hundred buyers, many of whom represented some of the largest wholesale and retail stores in the country, were present yesterday at the peremptory sale of embroideries, white goods, and other merchandise that was held in the salesrooms of Karp Brothers, 477 Broadway. The merchandise offered was inventoried at $288,000, but so active was the demand that the sale was completed early in the afternoon. All of the goods were offered in large lots and were taken rapidly. A high percentage of the inventoried value of the goods was received. Among the firms represented at the sale were the Baltimore Bargain House of Baltimore, R. H. White & Co., Boston; the Krauss Company and the Leon Fellman Company of New Orleans, and the New York Merchandise Company, the Steinfeld Company, and the Globe Merchandise Company of this city.

Gray Goods Buying Fair.

There was a fair demand for gray goods locally yesterday, though the business done in the staple end of the market was not great. There were a few sales made during the day on 38½-inch 64-60s at 5 cents, and some of these goods were offered at 4 15-16 cents. It was said, however, that they were a little off in quality. A few sales were also made on 38½-inch 60-48s at 4⅜ cents; 39-inch 68-72s were held nominally by the mills at 5¾ cents. Narrow goods were quiet but firm, on the basis of 2⅞ cents for 27-inch 56-52s. Fine goods were active, and in some cases contracts were taken on these constructions by the mills for deliveries running to the end of the year. This was especially true of 40-inch lawns. There was a better call for sateens, and buyers were looking for rice cloths for quick delivery. There was little doing in drills and sheetings, the feature of these goods being the variety of prices asked for them by the various mills. Despite the quiet, prices on gray goods generally are being sustained well. There is evidence of a bullish feeling in the market, and it was said in one quarter that if values could be sustained for another two weeks the market would be all in favor of sellers.

TO SELL HUDSON IRON CO.

Trustee Finds Receipts Insufficient to Pay Interest.

Suit to force the sale of property of the Hudson Iron Company was brought yesterday in the Federal District Court by the Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company. The iron concern owns the Hudson Mine at Highland, N. Y., and other mining property at Woodbury, N. Y., and Secaucus, N. J. The company has defaulted in the payment of $19,525 interest due on its bonds on Feb. 1 last, and has also failed to make sinking fund payments amounting to $10,000.

The Columbia-Knickerbocker Trust Company is the Trustee under the mortgage, which is dated March 5, 1906, and against which $802,000 bonds are outstanding. The Trust Company took possession of the property on June 20 through Oswald G. Villard, its agent, and is carrying on the business, but it has found that the receipts are not sufficient to meet the obligations under the mortgage.

The Hudson Iron Company was incorporated under the laws of New Jersey with a capital stock of $1,500,000 in 1904, and Mr. Villard is its President.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Duties on Articles Decided by Various Considerations.

In overruling a protest by the Cleveland-Akron Bag Company the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday held that the proviso in Paragraph 310 of Schedule K of the Tariff act of 1913 by its express terms left the old Schedule K of the act of 1909 in force as part of the present Tariff act until Jan. 1, 1914. This being so, embroidered articles made of wool, entered Oct. 18 last, are more specifically covered by Paragraph 383 of the tariff of 1909 covering embroidered articles made of wool than under Paragraph 358 of the act of 1913, both of which were in effect at the time of the importation in question. Judge Brown says that the fact that the new Schedule K of the new act, which did not go into effect until later, did not mention among its provisions embroidered articles cannot affect the situation.

Another somewhat similar case decided yesterday by the board was in the name of the W. N. Proctor Company of Boston. The firm imported hats in chief value of silk and partly composed of wool during the interval while Schedule K of the act of 1909 was continued in effect as part of the act of 1913 by the provision to that effect in Paragraph 310 of the new law. Treating Paragraph 382 of the act of 1909 under which classification was made, covering wearing apparel in part of wool, and Paragraph 317 of the new act, covering apparel in chief value of silk not specially provided for, the board holds the former controlling and overrules the protest.

Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago, lost in a contention that flimsily constructed and cheap accordeons are toys under the tariff. Duty was taken at 45 per cent. ad valorem as musical instruments. The rate claimed was 35 per cent.

R. Pierson & Co., St. Louis, imported merchandise returned by the Appraiser as all-silk woven fabrics in the piece, yarn-dyed, other than black, and weighted in the dyeing beyond the original weight of the raw silk. Duty was assessed at the appropriate rate according to its weight per square yard and the number of threads per inch in the warp under the provisions of Paragraph 309 of the old law. The importers contended that the merchandise contained less than 60 per cent. in weight in silk, and that it is properly dutiable at $1.30 or $1.00 per pound, but not less than 45 per cent. ad valorem under the same paragraph. Analysis at the Government laboratory at New York confirmed the Appraiser's return. Judge Howell overruled the protests.

Raw Fur Merchants Organize.

ALBANY, June 23.—The Raw Fur Merchants' Association of New York was incorporated today to create and maintain harmony and co-operation among merchants engaged in the raw fur trade in that city. Charles L. Bayer, Oyster Bay; O. Godfrey Becker and Adolph Wiener, New York; Ferdinando N. Monjo, Stamford, Conn., and Almond E. Prouty, Brooklyn, are Directors.

SOUTH AFRICAN FIELD.

What Manufacturers Must Do to Build Up Trade There.

G. H. Dunn of Cape Town, who has been in this city for several weeks in connection with the extension of American export trade in the Union of South Africa, leaves for home tomorrow. Mr. Dunn, who has been pushing English and American goods in South Africa for thirty years, said that, while he found export agents here thoroughly alive to the need of pursuing a strong, liberal, and vigorous policy in extending our trade abroad, their efforts in many cases appear to be curtailed, or in some instances nullified, by the conservatism of the manufacturers.

"It must be understood at the outset," said the Cape Town man, "that Americans to get a foothold in foreign markets must be prepared to spend money and use the same methods as their British, German, French, and Italian competitors. American manufacturers here are quite ready to close contracts with agents abroad based solely on commissions for goods actually sold, but they generally are entirely unwilling to bear any part of the expense attached to working up a demand for their products. Reliable and experienced agents cannot handle American products on a commision basis alone.

"The simple truth is that the foreign manufacturer, appreciating the stakes at issue in going after trade, spends money liberally, though wisely, and in most instances is correspondingly rewarded. Some American manufacturers tell me they have been 'stung' in some instances where they attempted to treat their agents in a liberal manner, but this it seems to me is no reason for ignoring the value of a competent and faithful sales representative actually on the ground and conversant with market conditions in his territory. Another illusion prevalent among American manufacturers is that, because an article is popular here and a good seller, it will surely make its way in foreign countries merely by exhibiting it in show windows. This of course is fallacious."

BUSINESS NOTES.

L. W. Fellows, resident buyer, 31 Union Square, has added the account of B. F. Ehlers & Co. to his list. The Ehlers store is located in Honolulu.

T. S. Morgan, who is a resident buyer at 78 Fifth Avenue, will move about July 1 to 1,170 Broadway.

Why Not Profit By Present Conditions!

It is the general consensus of expert opinion that the present is a very propitious time to invest in good bonds.

The explanation is that while many issues of conservative bonds have behind them properties whose true values are even greater than in times past, it is nevertheless possible to obtain on such investments returns approximating 4½% to 5¼%.

Our Circular 1442 describes several bond issues of the above character, and we shall be pleased to send the circular to those interested in conservative investments.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks React—Large Gold Exports—Fewer Freight Cars Idle.

The intermountain rate decision, which was handed down on Monday so late that it did not then receive full consideration by the financial community, was the chief topic of market discussion yesterday. In banking circles a good deal of attention was paid to the further large gold shipments and to the fact that exchange rates continued to rise. The engagements were the largest made on any single day since the movement began and brought the total loss of gold since the beginning of the year up to $80,000,000. For some of this gold the Bank of France, it is understood, is making special allowances under old arrangements, but a large part of yesterday's gold transactions were based solely on the position of exchange.

It was learned, moreover, that further shipments would probably have to be made against sales of exchange already made by some of the exporting bankers. The French national loan is expected to be put out on July 7 and some bankers are looking for continued gold exports so long as shipments can be made to reach Paris in advance of the public offering of that loan. The feeling prevails that a very large short position in exchange must have existed, for otherwise it is believed the selling of bills against gold exports would have had more effect. Despite yesterday's very heavy engagements sterling exchange closed higher than it had the previous day.

The intermountain decision hardly increases the powers of the Commerce Commission although it more clearly defines one phase of that body's rate-regulating authority. In the pending Eastern freight rate case there has been no question of the jurisdiction of the Commerce Commission or of its power to deal fully with the questions raised in that case. It did not appear clear, therefore, on what ground some found a relationship between the intermountain decision and the forthcoming Eastern freight rate decision. On the surface, at least, the intermountain decision was against the railroads and this determined the direction of its effect upon the stock market yesterday. Railroad authorities seem to agree, however, that very little loss in railway earnings is likely to result. It is worth recalling in this connection that when the Commerce Commission's ruling was made less concern seemed to be caused among the railroads than among manufacturers and dealers, who felt that the establishment of the new zone system might seriously affect the previously prevailing relationship between the markets of the East and those of the Pacific Coast and intermountain sections of the country. Less, however, is now being heard on that score.

For the first time since the middle of March the fortnightly statement of the American Railway Association showed a decrease in the number of idle cars. The percentage of decrease was small, but if it marked the turning point in the declining movement in the freight car demand, as it well may in view of the beginning of the grain shipping season, no little significance attaches to this change. It was heard yesterday that in the steel trade the output of the mills and the incoming orders have come closer together, but in this movement reduced shipments continue to play an even more importont part, it is said, than an expansion in new business.

A good deal of profit taking in Southern Pacific was called forth by the very sharp rise in that stock on Monday and it showed a net loss of 1 3-8 points for the day. It was again by far the most active stock in the list. Union Pacific showed a similar net loss. A further postponement of the proposed distribution of Baltimore & Ohio stock is expected, but that should not have been much of a factor in yesterday's movement. A number of other stocks showed net losses approaching or slightly exceeding a point. London was a seller here on balance largely as a result of the evening up accounts in advance of the fortnightly settlement, which begins today.

Fourth National Merger Completed.

Eight of the fifteen Directors of the Fourth National Bank, which has been taken over by the Mechanics' and Metals National, were elected to the board of the latter at a special meeting of shareholders yesterday. They were Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., James G. Cannon, Eugene Delano, L. F. Loree, T. Frank Manville, E. D. Snow, F. De C. Sullivan, and M. Orme Wilson. These additions increase the board of the Mechanics' and Metals to thirty-eight, and complete the merger of the business of the two banks.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Advance Fails to Hold.

The day's score in the stock market showed that the strength imparted to prices in the preceding day by Southern Pacific's upturn was not of the lasting kind. Some of the confidence aroused among floor traders on Monday for operations on the bull side was still in evidence when the day's business began, but it quickly petered out. Fairly active buying of Southern Pacific occurred in the first hour, and there were moments later in the session when the stock was in demand, but the weight of general heaviness pulled the quotation down materially before the close. Brokers on the floor of the Exchange said that by noon the atmosphere was as blue as before Monday's spurt. In point of business, however, the day gave quite a little encouragement over many recent sessions.

Some "Good" Steel News.

Again dispatches come from Pittsburgh telling of increased activity in steel mills of that region. In quarters where little account is taken of the resumption of operations in a single mill or furnace, or of a few more working hours added to the weekly labor of a few men, this news is not considered of much value. But the general trade, in this period of reduced business, watches for any signs of cheer, and does not spurn those which, in better times, would seem of small moment. The opening of a mill that has been closed down for months is a matter to excite some degree of enthusiasm. The telegraph yesterday brought word of broader operations at several points along the Allegheny River and of plans for further improvement at an early date.

May's Loss on B. & O.

As the Baltimore & Ohio is expected to benefit more largely by any increase in Eastern freight rates that may be allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission than any other road, its statement of earnings for May, made public yesterday, was studied with a great deal of interest as indicating the necessity for an increase to meet changed business conditions. In May the Baltimore & Ohio did a gross business of $7,586,000, a decrease of $1,381,000 from the total for the previous May. This loss was partly offset by reductions in expenses. In the maintenance of equipment the company cut off $16,809, in traffic costs $14,678, and in transportation $252,035. These reductions, with a small saving in general expenses, made a total of $622,944, so that the loss in revenue still exceeded the reductions by $758,299. This decrease is much above the average for the year to date. In the eleven months ending with May the company's gross earnings declined $2,930,000, while its transportation costs increased $1,625,000. The total reduction in expenses was $1,289,000, leaving a loss in net earnings for the eleven months of $1,641,000. Unless the decrease in net in June can be kept within $217,000 the road will not show its dividend earned.

Fewer Cars Idle.

Although there is still an abnormally large number of idle freight cars on the lines of this country and Canada, the latest report of the American Railway Associations contains some encouragement in noting a small decrease. On June 15 the net surplus was 232,334, a decrease of 9,468 cars. This is the largest surplus for this time of year since 1909, but the small decrease appears to break a long succession of rising totals, since the movement of crops is expected to engage more and more cars from now until the crest of the movement in the late Fall. Prior to the current statement the car census has not reflected any increase in demand for equipment since the middle of March.

May Lower Panhandle Dividend.

Poor earnings are responsible for reports that the Pennsylvania Directors may again reduce the dividend payments of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis at their meeting in Philadelphia today. In recent years both the preferred and common issues paid 5 per cent., but at the last quarter the payment on the former was reduced to a 4 per cent. basis, and on the common stock to a 3 per cent. basis. There has been a further falling off in earnings since that reduction was made, and this has led to predictions that the Directors today may go further and either reduce or entirely omit the common dividend. Of the $27,478,000 of preferred Panhandle stock the Pennsylvania owns $22,462,000, and of the $37,173,000 common the company owns $23,390,000. The earlier cut in the rate has lowered the Pennsylvania's income by $690,000, and omission of the common dividend would occasion an additional loss of $700,000 a year.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

British Consols Decline on New Loan Issues—Prices Easy on the Continent.

LONDON, June 23.—Money was in good supply and discount rates were a shade harder today.

The Bank of England took most of the $5,000,000 new gold offered in the open market. A small portion of it was taken for Russia.

Traders on the Stock Exchange were chiefly occupied with the mining carry-over and business otherwise was slack, with the tendency easy, especially in Brazilian bonds and the Paris favorites. Consols declined on new loan issues.

American securities opened quiet and a fraction lower. Prices moved irregularly during the first hour, but later the list was kept under parity by the intermountain rates decision and profit-taking. The closing was dull.

PARIS, June 23.—Prices were easy on the Bourse today.

BERLIN, June 23.—Trading was quiet and prices were rather weak on the Boerse today.

American Can Company Paid the Excess Price for "Good Will."

BALTIMORE, June 23.—Further testimony as to high prices paid for Baltimore can manufacturing plants was adduced at the hearing here today before Special Examiner Edward Hacker, who is gathering evidence in the Government suit for the dissolution of the American Can Company on the ground that it is an illegal combination in restraint of trade.

Charles R. Kirwan of the firm of Kirwan & Tyler, said that the American Can Company bought this concern in 1901 for $125,000 in cash, $125,000 preferred stock, and $125,000 common stock. At the time his machinery and plant was valued at $32,000. The difference, he said, was for good will.

When asked for his opinion of the deal he said: "The price paid was out of all proportion to the value received."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

The trading on the Consolidated between 9:30 and 10 o'clock was on quite an active scale. Prices in the general list showed an immediate tendency toward retreat from the levels established the day before. Great Northern preferred sold down ½ of a point from Monday's final price, and United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, and Union Pacific each ⅜ of a point lower. Southern Pacific, which reflected resistance to the trend, was most active, changing hands on the call to the extent of 1,300 shares. The effect of the inter-mountain decision by the United States Supreme Court, definitely establishing the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission to make rates, was to offset the favorable influence marketwise which had been exerted in the closing trading on the previous day by the decision in the Southern Pacific oil lands case.

NEW BANKING LAW WORRYING BROKERS

Unable to Determine Whether They Must Take Out Private Banker's License.

FEW OF THEM HAVE DONE SO

Law Seems to Require It and May Force Them to Close Out Profitable Accounts—Await a Ruling.

A great deal of confusion has arisen among brokers over the proper interpretation of that section of the new State banking law which has to do with private bankers. Few, if any, of the firms which carry on a brokerage business in securities are known to have applied for a license such as is required of private banking houses, and because of the fact that many of them have been accustomed to carrying accounts which were primarily deposit and not trading accounts the situation presents some puzzling conditions.

One section of the law requires that a firm which "receives money for safe keeping or for transmission to others or for any other purpose in such sums that the average of the separate deposits is less than $500, if such banker is engaged in business in a city of the first class having a population of over 1,000,000," is to be considered a private banking house. The exception is made of "dividend checks, coupons, or other small collection items collected by such private banker for customers in the ordinary course of business."

Since the law went into effect the State Banking Department and its attorneys have been deluged with requests for a ruling as to what is to be included in "other small collection items." So far the Banking Department has been able to do nothing more than keep record of the communications sent in, prepare a list of the queries, and submit them to the Attorney General of the State. A full interpretation of the section dealing with private bankers is expected within a few days.

Brokers are following out several methods of complying with the letter of the statute and are finding much difficulty. A number of firms have sent out notices to customers, making no exception between those who keep banking and others who maintain trading accounts, which states that deposits of less than $500 at any one time will no longer be received. Depositors will be permitted to leave their balances and check them out at will, but this one-sided method will tend gradually to cut down the deposits of those who do not deal in securities, and the brokers see in prospect a flow from them of deposits which heretofore have been considered desirable.

Other houses contend that the collection of money on checks presented by depositors may be considered lawful under the provision covering "other small collection items," and they are conducting their general banking affairs as before the law was signed by Gov. Glynn while awaiting a ruling by the Attorney General. Some firms have stopped paying interest on sums under $500, and consider that the spirit of the law is being fulfilled. Many have made no alteration of former methods at all, and are giving plenty of work to the Banking Department by filing requests for some definite word on the law's application.

Those brokers who have built up a clientele among the class of customers who like to keep money handy in a brokerage office for an advantageous operation in stocks when the market takes a sudden shift have a problem of their own. These accounts are idle the greater part of the year, but when their owners take an interest in the market there is generally good commissions for the broker handling the business. If the rigid letter of the law is carried out by the brokers, and deposits of less than $500 refused, it stands to reason, in the brokers' opinion, that the accounts will be taken elsewhere.

Clerks in brokerage offices are affected in cases where employers have encouraged deposits of part of the weekly pay check. Numerous accounts of this sort already have been taken to savings banks and trust companies. The brokers were accustomed to pay from 4 to 6 per cent. on the funds of their employes left with them, and the transfer brings a reduction of the return made on the money.

TO PROTECT FRISCO BONDS.

Deposit Called For in Expectation of a Default in Interest.

Expectation of a default in the interest due July 1 on the 4 per cent. refunding mortgage bonds of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad has led the Protective Committee to call for the immediate deposit of the bonds. Receivers say that the road's earnings have been in excess of the amount needed to pay the interest, as well as rentals on leased property, but they have applied them to the physical rehabilitation of the property and payment of car trusts.

Deposits are to be made with the Central Trust Company in New York, the Mississippi Valley Trust Company at St. Louis, the Berliner Handelsgesellschaft in Berlin, and the Associatie Cassa in Amsterdam. There is a period of grace of three months, after which the principal may be declared due.

The committee is composed of Frederick Strauss of J. & W. Seligman & Co., Chairman; J. N. Wallace, President of the Central Trust Company; Alexander J. Hemphill, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Edwin G. Merrill, President of the Union Trust Company; Harry Bronner of Hallgarten & Co.; C. W. Cox of Robert Winthrop & Co., and Breckinridge Jones, President of the Mississippi Valley Trust Company of St. Louis.

The committee says that the receivers are unamiously of the opinion that the refunding bonds are amply secured and adds that the members will neither adopt nor approve any plan of reorganization that, as a condition of participation therein, requires the expenses of the committee to be paid by an assessment upon the refunding bonds.

HARRIMAN MOVES UP IN U. P.

Eldest Son of Late Financier Made a Vice President of the Road.

William Averell Harriman, elder son of the late E. H. Harriman, has been elected a Vice President of the Union Pacific, succeeding W. V. S. Thorne. Mr. Thorne will go abroad shortly with his family for an extended vacation.

Mr. Thorne's title was Vice President and Director of Purchases. The latter office has been abolished, but the new Vice President will be at the head of the purchasing department. He is only about 23 years old, and has been out of Yale just a year.

Young Mr. Harriman was responsible for the introduction at New Haven of the English rowing system, which had a disastrous try-out on the Thames last year, but which, in a modified form, triumphed over Harvard a few days ago. He was elected a Director of the Union Pacific before graduation, succeeding Henry W. De Forest. He is also a Director in the Illinois Central, the Arden Farms Dairy Company, a hobby of his father's, and the Harriman National Bank. His mother is very largely interested in the bank and in the Union Pacific.

Mr. Harriman spent part of his college vacations working as chainman of a surveying gang, fireman on a locomotive, and clerk in the freight department of the Harriman roads.

Street Railroad Bonds Authorized.

The Broadway & Seventh Avenue Railroad Company got permission yesterday from the Public Service Commission to issue $500,000 in 5 per cent. bonds, to mature Dec. 1, 1943, the proceeds to be devoted solely to refunding outstanding bonds. Any surplus derived from their sale must remain in the treasury of the company until the commission issues a further order as to its disposition. The bonds to be retired were issued Dec. 22, 1893, under a second mortgage. The new bonds are not to be sold for less than their face value and accrued interest.

We summarize from a letter of Mr. F. A. Delano, President of the Company, the following features concerning the issue:

(1) A first lien through pledge of collateral on the recently acquired line of the Chicago & Wabash Valley Railway Company.

(2) A first lien on all equipment purchased with the proceeds of these bonds.

(3) A lien on all the lines of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville Railway, including 512 miles of road and valuable leasehold interests of the Company in terminal facilities in Chicago, Louisville and Indianapolis, and in the bridge over the Ohio River, subject only to the Refunding Mortgage, which is now closed.

(4) Surplus earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, after payment of all charges, amounted to $538,360, and for the last five years have averaged $604,913 per annum. Interest on the present issue of these bonds will amount to $75,000 a year.

(5) The road is controlled jointly by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company and the Southern Railway Company, which have pledged the stock owned by them to secure their Joint "Monon" Collateral Trust 4% Bonds.

Circular fully describing this issue and containing copy of a letter from the President of the Company will be furnished upon request

Having placed over $1,000,000 of these bonds, we offer the balance, subject to prior sale,

STATE INSURANCE ADVOCATE BAITED

Manager F. S. Baldwin Explains State Fund Plan to the Merchants' Association.

CRITICS FIND FLAWS IN IT

Say Catastrophe Might Exhaust Fund—Stock, Self and Mutual Insurance Forms Discussed.

The advantages and disadvantages of the four means of insurance under the workmen's compensation law, which takes effect on July 1, were elucidated and to some extent discussed at a hearing held yesterday by the Merchants' Association at its rooms in the Woolworth Building.

Edmund Dwight of the Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation of London gave the point of view of the stock companies; F. Spencer Baldwin argued in favor of the State Insurance Fund, of which he is the manager, and John L. Train of the Utica Mutual Insurance Company spoke for the mutuals. Self-insurance, which is permitted upon the authorization of the Workmen's Compensation Commission, was also touched on.

The discussion, which took the form of questions by the auditors and answers by the speakers, resolved itself largely into a baiting of Prof. Baldwin by representatives of stock companies. The interest of merchants and manufacturers in the new burden they will have to assume was shown by the size of the attendance, which crowded the meeting room and numbered about 250, including the stock insurance men and some lawyers.

After Mr. Baldwin had spoken for the State Insurance Fund questions came from all sides of the hall intended to bring out weak points in the State insurance scheme. So much confusion arose after he had answered a number that W. A. Marble, President of the association, shut off the questioners and introduced Mr. Train. After he had spoken the crowd went at Mr. Baldwin again. President Marble began asking each questioner whether he was an insurance agent or a merchant, and several subsided. He declared the meeting adjourned, however, while half a dozen were on their feet clamoring for recognition.

The Stock Company Argument.

Mr. Dwight, who spoke first, said that what the employers needed was protection. "The stock companies," he went on, "with their great capital and surplus, can give it to you; with their thorough organizations they can and will see that every obligation which you have is carried out. Their protection will be complete against your compensation liability or your common law liability for damages, and they can also care for your liability to the public.

"The State Fund can give you complete protection as to your compensation liability, but only as to that, and the insurer with the State Fund must take his own chances as to any common law liability or any liability to the public.

"The mutuals can give you protection, if they are fortunate enough to escape any of the perils which naturally surround this system of insurance, but I do not see how any man with a mutual policy can ever feel that there is not a sword hanging over his head.

"You will pay the same price for a stock company's policy as for a mutual company's policy, but having paid it to the stock company you know the worst as well as the best which can happen. You may or may not get a dividend from the mutual company; also you may or may not have to pay an assessment. The State Fund will charge you a little lower premium, and may or may not be able to pay a dividend. Personally, I believe that the additional protection which the stock company's policy will give far more than represents whatever difference of cost there may be."

Advantages of the State Fund.

"The great advantage of the State fund," said Mr. Baldwin, "and one that is not obtainable otherwise, is real insurance. The employer is relieved from all further liability. If he insures in stock or mutual companies his liability still holds. If anything happens to the insurance carrier, he is still liable.

"In the State Fund he also gets insurance at the lowest possible cost. The rates are 8 1-3 per cent. lower than those of the companies. He may get the insurance still lower, because it may be reduced by dividends, by which the final cost is determined. The actual cost is certain to be lower because there is no charge on account of administration or commissions to agents or for profits to stockholders.

"The cost of insurance is really a new tax levied by the State to meet the cost of compensation. Why shouldn't the employer pay it directly to the State, instead of through a company, with commissions, dividends, and expense of management added?

"It is often argued that the stock companies, old established concerns, can give superior service to the policy holders, but their opportunity to do so has been taken away and conferred on the Workmen's Compensation Commission, with which all claims must be filed, and by which all awards will be made. The service of making inspections in order to allow reductions for merit in particular plants will be the same, whichever form of insurance is taken, as the State fund will be a member of the Merit Rating Bureau. The State Fund will also provide a separate service of this kind.

Calls Self-Insurance No Insurance.

"With regard to the mutuals, I feel some doubt as to the adequacy of the security offered. There is a cost of management to be paid. The employer is not released from his liability, and is liable also for an assessment up to 100 per cent. of the premium. A trade group can be placed in the State fund on the basis of its own experience, which gives all the advantages of a mutual without its disadvantages. The employer has some prospect of dividends, as he has in a mutual, and the whole State fund stands behind the liability of the group.

"Self-insurance is not insurance at all. The employer literally carries his own risk. He may incur through a single accident a liability equal to the premiums for several years. A large employer can be placed separately in the State fund, as a group can, and have the benefit of his own accident experience. He has every advantage of self-insurance, receiving the benefit of any accident prevention measures he may have adopted."

One of the questions asked Mr. Baldwin was what would happen if the State fund experienced, before it had time to accumulate a reserve for catastrophe hazard, such a loss as to exhaust it. He replied that while the State had restricted its liability to the amount in the fund, if a catastrophe should occur early in its existence he had no doubt that the Legislature, having established it and invited employers to patronize it, would make an appropriation to cover such a deficit.

Mutual System Defended.

This was greeted with derisive laughter by the insurance men, and further questions brought out the point that inasmuch as the State fund insured only against liability for workmen's compensation and not against common law liability, it was possible that an employer so insured might still be sued by an injured employe who contended that he did not come within the scope of the employments listed, while the stock and mutual policies covered all such cases.

Mr. Baldwin said such an employer should insure his contingent liability, common law liability, and liability to the public in a company authorized to write such insurance in addition to his compensation insurance in the State fund.

Mr. Train, on behalf of the mutuals, emphasized the fact that they were managed by the employers who formed them. "In view of the possibility of its exhaustion," he said, "insurance in the State Fund is not complete, and there is some question whether it is insurance. The mutuals are not organized for profit but for the protection of their members. They pay no commissions for securing business, and in consequence the rates fixed by the Insurance Department, which are the same as for stock companies, are much higher than necessary, so that there is every reason to expect a reduction in the form of dividends.

"The only thing that would upset the average is a catastrophe, which is not taken care of by the State Fund. The mutuals have arranged a reinsurance agreement among themselves to cover the catastrophe hazard. The mutuals also can confine themselves to selected risks, while stock companies are largely in the hands of agents and brokers. A broker is likely to say that the company must carry a certain risk or he will place the rest of his business elsewhere. This advantage means lower cost in the mutuals. The State Fund can make no selection of risks, as it has to take any business that comes to it. As to self-insurance, the mutual is exactly the same thing except that the risk is widely distributed."

EXPORTS OF GOLD PRACTICALLY ENDED

West's Great Harvest Also Factor in Preventing Further Shipments, Mint Director Roberts Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Treasury officials regard the drain of gold to Europe as having come practically to an end. They think the payment of American railway bonds caused the outflow in the first place and not foreign distrust of American industries.

Visitors at the Treasury Department hear no other talk. Secretary McAdoo, United States Treasurer Burke, Controller of the Currency Williams, and Director of the Mint Roberts have all spoken within the last few days in the strongest terms of the healthy financial condition of the business of the country. The decline of the exchange rate has deprived the export of gold of profit, and it is now believed that heavy shipments will cease. The Treasury expects a further drop in the rate of exchange.

"The splendid harvest in the West," said Director of the Mint George E. Roberts today, "will be a powerful factor in preventing further shipments of gold to Europe. Exportation is bound to cease when the grain crop moves from this country to Europe. They have already begun to buy large amounts of American wheat, although the grain has not yet been harvested and the yield is not yet a matter of absolute certainty.

"But all our reports from the grain-producing regions are very promising, and if enough labor can be obtained to meet demands, there will be no question that the tide of trade will turn in our favor and the balance be a very large one.

"Finance bills are issued in New York in advance payment for grain bought at this time in advance of the harvest. They are virtually loans and will act as a check on the flow of gold abroad. It is also to be noted that the season for heavy imports into the United States has passed, and this will change the figures very decidedly. This, with the export of grain, will make a big showing for our foreign trade.

"There are now, I see, fifteen ships under charter in New York to carry grain cargoes over as soon as they can get them, and the grain exporters are seeking for more steamers to carry the large crops. These charters are for July and August sailings. This will accommodate a part of the early Southern harvest. The Western crop will go later. This means that the flow of gold will not only cease now, but the balance will continue in our favor for several months at least."

No more shipments of gold to the Sub-Treasury in New York are being made. The United States Treasurer, Mr. Burke, declined to say just how much gold had been moved to New York, but said the amount was enough to meet the demand. The Government now has on hand $1,097,786,869 of gold, and could meet any conceivable demand from any quarter, he said.

$10,000,000 GOLD ENGAGED.

Today's Steamers Will Take $6,500,000 in Bars to Europe.

European steamers sailing from this port today will take $6,500,000 in gold bars for Paris, the largest outflow for any single day since the movement started around May 1. In addition to this amount, which was removed from the Sub-Treasury before the close of business yesterday, $2,000,000 was engaged by Lazard Frères for shipment before the end of the week.

Of today's consignments Lazard Frères ship $2,500,000; Goldman, Sachs & Co., $2,000,000, and the National City Bank $2,000,000. All told, the week's engagements so far amount to $10,000,000, and will make a total of $80,000,000 in gold exported since Jan. 1.

First Mortgage Five Per Cent. Bonds.

The impending default in the payment of the July interest coupons of the FIRST MORTGAGE FIVE PER CENT. BONDS of the above Company renders it essential that the holders of these bonds shall unite for their mutual protection. To that end the undersigned have consented to serve as a Committee. A protective agreement is in course of preparation and will be ready for distribution in the near future, when copies may be obtained from the Depositary. Holders of bonds are requested to deposit the same at once with the Depositary, which will issue its temporary receipts therefor.

Any bondholder may secure detailed information regarding the situation from the members of the Protective Committee or from its Secretary.

FINANCIAL.

St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad Co.

To Holders of 4% Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds Due July 1, 1951:

The Receivers have now operated the property for over a year and no reorganization plan has as yet been agreed upon. They inform us that the earnings have been largely in excess of the amount needed to pay interest on the 4% Refunding Bonds and all charges prior thereto, including rentals on leased property, but that they have been applied to the physical rehabilitation of the property, the payment of car trusts and to other capital purposes. The Court objecting to the issue of further Receivers' certificates has denied the application to pay the July 1 interest, and the junior interests in the property, to whom has been offered the opportunity to pay such interest, have failed to provide the necessary money.

The undersigned Committee, which was formed early in June, 1913, and which has since kept in close touch with the Receivership and its affairs, has for over a year deemed it unnecessary to call for a deposit of bonds, but it is now of the opinion that the rights and interests of the bondholders can only be adequately safeguarded by an immediate deposit thereof. The period of grace in the Deed of Trust securing the Refunding Bonds is three months, after which the principal of the bonds may be declared due under the terms of the Trust.

Bonds may be deposited with the Depositaries named in the Deposit Agreement, viz., CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, 54 Wall Street, in the City of New York; MISSISSIPPI VALLEY TRUST COMPANY, in St. Louis, Missouri; BERLINER HANDELS-GESELLSCHAFT, in Berlin, Germany; and ASSOCIATIE CASSA, in Amsterdam, Holland. Bonds in coupon form must be accompanied by the coupon maturing July 1, 1914. Bonds in registered form and registered coupon bonds must be accompanied by transfer executed by the registered owner or his attorney duly authorized. Certificates of Deposit will be issued by the Depositaries for the bonds respectively deposited with them. In due course, application will be made for listing the certificates issued in New York on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Committee, in accordance with the provisions in that respect contained in the Deposit Agreement, has arranged to purchase the coupons and claims for registered bond interest due July 1, 1914, appertaining to the deposited Refunding Bonds, and Central Trust Company of New York, and Mississippi Valley Trust Company, Berliner Handels-Gesellschaft, Berlin, and Associatie Cassa, Amsterdam, on behalf of said Trust Company, will accordingly be prepared to pay depositors for their coupons upon depositors filing properly executed certificates in the form required by the United States Income Tax Law and the regulations of the Internal Revenue Department.

Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained from the Depositaries, or from the members or Secretary of the Committee. For further information application may be made to the Chairman or Secretary of the Committee.

The Receivers are unanimously of the opinion that the Refunding Bonds are amply secured, and in order that this security may remain unimpaired the Committee urges prompt action on the part of the bondholders. This Committee will neither adopt nor approve any plan of reorganization that, as a condition of participation therein, requires the expenses of the Committee to be paid by an assessment upon the Refunding Bonds.

In pursuance of an interlocutory judgment of partition and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, and bearing date the 2d day of June, 1914, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, on the 25th day of June, 1914, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the land and premises mentioned in said interlocutory judgment, and therein described as follows:

1st. All that certain piece or parcel of land, with the building thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, and bounded and containing as follows: Beginning at the southwest corner of Fourth Avenue and Eighteenth Street, and running thence southerly along said avenue forty-two (42) feet to land now or late of Philip Burrows; thence westerly, along the line of said Burrows' land and parallel to Eighteenth Street, seventy-eight (78) feet seven (7) inches to land now or late of Daniel Parrish; thence northerly, along the line of said Parrish's land and parallel to Fourth Avenue, forty-two (42) feet to the southerly line of Eighteenth Street; and thence easterly, along Eighteenth Street, seventy-eight (78) feet seven (7) inches to the point or place of beginning, and being the same premises conveyed to said Catherine Bradley by deed bearing date the 24 day of March, 1850, and recorded in the office of the Register of the City and County of New York in Liber 538 of Conveyances, Page 422, on the 29th day of April, 1850.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold. Its street number is 220 Fourth Avenue, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York:

Said premises will be sold subject to a lease to Knauth Bros. of a part of said premises for the term of one year from the 1st day of May, 1914.

2d. All that certain other lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the building thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in said Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the southeasterly side of Fourth Avenue, distant eighty (80) feet northeasterly from the corner formed by the intersection of the southeasterly side of Fourth Avenue with the northeasterly side of Seventeenth Street; running thence southeasterly, parallel with Seventeenth Street, and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred and fifteen (115) feet; thence northeasterly, parallel with Fourth Avenue, twenty-five (25) feet six (6) inches; thence northwesterly, again parallel with Seventeenth Street, and part of the way through another party wall, one hundred and fifteen (115) feet to the southeasterly side of Fourth Avenue; and thence southerly, along the said southeasterly side of Fourth Avenue, twenty-five (25) feet six (6) inches to the point or place of beginning.

Also one undivided one-quarter part of all that other piece of land bounded as follows: Southwesterly, in front, by Seventeenth Street; northeasterly, in the rear, by a line parallel with Seventeenth Street and distant therefrom one hundred and thirty-one (131) feet; northwesterly by a line parallel with Fourth Avenue on the southeasterly side thereof and distant therefrom one hundred and fifteen (115) feet; and southeasterly by a line parallel with Fourth Avenue and distant therefrom one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet, and being the same premises conveyed to said Catherine Bradley by deed bearing date the 10th day of April, 1867, and recorded in the office of the said Register in Liber 1,006 of Conveyances, Page 349, on the 10th day of April, 1867.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold. Its street number is 213 Fourth Avenue, formerly 56 Union Square, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York:

Said premises will be sold subject to a lease to Henry C. Krueger covering the whole of said premises, recorded in the office of said Register in Liber 100 of Conveyances, Section 3, Page 9, for the term ending October 1, 1920, with the privilege of renewal for a term of ten (10) years on an appraisal.

3d. All that certain other lot, piece, or parcel of land, with the building thereon erected, situate, lying, and being in said Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the westerly side of Broadway equidistant between Sixtieth and Sixty-first Streets; running thence northerly, along the westerly side of Broadway, twenty-eight (28) feet ten (10) inches and seven-eighths (⅞) of an inch; thence westerly, on a line parallel with Sixty-first Street, one hundred and twenty-five (125) feet four (4) inches and one-eighth (⅛) of an inch; thence southerly, on a line at right angles with said last-mentioned line, twenty-five (25) feet; thence easterly, on a line parallel with said equidistant between Sixtieth and Sixty-first Streets, one hundred and thirty-nine (139) feet ten (10) inches and one-half (½) of an inch to the westerly side of Broadway, to the point or place of beginning. Said lot of land being known as Lot Number Ninety (90) on a certain map of property belonging to John H. Talman, made by Richard Ammerman, City Surveyor, dated April, 1852, on file in the office of the Register of the City and County of New York, and being the same premises conveyed to Catherine Bradley by deed bearing date the 8th day of June, 1872, and recorded in said Register's office in Liber 1,224 of Conveyances, Page 365, on the 10th day of July, 1872.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—There has been a general rise in temperature east of the Rocky Mountains except in the extreme Northwest and warm weather prevailed during Tuesday over this entire area, except New England and New York, with temperatures ranging from 90 to 100 degrees, the latter temperature having occurred quite generally in Georgia.

In the extreme Northwest and the Far West temperatures are, as a rule, slightly below seasonal.

Local thunder showers occurred in the Middle Atlantic States, the Ohio Valley, the Lake region, and in scattered localities in the northwest. There were also showers on the North Pacific Coast, but no other precipitation of consequence.

Temperatures will be somewhat lower in the Northwest, and will be only moderately high from the Lake region eastward, but elsewhere east of the Rockies they will continue high during the next two days. West of the mountains and in the Northwest moderate temperatures will continue. There will be scattered thunder showers Wednesday in the Northwest, extending by night into the Upper Mississippi Valley and by Thursday into the Lake region.

There will also be showers Wednesday night or Thursday in the Central Mountain region, accompanied by somewhat lower temperatures. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair Wednesday and Thursday.

Winds for Wednesday and Thursday along the North Atlantic Coast will be gentle to moderate south; Middle Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate and mostly south; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate variable, mostly southeast and east off the Florida Coast.

FORECASTS TODAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair and warmer Wednesday and Thursday.

Southern New England—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday; warmer Thursday in interior; gentle to moderate south winds.

New Jersey—Unsettled Wednesday. Thursday, fair and warm.

Western New York—Fair, continued warm Wednesday; thunder showers and cooler at night or Thursday, except fair extreme south portion; moderate south winds.

Northern New England—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	64	64	4 P. M.	73	69
12 M.	75	73	11 P. M.	65	..

This thermometer is 414 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 68; for the corresponding date last year it was 70; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 70.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 65; at 8 P. M. it was 66. Maximum temperature, 75 degrees at 1:30 P. M.; minimum, 62 degrees at 12:01 A. M. Humidity, 90 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 89 per cent. at 8 P. M.

The barometer at 8 A. M. yesterday registered 29.99 inches; at 8 P. M. it stood at 29.93 inches.

Best Business Office at Reasonable Rents.

Rents in the Times Building are reasonable. Nowhere else can money buy so many of the advantages which attach to an ideal location, convenient, comfortable offices, and the prestige of a famous address. An office in the Times Building is a desirable investment.—Adv.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Blackstone Hotel in Fifty-eighth Street Sold and Leased in $1,650,000 Deal—Builder Buys West End Avenue Corner—Auction of Broadway Property Opposite Van Cortlandt Park Brings $220,750.

Following the $6,000,000 deal of the Broadway block front, including the Herald Square Theatre, on the preceding day, the realty market yesterday continued in active form. The west side furnished a good transaction in the purchase of a West End Avenue corner for high-class improvement, and the auction of the upper Broadway lots opposite Van Cortlandt Park drew a large crowd to the Vesey Street Salesroom.

A deal of more than ordinary interest was made in East Fifty-eighth Street, near Madison Avenue, in the sale of a newly completed twelve-story hotel by the Akron Building Company, composed of the operators, L. S. & A. M. Bing. It is known as the Hotel Blackstone and covers a plot 74.6 by 100.5 at 40 to 46 East Fifty-eighth Street, midway between Madison and Park Avenues.

The sellers completed the structure a short time ago, which contains 184 rooms and 80 baths. It has been purchased by the Swetland Realty Company, of which H. M. Swetland is President, and the new owners have leased the hotel on a long term to the 50 East Fifty-eighth Street Company, of which Eugene Van Schaick is President and A. H. Ivins Secretary.

Both the sale and the lease were closed through the brokerage firm of A. H. Ivins & Co. The structure is fully furnished and the sale included the furnishings. It was a cash transaction, the consideration being about $650,000, and with the aggregate lease the entire transaction represents about $1,650,000.

Dr. Paterno Buys West End Avenue Corner.

Dr. Charles V. Paterno added to his west side holdings yesterday by purchasing the large plot at the northeast corner of West End Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street, covered by nine dwellings fronting 133 on the street by 102.2 on the avenue. Its purchase gives Dr. Paterno control of the entire block front on the north side of Eighty-fourth Street, between Broadway and West End Avenue, the Broadway corner being about the same size, having been acquired earlier in the month from Max Marx.

The West End Avenue corner was bought from J. C. and Mortimer G. Mayer, who purchased it from David Bucklin a few days ago. They had obtained a building loan of $650,000, which has been turned over to Dr. Paterno. He will erect on the entire block front two thirteen-story apartment houses. Slawson & Hobbs were the brokers in the present deal, which was an all cash transaction.

After a long session in the Vesey Street Salesroom, continuing from noon to 8:30 o'clock last night, the auction sale of 197 lots of Broadway and adjacent property opposite Van Cortlandt Park conducted by Joseph P. Day and J. Clarence Davies, closed with every lot sold for a grand total of $220,750. The large room was well crowded all day, but the bidding, except for a few of the choicer Broadway lots, was not particularly spirited, and although Mr. Day, the auctioneer, pronounced the sale a success, it was the general opinion that the successful buyers had obtained bargains.

The highest price paid for a single lot was $8,100, paid by Madeline Sullivan for the plot 25 by 108 on the northwest corner of Broadway and 262d Street, directly opposite Van Cortlandt Park. The adjoining lot of the same width went for $4,500, and the next two adjoining for $3,100 each. The lot on the opposite southwest corner, 25.5 by 75, went for $5,300 to Maria Martin, and she purchased the adjoining one for $3,500. The inside Broadway lots ranged all the way from $2,000 to $3,100 apiece.

A corner lot on the southeast corner of Fieldston Road and 262d Street brought $1,350, and the lot on the northwest corner of the same street and Spencer Avenue went for $1,625. Among the buyers were John E. Schmitz, G. H. Lewis, David L. Quaid, Adolph Korn, Mrs. Mary T. Loth, H. M. Zuckert, Ronald Macdonald, Edward J. Grant, and W. F. Heidman.

The Private Dwelling Market.

E. W. Humphreys has sold to a client of William B. May & Co. for investment 32 East Thirty-eighth Street, a five-story American basement dwelling on a lot 18.9 by 98.9. The dwelling was rebuilt about three years ago by Mr. Humphreys, who held the property at about $90,000.

Edwin A. Hawley has sold to Mme. Adeine Doushee the four-story dwelling 34 East Fifty-sixth Street, on a lot 25 by 100.5. The property will be used for business purposes.

Jessica A. Smith has purchased from May Irwin 16 West Sixty-eighth Street, a five-story American basement house on a lot 18 by 100.5. In part payment the buyer gave 265 West Fifty-second Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 18 by 100.5. L. J. Phillips & Co. and Rich & Hill were the brokers in the transaction.

Deal on West Twenty-eighth Street.

John Palmer has sold through Ames & Co. 108 West Twenty-eighth Street, a four-story building on plot 22.6 by 100, located 75 feet west of Sixth Avenue. The buyers contemplate erecting a new building for their own occupancy. Mandelbaum & Levine are erecting a new building on the Sixth Avenue corner immediately adjoining this property.

Tenement Sales.

Hulbert Peck & Sons have sold the three tenements 450, 452, and 454 West Thirty-first Street, to the Castle Realty Company for investment.

L. M. Mosauer & Co. sold for Abraham Gussow, 10 East 116th Street, a five-story flat, with stores and basement stores, on a plot 25 by 100. The property has been held at $35,000. Max Leserman, the buyer, owns the similar adjoining property at 12 East 116th Street.

A Recent Buyer.

F. Monroe Dyer is the buyer of the Lavalette, a six-story apartment house, 110 by 134, at the northeast corner of Nagle Avenue and Arden Street, sold last week by the Charles Hensle Construction Company. In part payment the buyer gives 304 acres and sixteen buildings, the Rockland Park Farm, between Blauvelt and Nyack, N. Y. The exchange was negotiated by Frederick Zittel & Sons and W. B. Young.

Fourth National Bank Plot Transfer.

The Fourth National Bank, which recently consolidated with the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, transferred its property yesterday to the latter bank. The Fourth National Bank covers the block front on Nassau Street, east side, 149.8 by 73.2 on Cedar Street and 93.1 on Pine Street. The Mechanics and Metals Bank will move to the building from its old quarters at 50 Wall Street.

New Harlem Theatre Project.

A new theatre will probably be erected in West 125th Street in the near future, as the result of a reported lease by the Higgins estate to a theatrical syndicate, of the property at 312 to 322 West 125th Street, running through the block to 321 to 331 West 124th Street. The frontage is 100 feet on each street by 201 feet deep. The plot being 150 feet west of Eighth Avenue.

Bronx Sales.

The Podgur Realty Company has sold the two five-story apartments at 948 and 950 Fox Street, on plot 40 by 112, to an investor. Philip Pollak was the broker.

Richard Dickson has sold for Adalena Bachman 3,482 Park Avenue, a two-story frame building on a lot 50 by 150. Also for Hieronymus Bruenich a three-family dwelling on a plot 18.9 by 140 at 1,461 Washington Avenue.

Joseph A. Kehoe sold for Grossman & Ball six lots, 150 by 134.6, on the west side of University Avenue, about 150 feet south of Undercliffe Place, to Thomas Kane, for improvement.

Brooklyn.

The McInerney Klinck Realty Company has sold the one-family brick building located at the southwest corner of Vanderveer Place and East Twenty-third Street on a plot 20 by 100 feet, with garage privilege, for the Goell Construction Company, to Herman Lullmann.

Otto Singer has sold the following one-family dwellings: 1,756 West Tenth Street to Ferdinand Winkelvoss, 1,718 West Tenth Street to Clarence A. Wedel, 1,742 West Tenth Street to Henry Bergman, 1,794 West Ninth Street to Charles Pack, 1,764 West Seventh Street to Wesley Black, 1,737 West Eighth Street to Genevieve Macdonald, and 1,745 West Eighth Street to Herman Van Rooyen.

Tutino & Cerny have sold for Louis and Harry Simon to a client for investment, the two-story and basement brick two-family dwelling on a plot 20 by 100 and known as 5,103 Sixth Avenue.

$48,000 Hempstead Deal.

Mark C. Meagher has sold to Copeland Kell twenty-two acres on the Hempstead Turnpike, adjoining property of the Garden City Company, for $48,000. This property is to be developed in quarter-acre plots for high-class residences. It has a large frontage on the Hempstead Turnpike. A. K. Day negotiated the sale.

Builder Buys Lots at Woodside.

Joseph F. Negreen of Manhattan has purchased from the estate of T. Hampe eighteen lots at Woodside, covering the entire frontage on Charlotte Avenue, running from Sixth to Seventh Streets. The property will be improved at once with two-family houses.

Big Increase in Leasehold Values.

Walter B. Parsons has leased for the heirs of the Henrietta Martin estate to George W. Loft for a term of twenty-one years at a net rental of $15,000 a year, 29 Cortlandt Street, at the southwest corner of Church Street, a five-story store and office building, on lot 24.5 by 121.10 by irregular.

The southerly end of the lot is shut off from Church Street by a small strip of land covered with a one-story frame building owned by Congressman Jefferson M. Levy.

The lease just written is an increase of 66 2-3 per cent. over the lease held by the Babcock & Wilcox Company for $9,000, and which does not expire until May 1, 1918, and almost 50 per cent. over a sub-lease of the property by Babcock & Wilcox Company to Mr. Loft, also expiring May 1, 1918.

The new lease goes into effect Sept. 1 of this year, and a new agreement between the Babcock & Wilcox Company continues the provisions of the old sub-lease with its profit so that for nearly four years there are practically two leases of the property to Loft.

The advance in rental so long before the end of the original term is to obviate the necessity of building a modern fire-proof office building called for in the old lease to secure a renewal, and also because the Martin estate denied that the original tenants still had the right to rebuild and the subject of renewal had been only partly threshed out some years ago when it was carried to the Court of Appeals.

Commercial Leases.

William A. White & Sons have leased the entire building at 520 Washington Street, running through to 313 West Street, to Edward Pritchard; also the entire building at 34 Moore Street to the Fruit Delivery Surveyors.

John J. Clancy & Co. have leased for the estate of J. J. Reilly, the five-story building at 153-155 West Fifty-fourth Street, plot 50 by 100. The building will be altered into a garage at a cost of $35,000 for the S. & S. Garage Company, Incorporated. The rent aggregates over $100,000. The owners were represented by B. J. Greenthal.

P. S. Ritter has leased for Mrs. Annie Annable the block front on Webster Avenue, 205 feet and running 185 feet back on both Seventh and Eighth Avenues, Long Island City, to the Kazan Carpet Company. The plot will be improved with a two-story building, containing about 60,000 square feet, to be used for the manufacture and renovating of rugs. The lease is for a long term of years at an aggregate rental of $200,000. M. & L. Hess and J. A. Harrington were associated as brokers in the deal.

Sidney L. Warsawer has leased for a term of years for M. Dunseith the store in the building now being altered for business purposes at 356 West Forty-second Street, to Louis Group, a restaurateur.

Wolfsohn & August have leased for the Kellwood Realty Company (James Meehan, President) a large double store at 1,025 and 1,027 East 163d Street for a long term of years, to Hyman Beinfield.

Private Dwellings Leased.

Burton Thompson has leased for the season the Craig Colgate residence at Locust Valley to J. Hayne Bonnell; also that of Dr. Samuel McCullogh, at Mill Neck, to James Imbrie.

Shaw & Co. have leased the following dwellings: 223 West 131st Street, for Electa A. Holmes to Randolph Smiley; 25 West 113th Street, for Sarah M. Chapman to Morris Besser, and 1,939 Madison Avenue, for the Schulte Realty Co. to Willis T. Mead.

Property Owners' Meetings.

The West Side Taxpayers' Association has called a special meeting for Thursday evening, June 25, at Heinebund Hall, 267 West Thirty-fourth Street, to decide what action the association will take on the question of limiting the height of buildings. Speakers well versed in the subject, and representing both sides, will address the members.

A meeting of the Harlem Property Owners' Association has been called for Thursday evening, June 25, at 147 East 125th Street.

Real Estate Note.

Today at noon, at the Exchange Salesroom, Vesey Street, the M. Morgenthau, Jr., Company will sell at public auction the J. Scott McComb estate, known as the Rowsley House, and comprising ten acres of land overlooking the Hudson River at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.

The New York Title Insurance Company has recently loaned $75,000 on the southeast corner of 149th Street and Riverside Drive, $20,000 on 57 West Sixty-eighth Street, $22,000 on 351 West Fifty-seventh Street, $16,000 on 130 Front Street, $16,000 on 516-520 West 157th Street, and $30,000 on 133-135 Essex Street.

STOLEN!!

That is a common remark often heard after an auction sale these days, particularly where it is an ABSOLUTE PARTITION SALE by order of the Surpreme Court, where infants are involved and most or all of the heirs not in a position to protect their interests. In fact, their main participation being represented by their share in the 70% mortgage left back on the property.

Tomorrow

At the Hennessy Estate Supreme Court Partition Sale there are four plots involved—two of them absolutely good investments—one other a good investment maker after some alterations—and the fourth a building speculative investment pure and simple.

THE FIRST, 213 Fourth Avenue, is a 25-foot plot, adjoining the Germania Life Insurance Company's Building, the corner of 17th Street. A German saloon tenant is paying from $5,500 to $8,000 a year net for the next six years, with the privilege of renewing for ten years more at $8,000 a year net. It has been reliably stated that this tenant has spent $20,000 of his own money improving the premises. It is assessed by the City of New York for $125,000, BUT IT WILL GO ABSOLUTELY TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER — REGARDLESS OF PRICE — TOMORROW, THURSDAY, AT 12 O'CLOCK NOON.

THE SECOND, 1,849 Broadway, adjoining the corner of 61st Street, has a lease of $7,500 net per annum, two years to run, with a privilege of renewing at $9,500 per year net for 11 years. An offer has been made for a ten year lease by one of the prominent restaurants that has branches around town. Assessed by the City of New York for $130,000, IT WILL GO ABSOLUTELY TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER—REGARDLESS OF PRICE—TOMORROW, THURSDAY, AT 12 O'CLOCK NOON.

THE THIRD, 220 Fourth Avenue, known as the Bradley Building (the late Mrs. Hennessy was a Bradley), is practically vacant, but half the property owners of New York have known it from having to go there in years gone by with their Tenement House Department and Building Department orders, as these Departments were until recently tenants in this building. For a cost of $20,000 in repairs and including the taking out of the old hydraulic elevator system and putting in an up-to-date Edison current electric elevator, there is a conservative possibility of 8% net on your money, besides owning a subway corner building. Assessed by the City of New York for $285,000, BUT IT WILL GO ABSOLUTELY TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER—REGARDLESS OF PRICE—TOMORROW, THURSDAY, AT 12 O'CLOCK NOON.

THE FOURTH is the plot, southeast corner of 78th Street and Madison Avenue (including one small parcel owned by another branch of the Hennessy Estate), making a 102.2x100 ft. plot. It has old-fashioned, four-story brown stone buildings on it, possession October 1st, 1914, and would interest a building operator or speculative investor. Assessed by the City of New York for $252,000, IT WILL GO ABSOLUTELY TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER—REGARDLESS OF PRICE—TOMORROW, THURSDAY, AT 12 O'CLOCK NOON.

Now the Question Is

with all this talk about hard times almost over, it being now only a question of days when the rate decision will be out, ARE THERE IN THIS LARGE CITY OF NEW YORK A FEW CONSERVATIVE BUYERS who, before the noon hour passes tomorrow, will have taken the time to investigate these statements and will have at least one of these auction contracts in HIS pocket, feeling that he has made a conservative investment—that although shrewd operators may say HE STOLE IT—HE GOT IT SO CHEAP—the Supreme Court of this State is giving it to him at his own price—and now for a short pull for the profits or a long hold as a good security-box kind of Real Estate investment.

That Is the Question

Sale takes place at 14 Vesey Street.

70% may remain on mortgage for 3 years at 5%.

CITES THE CASE OF BOLIVAR

Philadelphia Kept Him in Chains for 20 Years—Nevertheless S. P. C. A. May Take Action.

Gunda up at the Bronx Zoo, the biggest elephant in captivity, doesn't know all that is being done for him. One year ago M. A. Lord of 601 West 168th Street wrote to Col. Arthur Wagstaff of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, asking:

"Is it a necessary cruelty to keep Gunda chained in his cage by two legs?"

Col. Wagstaff had representatives of the animal society investigate and confirm Mr. Lord's report of Gunda's situation and then on June 27, 1913, wrote to Dr. William T. Hornaday, saying:

"If the elephant is vicious and dangerous, as alleged, and it is necessary to keep it in chains, what justification can there be for exhibiting it, and is there any reason why it should not be destroyed and its sufferings ended?

"We notice that there are other fine, healthy, tractable specimens in the park, so that amusement and instruction of the public will not suffer by the elimination of the elephant in question, but, on the contrary, such action would remove an exhibit that cannot fail to leave a bad impression on the youthful mind.

"It is perhaps inevitable that animals kept in zoological parks must suffer from the restraint of the most liberal arrangements that can be made for them. If they are to be kept in confinement at all, it is hardly possible for the most humane management to protect them from some hardship. But unless they can be effectively saved from positive suffering, their captivity cannot be morally justified."

May Act at Next Meeting.

Dr. Hornaday came back with an aggressive reply, and a committee was appointed by the S. P. C. A. to take the matter under advisement. A reporter for THE TIMES called at the society's headquarters yesterday and asked what the committee had decided. He was told that its report would be made at the next meeting. That meeting will occur about the middle of July.

But Gunda doesn't know what is on foot. He knows what is on his legs right enough—two stout chains, and they have been there for two years. The other elephants have the liberty of their cages, but he can move only two feet in any direction. Of all the elephants in the Zoo Gunda is the centre of attention. Crowds stand fascinated watching his huge bulk swaying back and forth as though he were making ready to tear himself loose from the steel chains that tether him to the concrete floor.

William K. Horton, manager for the S. P. C. A., does not consider this an edifying or instructive spectacle for the youthful mind. "It is brutalizing," he said yesterday. "If Gunda is so dangerous that he cannot be allowed to go unchained it would be better to kill him. Dr. Hornaday says Gunda is not suffering from his confinement and has not given the slightest sign of suffering. I differ with him. I cannot believe it possible that the animal can be bound by two chains day and night and not suffer. It is no wonder to me that he shows a murderous disposition."

Mr. Horton considers the suggestion that a concrete arena or pit be provided for Gunda a good one. "If he is as indispensable to the Zoological Park as Dr. Hornaday feels it seems to me that the expense would be amply justified," he said.

Dr. Hornaday's View of the Case.

Dr. Hornaday's letter to Col. Wagstaff, which gave the animal society pause, reads:

New York Zoological Park, under Management of the New York Zoological Society.
New York, June 28, 1913.

Col. Alfred Wagstaff, President of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Twenty-sixth Street and Madison Avenue, New York City.

Dear Sir: I have before me your letter, inclosing a copy of a letter you have received from Mr. M. A. Lord of 601 West 168th Street.

In reply I beg to state that in my judgment both you and Mr. Lord have based your conclusions regarding our large male Indian elephant on erroneous premises. I do not yield to you, to Mr. Lord, or to any one else, any precedence in desire to prevent cruelty to animals. The fact that we have established here the most humane zoological park establishment on earth, in which the avoidance of cruelty to animals has from the start been the dominant desire, seems to have escaped your attention. At least, no public notice ever has been taken of the Zoological Society's efforts, of my efforts, in that direction. On the contrary, we are frequently hounded by persons who attack our management through your society. The present instance is merely the latest case in point.

Mr. Lord has not established the fact that the Indian elephant is "suffering" in any way whatsoever, or that he is "unhappy," or that any cruelty is being practiced upon him. At the same time, a more intemperate accuser a short time ago charged us with "inflicting inhuman torture upon that animal."

For many years elephants were kept in the Central Park Zoo in apartments smaller than that in which Gunda is confined, and without any yard connections whatever, and this seemed to be regarded as admissible. The only difference between that arrangement and the present condition of our male Indian elephant is that the latter is unable to take a few steps that are involved in turning around in his apartment. The animal is well fed, well watered, well cleaned, has better air than most of the people who live in New York City, and, what is more, he is not annoyed in any way.

It is quite true that he is deprived of his liberty; but so are many human beings who are murderously inclined, and whose freedom is dangerous to the public. If you hold to the view that all persons and wild animals who require close confinement should be killed, that is an entirely proper subject for discussion, on its merits; and I will say, in advance, that I do not share that view.

Bolivar Twenty Years in Chains.

It is no fault of ours that Gunda is so mean and so murderous that he cannot be allowed the same freedom that we permit the other elephants of the Park to enjoy. It is a common occurrence for large male elephants to become so domineering and dangerous as to require chains. In the Philadelphia Zoological Gardens the large African elephant named Bolivar was kept chained in his stall, even more closely than Gunda is, for twenty years; and apparently the people of Philadelphia did not regard it as being so cruel as to require the death of the animal to end it. The animal died a natural death.

In conclusion, I wish to repeat that Gunda is not "suffering" from his confinement, and has not given the slightest sign of any suffering. The dominant idea in his mind is to catch his keepers at a disadvantage and kill them! The Zoological Society feels that it is in duty bound to exhibit a full grown male Indian elephant. If the criminals or the insane people of this State are as comfortably kept as Gunda is kept here then they are indeed fortunate. The elephant's savage temper and murderous disposition render it necessary to deprive him of the freedom of his yard, and we do not propose that his mean disposition shall penalize the Zoological Society to the extent of causing it to destroy an animal that is very valuable for exhibition.

W. T. HORNADAY, Director.

Mr. Lord, who first stirred the S. P. C. A. to action, or at least to a contemplation of Gunda, was glad to learn that its committee would be ready to report in July.

"It hardly seems fair to Gunda to condemn him either to be shot or to be chained down to one spot for the rest of his life. Why can't they build a small concrete arena for him?"

The suggestion was carried to Col. Oliver H. Payne, who presented the big elephant to the Zoo in 1904, but the Colonel would not see the reporter. A servant at his home, 852 Fifth Av., said that Col. Payne wouldn't see even the President of the United States. Perhaps an ex-President would not be barred, and possibly Gunda's only chance of getting help from that quarter rests with that other big game enthusiast, the Colonel of Oyster Bay.

FIND MORMONS A PROBLEM.

Sunday School Convention Will Decide Their Right to Membership.

CHICAGO, June 23.—The fourteenth International Sunday School Convention opened here tonight with 4,000 delegates in attendance. When the Executive Committee met late this afternoon delegates from Missouri demanded that the membership eligibility or ineligibility of the reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints be settled. Attempts to table the subject failed, and it was turned over to a special committee, which will report tomorrow.

The Rev. George R. Merrill of Minneapolis read the communication from the Missouri churches. It asked if the reorganized church was an evangelical denomination, and as such was entitled to issue to Sunday school teachers the joint certification of the church and the International Sunday School Association. Mr. Merrill read a report signed by Shailer Mathews on behalf of a committee composed of himself, the Rev. John Balcom Shaw of Los Angeles, and the Rev. Charles B. Mitchell of Chicago. The report said that the subject had been investigated and that the Mormon Church was ineligible because it placed the Book of Mormon on a par with the Bible.

"This question ought to be settled here and now," said James J. Park, a member from Missouri. "If the Mormon Church deserves admission let us admit it. Let me say, however, that the Christian Science churches already are outside clamoring for recognition, and other sects will follow."

"If the case is clear that the reorganized Church of Latter Day Saints does not teach what we profess, why should we dodge the issue?" asked the Rev. William N. Dresel of Evansville, Ind. "No church that places the Book of Mormon on an equality with the Bible is evangelical."

Finally the question was referred to a special committee.

CHURCH BARS CIGARETTES.

Baptists, Convention Hears, Now Form a Billion Dollar Denomination.

BOSTON, June 23.—Resolutions favoring disarmament and compulsory arbitration, and opposing the liquor traffic and sectarianism in State affairs, were adopted at the Northern Baptist Convention today. The delegates also went on record as favoring the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of cigarettes.

In the thirty-three States represented in the convention there are 12,804 churches, according to a report presented by the Rev. C. A. Wooddy of Portland, Ore. These churches the report says, have 1,306,154 members, an increase of 61,991 during the year.

The Baptist denomination was characterized as a "billion dollar business organization," in another committee report. This report said that Baptist church property was valued at $167,000,000. More than $20,000,000 of annual current expense represented the income on a capital of more than $400,000,000. Educational institutions represented an investment of $200,000,000 and $165,000,000 represented the money expended in benevolencies and mission work.

"Other items of charity," said the report, "bring the total well over $1,000,000,000, representing an expenditure of some $50,000,000 a year."

The convention adopted a recommendation that $110,000 be raised for the Judson Memorial Church, New York, erected in memory of Adoniram Judson, the pioneer missionary of the denomination.

ARMY WORM IN MONMOUTH.

Threatens Wheat and Then Potato Crop on the March.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 23.—The army worm, or leucania unipuncta, has invaded Monmouth County farms in the Shark River district in such numbers as to threaten the timothy and wheat crops and after that the great potato crop. Farmers have called upon State Farm Demonstrator Duryea, of the New Jersey Experimental Station, for aid, but the pest is so firmly established that little hope for its extermination before the grain crop is lost is held out.

The presence of the worm was first discovered when farmers began mowing their early crops of timothy. Ditching has been tried and last night kerosene spraying in the trenches seemed to have some effect. Charles White, a Bailey's Corner farmer, declared that when he was mowing yesterday the worms were crushed on the wheels of his mower to such a depth that he was obliged frequently to stop and scrape the wheels.

Mr. Duryea says the worms will advance on potato plants and vegetables when the grain is devastated. At Bailey's Corner twenty acres were eaten over in a single night. The pest is reported as far west as East Freehold, which is the outpost of one of the greatest potato sections in the country.

This is the first visit of the army worm to Monmouth County. The worm is a dull brown in color, with tiny white spots on the forewings. It is about three-quarters of an inch long with a wing spread of about two inches.

ALONG WASHINGTON'S ROUTE

Sons of Revolution Motoring from Philadelphia to Cambridge.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 23.—Gov. Fielder at the State House this afternoon welcomed into New Jersey members of the National Society Sons of the American Revolution, who are making a pilgrimage in automobiles from Philadelphia to Cambridge over the route taken by Gen. Washington 139 years ago. There were more than fifty persons in the party.

Adjt. Gen. Wilbur F. Sadler addressed the travelers in the Assembly Chamber on "The Two Battles of Trenton." Then the visitors had luncheon at the barracks where the British troops were housed.

Later the party motored to Princeton, where wreaths were placed on the graves of Richard Stockton and John Witherspoon, signers of the Declaration of Independence. From Princeton they went to Rocky Hill, where Washington had his headquarters, and came back to this city for the night.

RACING CAR IN DITCH.

Skids at 95 Miles an Hour—Two Buffalonians Injured.

BUFFALO, June 23.—While traveling at ninety-five miles an hour in a racing automobile Roy C. Bauer, a lawyer, and Robert M. Smith, a newspaper man, were seriously injured today when the machine skidded on "Death Curve" on the Williamsville Road, near the city line, and overturned in a ditch. Bauer, who was driving, was pinned at the wheel, and Smith was buried under the car.

Bauer had entered his car in the 300-mile sweepstake at Sioux City, Iowa, July 4.

Trinity Alumni Approve Plan to Benefit Their Alma Mater.

HARTFORD, Conn., June 23.—The Trinity College Alumni Association today adopted a resolution approving a plan for alumni of the college to have their lives insured for the benefit of the institution, the amount of the policy to be paid at their death. The scheme was presented by members of the Class of '84 and indorsed by '94.

Robert S. Schutz of this city was chosen President of the association.

JOINT BIVOUAC OF PEACE.

American and British Troops Will Meet at St. Albans Campfire.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., June 23.—A bivouac of United States and Canadian troops about a common campfire will be a feature of the celebration here next month of the one-hundredth anniversary of peace between the English-speaking peoples. A camp of Canadian and American troops will be established on July 2, and on July 4 all of the soldiers will participate in a parade.

LEPROSY INCREASES; NEEDS U. S. CONTROL

Dr. W. C. Rucker Would Spend $500,000 for a Federal Leprosarium.

GOLD MEDAL FOR GORGAS

American Medical Association in Convention Honors ex-President and Listens to Papers.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 23.—Dr. W. C. Rucker, Assistant Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service, whose achievement in averting a threatened country-wide invasion of the United States by bubonic plague when it reached California from the Far East, by exterminating the flea-bearing rats which carried the infection, gained for him the commendation of medical men throughout the world, called to the attention of the American Medical Association, which formally convened here today, the fact that leprosy is spreading in this country and that it must be fearlessly attacked before it will recede.

He spoke before the section on dermatology. Dr. Rucker urged the necessity for a Federal Leprosarium, and read a draft of a tentative bill for the establishment of such a hospital. He declared that lepers are subjected to inhuman treatment in the United States although the disease is only mildly contagious, on account of the susceptibility of the general public to lepraphobia, a state of mind that induces a feeling of horror at the thought of leprosy prevailing in the country.

Dr. Victor C. Vaughn of Ann Arbor, Mich., the newly elected President of the association, told the 2,000 members assembled at the formal opening in the Apollo Theatre this morning, that in the last hundred years preventive medicine had increased the average duration of life fifteen years, but that this feat could be duplicated in the next twenty years if the facts now in possession of the medical profession were effectively employed.

Dr. William C. Gorgas, Surgeon General of the United States Army, and a former President of the American Medical Association, surrounded by other former Presidents, received a gold medal in recognition of his notable services as Chief Medical Officer of the Panama Canal Zone. It was given by the association and presented by Dr. John A. Witherspoon of Nashville, Tenn., the retiring President.

Dr. Gorgas was greeted with a tremendous ovation. He replied, in the modest fashion which is one of his characteristics, that he received the medal not so much on his own account as on behalf of three or four hundred young American doctors who had carried on the work of sanitation in Panama under his direction.

In the course of his paper as part of a symposium on leprosy, Dr. Rucker said:

"We suspect that rodents play a rôle in spreading the disease, but we have no wholly successful method of treatment and no way of making an early diagnosis. Segregation and personal cleanliness are the only weapons now available against it. There are known foci of leprosy in the United States, and it is slowly but surely on the increase in this country, but there is no Federal control of the disease. It is only mildly contagious. There are in existence at present three State Leprosaria. Leprosy dies out in countries where those afflicted with it are segregated.

"The inhuman treatment to which lepers are subjected in this country is a disgrace. They are treated as though they were wild and dangerous animals. In order to get them out of a community they are hurried over the State line in the middle of the night. Their lot in this Christian country of ours is indeed sad and troubled. The Leprophobia of the general public is such that such bills as are prepared and introduced in legislative bodies never come to a vote. Each Legislature fears that some section of his State will be selected as the site of a leprosarium. If society is to be protected, however, lepers must be segregated. The facts which I have presented are all arguments in favor of the establishment of a Federal leprosarium."

Dr. Rucker read the clauses of a tentative bill which provides for the examination of persons suspected of being lepers by a commission, three members of which must be medical officers of the United States Public Health Service. The bill provides for an appropriation of $500,000 with which to build a Federal Leper Hospital on a site to be selected by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Dr. Rucker added that it seemed as if leprosy was one of the penalties of the war with Spain.

Dr. Vaughn's Presidential address was largely devoted to the history of the gradual reduction of disease by the growing increase of the application of the principles of preventive medicine.

"The claim has been advanced," he said, "that the infectious diseases have benefited the race by the destruction of the unfit. This idea I have combated most vigorously, since our study of typhoid fever in the army in 1898. My colleagues and I found that out of 9,481 soldiers who had previously been on the sick report, and could not be regarded as possessing standard health, 648, or 6.8 per cent., contracted typhoid fever; whereas out of 46,384 men who had no preceding illness, 7,197, or 15.3 per cent., developed typhoid fever. More than 90 per cent. of the men who developed typhoid had no preceding intestinal disorder. Contagion, like war, destroys the very flower of the race. This view is sustained by the historians of the pestilences of former times."

Dr. Isadore Dyer of New Orleans informed the section on dermatology that there are now nearly 500 cases of known leprosy in the United States. Dr. S. Adolphus Knopf, Professor of Phthisiotherapy in the New York Post-Graduate Medical School, read a paper on "Tuberculosis as a Cause and Result of Poverty." Dr. Herman Kuttner, who conducts a famous clinic at Breslau, Germany, read a paper on the surgery of brain tumors.

CITY WON'T PAY FOR CANARY

Owner, Asking Damages, Says Fumigation Killed Pet.

If you have a pet canary at the same time you have scarlet fever and the Board of Health fumigates your house, and in the process the canary dies, are you entitled to collect damages from the city? The Board of Health wrestled with the problem for several months, and then turned it over to the Finance Department. Yesterday Controller Prendergast gave his opinion that the city was not liable.

James Kenny of 1,335 Second Avenue had the canary, and one of his children had the scarlet fever. The Board of Health fumigated the house, and the canary succumbed with the germs. Mr. Kenny put in a claim to the Board of Health for $10. He said he bought the canary for $50 at a bird show in Madison Square Garden. Investigators said they discovered that the bird was purchased at a bird store and was not worth $10. Moreover, they said, they removed the canary from the room when it was fumigated.

Mr. Kenny said the canary was in the room all the time, and when he found it it was "all puffed up." It died the next day. When the Board of Health rejected his claim he went to the Finance Department. There were more investigations, and the Controller advised Mr. Kenny to sue the city.

Has Forgotten Who She Is.

A woman, 20 years old, about 5 feet 4 inches in height, dressed in a black skirt, white silk shirtwaist, and a black hat, and having dark brown hair, entered Bellevue Hospital last night and declared that she did not know her name, or where she lived. She told Dr. Klingon she believed that her mother was concerned about her absence, but could not tell her mother's name or where she lived. The woman was placed in a ward for observation.

R. J. HARTMAN FACES CHARGE OF PERJURY

POISON PEN CASE INVOLVED

Retired Head of Tyson & Co. Accused Attorney of Writing Anonymous Attack to Wife.

Richard J. Hartman, formerly President of the theatre ticket agency of Tyson & Co., 1,122 Broadway, was held in $2,500 bail by Magistrate Ten Eyck, in the Yorkville Court, yesterday, for further examination tomorrow on a charge of perjury. The complainant was Harold G. Aron, senior member of the law firm of Aron & Vanderveer, 50 Pine Street, who obtained a warrant for Mr. Hartman on June 11, and armed with it personally arrested him the same evening at Fort Lee Ferry.

The agency of which Mr. Hartman was then the head was held for the Grand Jury by Magistrate Deuel last January charged with grand larceny in the second degree as a corporation in connection with the hypothecation of $150,000 worth of season tickets for the Metropolitan Opera.

Mr. Aron testified that Mr. Hartman had made an affidavit in which the lawyer was accused of unprofessional conduct, and further of conspiring with F. C. Barton, a wealthy silk manufacturer, and A. W. Evans, both residents of Tenafly, N. J., where Mr. Hartman had a fine country estate, to injure Mr. Hartman.

Under cross-examination by William L. Marshall, counsel for Mr. Hartman, Mr. Aron disclosed that a part of the alleged conspiracy consisted of an anonymous letter, written to Mrs. Hartman, he said, by Mr. Barton, one of Mr. Aron's clients. The letter is said to have reflected on the character of Mr. Hartman, and it was closed with the suggestion that Mrs. Hartman consult Mr. Aron if she should decide that she needed legal advice.

Suspicion was directed to Mr. Aron as the author of the letter, he explained, and the missive furnished ground for Mr. Hartman to make a complaint to the Grievance Committee of the Bar Association, seeking the lawyer's disbarment. However, it is understood that the Bar Association has made a thorough examination and will exonerate Mr. Aron.

The lawyer testified that he had severely reproved Mr. Barton for using his name in the anonymous letter, as soon as he learned the latter was its author. It was not until recently that he found out who was the writer. Mr. Barton is one of the best-known and wealthiest men of Tenafly, and is prominent in the civic and religious work of the community.

According to Mr. Aron, the affidavit of Mr. Hartman further charged him with unprofessional conduct, in support of which it was asserted that Mr. Aron went to the New Jersey Bill Posting Company and persuaded it to retain him to collect a note of $366 made by the Dustray Company of New Jersey. The latter company was backed by Mr. Hartman until it went into the hands of a receiver, and finally was acquired by the Sanitary Products Company, in which Mr. Barton was largely interested. The interrelation of Mr. Barton's and Mr. Hartman's business interests apparently made the situation more involved.

When the New Jersey Bill Posting Company obtained the judgment against Mr. Hartman's company and Mr. Hartman failed to pay the $366 supplementary proceedings were started against him in the Second District Court of Englewood, N. J. Subsequently, in stating his reasons for failing to pay the judgment, he made the affidavit, accusing Mr. Aron and Mr. Barton of a conspiracy to cause him injury.

Since Mr. Hartman's withdrawal from Tyson & Co. and the reorganization of the ticket agency many persons have been wondering whether the charge of second degree grand larceny will be pressed against the old corporation of which he was President. When District Attorney Whitman was questioned about this matter last night, he said that the Grand Jury soon would have possession of all the evidence and that it might take action before the end of the Summer. Mr. Hartman procured the required $2,500 bail.

ALL HAD EYES ON MRS. RAPP

Apartment House Employes Tell of Getting Evidence for Husband.

Employes of Placid Hall, at 756 Riverside Drive, testified yesterday in the suit for divorce brought by Harry Rapp against his wife, Tille. I nalmost every divorce suit this Spring, apartment house employes have figured. In the Rapp case the Superintendent, the telephone operator, and the elevator boys carried away the honors.

Mr. Rapp accused his wife of being overfreindly with John De Long, a flaxen-haired young man, who walks with a limp. Mr. Rapp is a rich manufacturer of dress goods, with offices in this city and in Paris. Mrs. Rapp is a plump, bright-faced young woman, who denied her husband's accusations, and has replied to them with a countersuit for a separation, alleging cruelty. They have two children, Melville, 8 years old, and Rosa, 7.

William Marnack, Superintendent of the house, helped to get evidence against Mrs. Rapp, and so did his wife. Edith Murray, at the telephone switch, kept track of Mrs. Rapp's calls, and not one of them, they said, got any pay from Mr. Rapp.

Elmer Williams, a hallboy, said he knew about certain telephone calls because that was a part of his business. "I always listen on the wire," he said. "In this case, Mr. Rapp told me to watch his wife. So I watched her."

Mrs. Harnack testified that she had seen Mrs. Rapp and De Long holding hands at midnight on March 12. Asked by Mr. Rapp's counsel how she knew the man was not Mrs. Rapp's brother, she replied:

"I knew it was De Long, and if he will stand up and turn his back to me I will be able to recognize him as the same man."

There was a bustle on one of the rear rows of seats, and De Long stood up and turned his back. Justice Hendricks peered curiously at the man, and the witness said:

"That's him, all right. I can tell him by the way his hair is dressed."

The trial will go on today.

Just How We Do What You Told Us To

It's the New Store—which opens soon

WHEN we had found a store—in just the location downtown nearest to most of you—

Here is what we said to our architects and builders:

"The downtown Wallach Store isn't the biggest store in lower Broadway—but it must be the pleasantest store in all New York. Make it roomy without being formal. Cool without being cold—inviting—friendly—but not intimate. Remember that the second floor is where our Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothing is to be shown—And that most of our customers will want to go there.

So the second floor must be as easy of access as the first—and even quieter—more homelike when you get there. There must be no waiting for elevators (and there isn't by the way). No affectations, please. Everything solid, substantial, useful, well made—but nothing Flossy.

Remember, this is to be a store, not a club. Build it and fit it to show Clothing, Furnishings and Hats in the easiest, quickest, most businesslike way. But here, again,—no obtrusive brasswork. Fixtures and cases and tables built to show merchandise in perfect condition—not mere ornaments."

Well, the work is nearly finished. We think the architects and builders have done what we—acting always for your interests first—have asked of them.

In a few days the New Wallach Store at 265-267 Broadway, just below Chambers Street, will be open and we shall have your verdict—which is all that counts.

Meanwhile, at our other 3 stores,
Hart, Schaffner & Marx
Summer Suits, $16.50
formerly were $30, $28, $25, $20.
